Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—Robert E. Clements, the suave promoter under whose skilful direction the Townsend old-age pension plan grew into a national movement, today revealed to a congressional investigating committee what reward he claimed from the contributions of the aged for his services.

JAMES SULLIVAN.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

From almost a million dollars collected from Townsend club members by the old age revolving pensions corporation since its inception in January, 1934, Clements reserved for himself $12,385 in salary and dividends in 1935, he said, observing that this was a modest figure in comparison with the large receipts.

All Called "Velvet."

The committee's special counsel, James Sullivan, charged, however, that this $12,385 was "velvet" and elicited from the witness an admission that all his living and traveling expenses were paid for by the Townsend organization.

Moreover, Clements will obtain at least $25,000 for his stock in the Townsend Weekly, it was reported, when his resignation as secretary-treasurer of the organization takes effect April 1. Clements resigned last Tuesday after a row with Dr. Francis E. Townsend, head of the movement.

Clements' expenses cost the organization from $7,500 to $10,000 in 1935, it was indicated. He maintained a $130 a month apartment in Washington and servant hire and all living expenses were charged up to OARP, he admitted. Moreover, his traveling expenses were large, totaling more than $800 in one month.

"With all your living and other expenses paid, that $12,385 in salaries is all velvet, isn't it?" asked Attorney Sullivan.

"I don't deal in that kind of language," Clements asserted, indignantly.

Wife Also Draws Wages.

He testified that his wife, Mrs. Thelma Clements, drew $1,475 in wages from the organization in 1935 for her services in the headquarters here. He remarked that Mrs. Clements was a "competent secretary."

Telling of the amazing growth of the Townsend organization which began little more than two years ago with desk space in a Long Beach, Calif., real estate office, Clements declared that total receipts since January, 1934, to date were approximately $951,964. This total was made up of $771,964 received up to Dec. 31, 1935, and an estimated $180,000 since then.

Aged Pay Dues.

The income of the organization was made up of the dimes and quarters contributed by aged members of the Townsend clubs in the form of dues. The program calls for payment of $200 a month to every person over 60.

The receipts from the Townsend Weekly were not revealed. Clements' $12,385 income in 1935 included $7,385 he had taken as salary and dividend from the publication, he said.

Clements was still under examination when the committee recessed until next Wednesday. He was instructed to bring in all records of the expenses he charged the organization.

The committee received a telegram today from Edward J. Margett, San Francisco director of the Townsend clubs, stating that his commission ran $500 or $600 higher than the $1,800 to $2,000 a month mentioned in yesterday's testimony.

"But from these commissions a salary is paid to 20 employés," Margett wired. "I do not receive enough to pay expenses and I am thousands of dollars out of pocket."

Margett offered to appear as a witness before the committee.

SOBS AND TELLS HOW SHE LOVED MAN SHE KILLED

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—March winds slapped rain against the dusty windows in General Sessions court today as Vera Stretz, on trial for the murder of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, told judge, jury and an audience of 300 the story of her life and of her relationship with Gebhardt.

During the morning session there were frequent fits of sobbing from the defendant, first when she identified the short-barreled black revolver she used in the murder, again when she identified snapshots of the dead economist and whenever she identified their love letters.

In the course of her low spoken narrative, however, she managed to weave in the point that the weapon was in Gebhardt's possession, and had been for some five months, at the time she used it to kill him in room 2114 in Beekman tower, early in the morning last Nov. 12. She admitted the slaying.

Blames Killing on Love.

Love, one gathered from her narrative as she was skillfully guided by her lawyer, Samuel Leibowitz, led her on to the killing. Dr. Gebhardt, she established through the letters and a ring he had given her, had promised to divorce his wife and to marry her.

The letters, all rather on the carnal side, reeked with honeyed words and philosophical justification for surrendered virtue. They were much more scholarly, however, than the average love letters heard at murder trials.

Apologizes for Breakdown.

Fighting to maintain her composure, she apologized to the court and jury for her difficulty in giving her testimony.

"I find it very hard to talk about him," she said to the jury. "He was so much——" Her voice trailed away as she again covered her face.

Under examination by her counsel, Samuel Leibowitz, she told the intimate details of her romance with Dr. Gebhardt. Through her testimony, her love letters and other evidence introduced by the defense counsel, Miss Stretz was pictured as a refined, sensitive young woman, who had yielded to Dr. Gebhardt only after he had won her love and respect.

Yes, she knew he was married and the father of two daughters. "Fritz" had told her about his family, she said—the children and Thea, his wife. He had told her, she said, that he and his wife had not lived together for ten years, that there was no love "on either side"; that they were married in name only and that, legally, they couldn't be married, under the present German régime, anyway. The wife and children are living in Germany.

Naziism Barred by Court.

At this point Mr. Leibowitz attempted to bring in the question of Naziism.

"And the reason they could be married in name only was that Dr. Gebhardt was an Aryan, wasn't it?" the defense attorney asked, indicating that he would show that Mrs. Gebhardt was Jewish.

Judge Collins raised his hand.

"I will not permit that question to

NO MORE KENTUCKY COLONELS; 17,000 OF THEM LOSE TITLES

Frankfort, Ky., March 27.—(AP)—Some 17,000 "Kentucky colonels" were demoted today when Attorney General B. M. Vincent ruled the titles expired when the governor issuing them retired from office.

"No person has a right now to be designated as a Kentucky colonel, either in Kentucky or elsewhere," Vincent said in an informal opinion.

Gov. Albert B. Chandler, who took office in December, has not named any "colonels" or other honorary aids, although he did commission 700 "colonels" while serving as lieutenant governor.

Former Gov. Ruby Laffoon was credited by the secretary of state's office with creating approximately 5,000 colonels, admirals and lesser military figures during his four years of office. The others were appointed by former governors.

SCOTCHMAN BUYS A DRINK; SHOCK IS JUST TOO MUCH

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Charged with being drunk and disorderly, Alfred Reynolds, 65 years old, a street trader, faced the magistrate in Marylebone court and hesitated not at all with his explanation:

"You see, I met an old friend outside a public house, a Scotsman who was going back to Aberdeen. Since I happened to have a few shillings I played host and paid for several pints of beer.

"Then just as I was going out my friend said to me: 'Now, Alf, you'll have this one with me the noo.' I'll pay this time.'"

Reynolds paused impressively to let the full weight of that sink in. Then he added:

"For the moment everything seemed to go black. I was simply overwhelmed, and, well, here I am!"

Justice Fines His Wife $10 on Speeding Charge

Yuma, Ariz., March 27.—(AP)—Earl A. Freeman, Yuma's "marrying justice of the peace," fined his wife $10 today for speeding.

"I've known your husband for a long time and know that he sought to teach members of his family to drive carefully and observe all trafic laws," Judge Freeman said. "Your fine will be ten dollars."

"Is this my or your ten dollars?" he asked when she paid.

"Yours," she replied, "and I'll get another one tonight."

EINSTEIN PASSES UP BRIDGE; IT GIVES TOO LITTLE RELAXATION

Princeton, N. J., March 27.—(AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, noted physicist, told a Princeton university freshman in one of his infrequent interviews today that he "avoids" the game of bridge because it affords "too little relaxation."

In fact, he asured Robert P. Smith of Burlington, Vt., he plays no games at all "because there is no time." He said when "I get through with my work I do not want anything which requires working of the mind."

And as for three dimensional chess, reported as the scientist's favorite pastime, he said the extent of his knowledge of the game was what he had read in the newspapers. He takes frequent strolls through the country.

Revenge—with Onions—Sweet to Tiny Robbie

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—In one of the capital's downtown office buildings there lingered today the faint fragrance of fried onions. It was the aftermath of a valiant battle waged during the last week by that doughty old warrior, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, once the Blue Eagle monarch of all American business, and his fighting secretary, Miss Frances Robinson.

The general and "Robbie" had temporarily fled the field tonight, but their opponents, a bevy of young women stenographers of the Democratic national committee who work in the building where the general has his offices, were fearful of a return engagement. They sniffed the air disdainfully and opined that there were some weapons no adversary should stoop to use, no matter how bitter the warfare.

The Tale of a Mirror.

A few days ago, according to the story which had Washington chuckling today, Miss Robinson entered the women's sitting room in the office building to powder her nose and fluff up her hair. The Democratic committee stenographers were massed in front of the only mirror. "Robbie" was forced to wait for some time and finally made some pungent remarks about stenographers in general and the ones present in particular. They did not hesitate to answer in a similar vein.

Thereafter, according to Miss Robinson, whenever she entered the rest room the stenographers rushed for the mirror and seemed to find some delight in crowding out the general's secretary, who is short in stature but long on spirit.

They Find It Intriguing.

When "Robbie" ceased her visits to the rest room, the stenographers giggled among themselves. Those who had watched with admiring eyes the tempestuous course pursued by Gen. Johnson and his secretary during the last few years might have warned them that a glint in "Robbie's" eyes was a signal of something unusual about to happen.

Along about last Monday the stenographers, gayly pounding out Democratic committee literature, suddenly began to cough. Their eyes watered. Some rushed, choking, to the windows for fresh air. They looked at one another. Some one, somewhere in the building, was undoubtedly frying onions—onions which must have been selected for their strong and staying qualities.

No extraordinary detective ability was needed for the young women to trace the source of the odor. A strong suspicion and the evidence of their noses led them straight to Gen. Johnson's offices on the floor below. Inside, they could hear the general emitting hearty guffaws. There was also a sizzling sound and the dulcet tones of Miss Robinson. "Robbie," according to the stenographers, was announcing that it seemed about time to put on a fresh batch.

They Aren't Agreeable.

One stenographer, a martyr to the cause, was posted as a lookout and reported later that "Robbie" had been caught redhanded, bearing a bowl of onions from an ice box in the office to a small stove. Complaint was made to the building superintendent. He reserved decision.

"Robbie" sweetly professed ignorance of the incident.

"Why, the general and I only get to Washington a few days each month," she remarked. "I never cook onions; they do not agree with me. I cook meats in the office frequently, but onions—how silly."

Chemists Find 15 Uses for Shells from Walnuts

Los Angeles, March 27.—(AP)—Industrial use for walnut shells—a final step in eliminating waste from commercial shelling operations—was announced today. California walnut growers association engineers and chemists said the most important of fifteen uses found for ground walnut shells are in hard and soft rubber compounds, asphaltum linoleums, roofing paper, filler in dynamite, and abrasive mechanics soaps.

Bicker in N. J. Over the Life of Hauptmann

Trenton, N. J., March 27.—[Special.]—With Bruno Richard Hauptmann sentenced to be electrocuted Tuesday night at 8 o'clock for the kidnap-murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., four years ago, New Jersey's governor, Harold G. Hoffman, and the two men who prosecuted Hauptmann bickered tonight over his life.

Gov. Hoffman, who previously reprieved Hauptmann twenty-four hours before the time originally set for his execution, tonight was eager to grant another reprieve, declaring the "whole case reeks with unfairness, passion, and prejudice."

Opposing the governor, who has said he would grant the reprieve if shown that he could do so legally, are Anthony M. Hauck, prosecutor of Hunterdon county where the kidnaping and slaying took place, and Attorney David T. Wilentz, who actually conducted the prosecution.

Answer to Be No.

Wilentz will give his opinion on legality of the reprieve tomorrow morning, but it was said authoritatively tonight that his reply to the governor would be that he could not consent.

Bitter antagonism between the governor and prosecutors was stirred at the time of the first reprieve when the governor criticized conduct of the trial and said he was not satisfied that the Lindbergh case had been solved. At that time the prosecutors said Hauptmann had a fair trial, was found guilty and to them the case was closed.

Disregarding the prosecutors, Gov. Hoffman ordered new investigation of the case which thus far has revealed little information not already known. The governor secretly made a dramatic visit to Hauptmann's death cell in hope of inducing the alien carpenter to talk, but learned nothing. The governor has accused state police of laxity in their investigation and his latest move has been to attack credibility of state witnesses, who placed Hauptmann near the scene of the crime.

Seek Others' Opinion.

Tonight both the governor and Wilentz were seeking opinions from Jersey's most experienced attorneys on legality of the proposed reprieve. The governor contends there is precedent for granting a reprieve more than ninety days after conviction [Dec. 13, 1935], although the constitution forbids such action. The prosecutors are standing by the letter of the law. There were indications the governor may grant the reprieve, notwithstanding.

Hauck repeatedly has assailed the governor's interest in the case as motivated purely by political expediency and declared he would fight any effort to reprieve Hauptmann in the courts. Hauck said Hoffman would make a "laughing stock" of New Jersey courts, which charge drew bitter retort from the governor.

Hauptmann has filed an application with the Court of Pardons for a new hearing. C. Lloyd Fisher,

FOUR CAPTURED; REVEAL MURDER DONE IN HOLDUP

Two Young Slayers Tell of Crime.

With dramatic suddenness detectives last night crashed through to a solution of the mystery murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, specialist in children's diseases, who was beaten and shot to death on Jan. 2.

The murder was committed by four young robbers during a holdup. Their crime netted them $20—just $5 apiece.

Two youths, long known to the police as criminals, confessed at the West North avenue police station that they were members of the gang that killed the doctor. They told detailed stories of the murder.

A third participant in the crime, listening to the confessions that may send all four to the electric chair, collapsed. He had suffered a hemorrhage from a stomach ulcer, a recurrence of an old ailment, and he was speedily removed under guard to the County hospital.

The fourth of the killers, his identity disclosed in the statements of the confessing pair, was seized shortly before midnight at his home.

Eager to Reveal Details.

The leader of the band, the man who fired the fatal shot, is Robert Goethe, 19 years old, 2648 Augusta boulevard, a thick lipped, shock haired, tough youth. He vied, once the notion of confession had taken hold of him, with his first lieutenant, Durland Nash, 19 years old, 2734 Cortez street, in telling the details of the murder.

"I want to keep out of the hot seat [the electric chair]," Goethe cried. "If telling about it will do any good I'll talk my head off."

Emil Reck, 19 years old, 2634 Rice street, is the man who was stricken by his illness. The last gangster to be seized is Michael Livingston, 17 years old, 1016 North Central Park avenue. He was to be asked for his version of the murder later.

Two Make Full Confessions.

The police held that it was not important whether Livingston talks. Acting Captain Harry O'Connell of the West North avenue district and Detective Sergeant Andrew Aitken, who have been working on the case for weeks, said that the disclosures made by Goethe and Nash constituted a complete cleanup of the mystery.

Goethe and Nash told in detail how Dr. Peacock was lured from his home in the Edgewater Beach apartments, 5555 Sheridan road, by a fake telephone call at 10 p. m. the day after New Year's and how he was slain when he courageously resisted the robbers.

It was established through the confessions that the shooting took place in front of an apartment building at 6438 North Whipple street, where the doctor had been requested to come "and take care of a sick baby."

Place of Crime Is Fixed.

Hitherto the investigators had been undecided whether Dr. Peacock had been slain there or at some point nearer the spot in the 6300 block of North Francisco avenue where his body was found in his parked automobile late the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 3.

Nash, who was the first of the gang to break, said the four of them gathered in Phil's poolroom on Division street, near California avenue, a few hours before the killing.

"Goethe," he said, "looked through the classified telephone book to find a doctor on the north side. We had been sticking up doctors around our neighborhood and we figured that one out on the lake shore might carry more money.

Called to Lonely Building.

"The first time Goethe called Dr. Peacock's home he was not in. We waited awhile and then called again. This time the doctor was home. Goethe told him to come to the home of G. Smale at 6438 North Whipple street to see the sick child. He used the address, I guess, because he used to live in that neighborhood and knew that the building was a lonely one, with prairies all around."

Goethe confirmed this. The youths looked at each other as they continued their joint story of the crime. When Goethe was asked why he used the name Smale he said it just occurred to him—there was no particular reason. Nash continued:

"When the doctor said he would come we all got in a car we had stolen and rode out to the Whipple street place. We parked the car about 50 feet north of the building and hid in a passageway to wait. It was about a half hour before he got there.

Dr. Peacock Held Up.

"I knew it was him because he carried his little black satchel. The others stayed in the passageway while I stepped down and asked if it was Dr. Peacock. Then I put a gun on him and told him to stick 'em up. The others joined me then and Dr. Peacock did what we said.

"Reck took his satchel and opened it. I reached in his pocket and got his wallet and took $20 out of it. Then we told him to walk with us to our car. That started him to fighting. Gee, he was tough. I hit him with the butt of my gun. Livingston slugged him with his fist. Reck took a knife out of the medicine case and slashed the doctor on the head with it.

"None of those things stopped him. He hit at all of us and kicked Goethe in the groin. He got so tough that Goethe shot him in the head.

Final Blow Downs Doctor.

"He went down but he got up again, still battling and hollering: 'Don't shoot me; don't shoot me.' I clouted him on the head again and this time he passed out.

"We decided right then not to leave the body where it was in front of the apartment building. It would be found too soon. We loaded it in the doctor's own car and threw his overcoat over it. Then we drove to the place [on Francisco avenue] where we parked the car. Livingston followed in our car and we got away in that.

"Goethe, on the drive in the doctor's machine, hit him a few more times just to make sure he was dead. I asked him why he had to kill the fellow. He said: 'I've been in the Bridewell and I ain't going back again.'"

Long History of Crimes.

Nash said that the $20 taken from the victim was split the same night.

As the questioning continued more and more of the criminal history of the gang came out. They had stolen a hundred automobiles, they had held up many doctors with fake calls, they had robbed pedestrians on the streets.

On March 7 Nash and Goethe entered the home of Matthew Holstein, 82 years old, 2038 Emerson avenue, to rob. When the aged man resisted the pair beat him and his daughter, Miss Christine Holstein, so severely that both had to go under the care of physicians.

It developed that Goethe and Nash were sent to the Bridewell for larceny last April and that they were released on Dec. 3 after serving seven months. Immediately they took up the career of violent crime again.

Further it developed that Mrs. Rose Kasselis, mother of Goethe, is now in the Bridewell, where she was sent after being found guilty of operating a combined disorderly resort and school of crime at 1339 North Maplewood avenue.

"These are as dangerous a bunch of desperate men as we have come across in years," declared Capt. O'Connell. "And clever, too. Nash used to go to Crane High school. Livingston was a Lane Tech boy."

Story of Detective Work.

Back of the arrests and confessions is a stirring story of hard, accurate detective work.

In the early stages of the murder investigation many theories were advanced. Some of the police felt that the circumstances, and particularly the utter brutality of the manner of the slaying, indicated that Dr. Peacock had been set upon by a personal enemy, seeking his life in revenge for some real or fancied wrong.

Dr. Peacock was recognized as an able man in Chicago in his specialty. He was a graduate of Rush Medical college and served his internship at the Presbyterian hospital. His offices were at 4753 Broadway.

The entire life of the physician, who had reached the age of 41 without attracting anything but favorable notice, was searched for a hint of scandal. Not one was found. All trails that seemed to point to the revenge theory ended in blind alleys.

And for the last two months Sergt. Aitken and his assistants, Sergts. Leo Anderson, Timothy Donovan, and Patrick McShane, have been following to the exclusion of all other work clews pointing to a band of robbers specializing in holding up physicians.

They established their headquarters at the West North avenue station, partly because they believed the Peacock killers had come from that section. They enlisted the coöperation of physicians through the medical associations. Any doctor who received a call for aid, and was not sure of the identity of the caller, was requested to notify the detail and one of them or two, would accompany him. It was hoped that the gunmen would be trapped in this manner.

The killers did not fall into the traps. But they continued to hold up doctors—four of them in the last few weeks. They are Dr. L. A. Garness, 3117 Logan boulevard; Dr. A. L. Abrahams, 1608 Milwaukee avenue; Dr. Frank Kolter, 1200 North Ashland avenue, and Dr. Joseph Knopa, 1628 West Division street. Sergt. Aitken was sure he was on the right trail.

Although some police officials wished to take the four detectives off the hunt, Assistant State's Attorneys Marshall Kearney and Blair Varnes objected. They considered the Peacock mystery as one of the most important matters in Chicago crime, and they persuaded the higherups of the police department to let Sergt. Aitken carry on.

Net Falls by Accident.

The arrest of Goethe, Nash, and Reck was in a sense accidental. Policeman Fred Susebach and Stanley Kula met Nash on the street Wednesday and questioned him about a missing girl, Doris Robbins, 17 years old, 1937 Nebraska avenue.

The youth's answers were unsatisfactory. Susebach, who had arrested him when he was sent to the Bridewell, took him to the West North avenue station. There Nash said that while he didn't know where Doris could be found he remembered meeting her once at Goethe's home.

When Policeman Susebach accused him of being a stickup man Nash whined that he wasn't, but declared that Reck and Goethe might be. This pair was then seized. They and Nash were taken to a detective bureau showup Thursday night, but there were no identifications.

They were not released, however. Sergt. Aitken and his men had been considering them carefully. They seemed to fit the descriptions of the men who had been holding up physicians. So last evening Doctors Garness, Abrahams, Kolter, and Knopa viewed the three prisoners and unhesitatingly pointed to them as robbers. The youths confessed these holdups.

The Strategem of the Police.

Sergt. Aitken and Capt. O'Connell then separated the three youths for a time. First they interviewed Goethe.

"You killed Dr. Peacock," they said.

Goethe denied this vehemently, so vehemently that he was not convincing. The interrogators then went to Nash and told him that Goethe was telling in another room how he—Nash—had killed Dr. Peacock.

"He can't get away with that," cried Nash. "He's the man who shot him."

After that the three youths were put together. Half quarreling, half competing in truth telling, they brought out the entire story of their crimes. They were only well launched into the Peacock story when Reck fell bleeding at the mouth and crying that he was dying. After his removal to the hospital Nash and Goethe told their stories in full.

Glad to Tell It, Nash Says.

Nash declared that he was glad he had gotten his confession "off his chest."

"I've been worried a lot," he said. "I blame my downfall on bad company and liquor."

There can be no question that his company was bad. Goethe was the unquestioned leader and tough. The police pointed out that he came by this naturally. When Mrs. Kasellis was sentenced to the Bridewell for two years Judge Lambert Hayes of the Municipal court said that she was "the worst mother in Chicago."

Police Hunt Three Girls.

The police were anxious to find the Robbins girl and two other young women—Patsy Dean, 2257 West North avenue, who Nash claimed was his sweetheart, and Evelyn Tveden, 1616 North Fairfield avenue. All were missing early today.

Those who listened to the confessions of the killers included Supervising Captain John Horan and Assistant Prosecutors Kearney and Varnes.

ROBBERY THEORY NOW UPHELD, COMMENTS WIDOW OF PEACOCK

Mrs. Ruth Sarah Peacock, widow of the slain Dr. Silber C. Peacock, was informed by telephone last night at Bowen, Ill., that the robbers who killed her husband had been caught. She recalled her insistence that holdup men had murdered the physician, and she observed that her belief was verified.

"I am glad to hear that my husband's murder has been solved and I want to thank the police investigators for their diligent work in the case," she said. "The police and other officials have been very kind to me throughout the investigation."

The widow has given up her apartment at 5555 Sheridan road and is living with her daughter, Betty Lou, 8 years old, at the home of her mother, Mrs. George P. Pearce, near Bowen. Her father died last Dec. 23.

MORON IN AUTO KIDNAPS GIRL, 9, AND RAPES HER

A little girl, 9 years old, was walking at Osgood street and Garfield avenue on her way home last night when a slim, black mustached gunman forced her into his automobile, a new sedan. For an hour he drove the child around north side streets, stopping the car once at a place she described only as having "a lot of ash wagons."

There the man raped the child, after which he drove to the alley in the rear of her home, released her, and speeded away. The girl was treated by a physician at her home. The Hudson avenue police began a hunt for the moron, whom his victim described as being about 29 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighing about 150 pounds.

PAROLED THIEF CAUGHT FLEEING IN STOLEN TAXI

Crashes Into Squad Car When Overtaken.

John Wojcik, 22 years old, 4530 South Francisco avenue, who was paroled from the Joliet penitentiary last May after serving 14 months of a sentence of one to twenty years for automobile theft, was arrested yesterday when a stolen taxicab which he was driving crashed into a police squad car near 33d street and Archer avenue.

Wojcik drove away with the taxi of James Appolare, 2643 South Michigan avenue, Yellow Cab chauffeur, while Appolare was eating in a restaurant at Cermak road and Wentworth avenue. The cab was sighted later by a police squad near Cermak road and Archer avenue and pursuit began.

Wrecks Car; Cut by Glass.

At 33d street and Archer avenue the police car overtook Wojcik and he was ordered to stop. Instead he turned the cab into the squad car, smashing both automobiles. The policemen were uninjured, but the ex-convict was cut on the face by broken glass from the cab's windshield. The police said that he was intoxicated.

Wojcik was paroled to Frank A. Papka, an undertaker at 4358 South Richmond street. Since his release from prison he has married. Wojcik told the police that he has been employed about five days a week by the Crane company as a painter and decorator.

Wojcik was sent to Joliet after he confessed stealing the automobile of James Senese, 6204 South Keating avenue, on Dec. 17, 1933. The automobile was later found stripped, wrecked, and burned.

Nurses' Annoyer to Cell.

Donald Ausman, 29 years old, 2105 North Clark street, a paroled convict from the Mansfield, O., penitentiary, who was arrested early Tuesday when he was found prowling through the nurses' home of the Augustana hospital at 427 Garfield avenue, was sentenced to three months in the Bridewell by Judge Jay A. Schiller in the Chicago avenue court yesterday.

Ausman was seen peering into the room of Miss Sylvia Lawridsen by Miss Aleda Bringe, her roommate. Both are nurses at the hospital. Their screams aroused the home and Ausman was captured by Ewald Baack, watchman at the home.

He was sentenced to the Bridewell on a charge of malicious mischief. The Ohio authorities said he would be returned there for violation of parole when he completes his sentence.

ROMANCE TOLD IN FIGHT OVER FARGO ESTATE

Courtship Is Traced by Claimant's Sister.

The ashes of a romance that glowed for the late Livingston Wells Fargo and for Lucille Camden thirty years ago were raked over yesterday before Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court.

Miss Camden [she calls herself Lucille Camden Fargo] is suing for a share in the estate of Mr. Fargo, who died in 1934. Her contention is that she was his common law wife, and, as the widow, is entitled to a dower right in the property he left. She is being opposed by Mrs. Edith Andrews Sturgis, niece of Mr. Fargo and executrix of the estate.

Her Testimony Cut Short.

The court permitted Miss Camden, a plump, matronly woman of 49, to testify only to the extent of giving her name and address, 5054 Winthrop avenue. It was ruled that an interested party in a suit against an estate could not tell more.

Miss Camden's claim, however, was supported by the testimony of her sister, Mrs. Mary J. Camp, 59 years old, a widow. She said that she met Mr. Fargo in August, 1905, while she and Lucille were living in an apartment at 175 Lexington avenue, New York. Questioned by Miss Camden's lawyer, Paul A. Neuffer, Mrs. Camp's story was substantially as follows:

"William C. Fargo, who was his cousin, brought Livingston to see us. The following day he took my sister to lunch. In April, 1906, he told us that he was ill and wanted to go to Virginia to recuperate.

The Trip to Virginia.

"He and Lucille went to the home of my sister, Mrs. Alice B. Stinnett, near Buchanan, Va. They returned to New York and had dinner in our apartment on May 8, 1906. On that occasion Mr. Fargo said to me: 'Sister Mary, Lucille is my wife now. We are going to build a home in Virginia."

The house, she said, was built near Natural Bridge in Virginia, but was never occupied by the couple. Her sister, Mrs. Camp said, then moved to the Gotham hotel, where Mr. Fargo spent part of his time.

In October, 1908, Mrs. Camp continued, Mr. Fargo furnished an apartment at 307 West 79th street. Mrs. Camp [then Miss Camden] resided with her sister there and Mr. Fargo, she said, kept his clothing and other personal belongings in the flat.

Tells of Vacation.

Also, Mrs. Camp asserted, her sister and Mr. Fargo had a safety deposit box which they used jointly.

"In 1910," the witness asserted, "Mr. Fargo and my sister sent me to California and gave me $50 a month for expenses while they went to Europe. These payments continued until I was married in 1911."

Attorney Frank B. Gilmer, representing Mrs. Sturgis, cross-examined the witness. She said that she was working for the United States Express company in 1905 and met William C. Fargo and James F. Fargo, in connection with business matters. The Fargo family founded the Wells-Fargo Express company and the three cousins were all executives of the concern.

Mrs. Camp admitted that William and James were frequent visitors to the Lexington avenue apartment and that they sometimes had meals, including breakfast, there. She knew, she said, that William and James were married.

Vague on Who Paid.

When the witness was asked about payment of expenses in the flat, she said rather vaguely that she paid part and her sister part. Lucille, she said, never worked in New York, but "had some shares of stock." She professed not to know how much stock or where the sister had obtained it.

In response to a question as to where the supposed marriage took place, Mrs. Camp said Mr. Fargo told her it had been solemnized in the Bellevue Stratford hotel in Philadelphia. She was still on the stand when the hearing was continued until Monday.

Attorney Gilmer, in his opening statement, declared he would show that Livingston Fargo was only one of three "directors" of the Lexington avenue flat and that there had been nothing in his relationship with Miss Camden that could be construed as matrimony.

Evanston Police Capture Tipsy Milwaukee Autoist

Evanston police seized an automobile driver last night when they saw his car weaving from side to side in Ridge avenue near Grove street. At the station he identified himself as Gordon McNamee, 1912 East Linwood avenue, Milwaukee, head of the McNamara Scrap Iron and Metal company of that city. He was booked on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Makeup Artist Changes Personality of Actress

HAMMOND HIGH COACH KILLED AS AUTO HITS TRUCK

Another Driver Dies in Similar Collision.

William E. [Spud] Campbell, 40 years old, basketball coach at the Hammond, Ind., High school, was killed last night when his automobile struck a motor truck and trailer near Wheeler, Ind., seven miles west of Valparaiso.

The driver of the truck, Amos J. Kovarik, 1823 60th court, Cicero, said Campbell's machine was traveling at high speed when it plowed into the truck with an impact so great that the big vehicle was turned over. The automobile spun around and finally stopped 200 feet from the overturned truck.

Campbell was dead when taken from the wreckage. Kovarik was not injured. The basketball coach was on his way to attend the finals of the state high school basketball tournament today in Indianapolis. His team was eliminated from the championship play two weeks ago in the regional tournament at Valparaiso.

Another Killed in Similar Crash.

Harold Ingermunson, 25 years old, of Newark, Kendall county, was killed instantly and two companions were injured early yesterday when Ingermunson's automobile crashed into a cattle truck on route 34 near Plano.

Miss Osa Marie Figgins, 25 years old, of Sheridan, La Salle county, suffered a fractured leg and Spencer Olson, 24 years old, of Newark, was cut and bruised. Testimony at the inquest indicated Ingermunson had fallen asleep at the wheel. The three were returning from a dance at Aurora. Ralph Marlowe of Charlotte, Ia., was driving the truck.

Two Others Die of Injuries.

Two pedestrians died yesterday of injuries inflicted by automobiles in Chicago.

De Leon Julien, 46 years old, 2017 West 18th street, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred on Monday when he stepped from a safety island at Morgan street and Roosevelt road into the path of a car driven by Samuel Rozak, 21 years old, 3711 Grenshaw street.

Stanley Wozciewski, 53 years old, 12423 Eggleston avenue, died in Roseland Community hospital of injuries suffered on March 14.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 221 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 185 were killed and 3,377 injured within the Chicago city limits.

THE MASSACRE

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

YOUNG MOTORIST WHO HIT 2 AUTOS DEPRIVED OF CAR

Walter Kincab, 21 years old, 2738 West 41st street, whose automobile crashed into two parked cars at 40th street and Francisco avenue several days ago, was ordered not to drive his car for a year by Judge J. M. Braude in the Boys' court yesterday. The judge sentenced Kincab to ten days in the Bridewell on a reckless driving charge, but continued until Dec. 21 a motion to vacate the sentence.

A charge of driving a truck while having the use of only one foot, brought against Joseph Shafarsky, 29 years old, 7700 West 60th street, Argo, was dismissed yesterday by Judge John Gutknecht in the Trafic court.

Judge Gutknecht said there is no law prohibiting a one legged person from driving a car in Illinois.

Election Board Offices Open for Voters' Queries

Alexander J. Grace Moore Admits Tax Debt of $1,677 for 1932

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—Grace Moore, the singer, admitted today she owed the government additional income taxes of $1,677 for 1932. The internal revenue bureau charged her with $6,187 additional taxes, but was allowed additional deductions for expenses. Her gross income in 1932 was reported as $50,519.

ZOO LIONS LEAVE CAGES TO ENJOY SPRING SUNSHINE

Mother Hippo Sews on Pigmy Garments.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Lions at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield discovered yesterday that spring had arrived. They were released from winter quarters, where they had been since Nov. 15, and allowed to gambol in their outdoor barless moated inclosures. If the thermometer registers above 50 degrees tomorrow, and the wind is not strong, Robert Bean, assistant director, again will order them out for sunnings.

While the five grown male lions, including the reticent Nungo, biggest and shiest of them all, which was reluctant to emerge from the heated winter home, frolicked about and sniffed the fresh air the two lionesses romped with their cubs inside the lion house.

Cubs to Share Outdoor Cage.

When spring is farther gone the cubs, three belonging to each mother, will be placed in an outdoor cage with three tiger cubs. The latter, recently weaned, will be a year old in May, and already are eating meat and demanding plenty of it.

Other events of spring out at the zoo include the condition of the park's pigmy hippopotamus, which is a matter for great excitement because a recent agreement among France, England, and Belgium forbids taking a number of mammals and birds out of Africa, including the pigmy hippo. Mr. Bean, however, would not speak positively of the pigmy hippo's condition. He preferred using veiled terms.

"We are all hoping," he said with a sigh, "that she is expecting. More than that I cannot say. The night keeper feels positive about it. I do not."

Monkey Island Completed.

The monkey island is completed, and 240 Rhesus monkeys, two Malay bears, two sloth bears, a pair of Collard bears, and three wild Thar goats will arrive May 15 to populate it. Three Indian rhinoceroses, another Malay tapir to act as a mate for the tapir now in the zoo, and an African tapir are expected to arrive this summer.

Court Removes Nettelhorst from Building Receivership

Louis Nettelhorst, Republican committeeman of the 50th ward and a former county commissioner, was removed as the receiver for an apartment building at 702 Reba street, Evanston, yesterday by Judge Walter P. Steffen of the Superior court. This was another of the moves made by Judge Steffen to clean up the receivership situation since he was appointed last November to investigate the chaotic conditions and to institute an effective control system in the Superior court.

The judge also announced other moves yesterday in the investigation that is expected to uncover and remedy the opportunities for mismanagement and misappropriation which grew out of the great number of receiverships resulting from the depression.

Tells His Reasons.

"I removed Nettelhorst on the ground of mismanagement because he installed a real estate firm as manager of the building without the permission of the court," Judge Steffen said.

"Receivers are appointed as personal agents of the court and have no authority to delegate their responsibility to others. I also found that a woman occupant of one apartment had been allowed to remain there for seventeen months without paying $550 in rent that was due, and forced Nettelhorst to make good the amount."

Orders Final Accountings.

The judge also issued an order for Joseph P. Dobrzanski, 4706 Division street, a former bailif for Judge Denis Sullivan of the Appellate court, to enter final accountings and be prepared to turn over the receipts from fourteen properties in which Dobrzanski has been acting as receiver.

Dobrzanski was enjoined from any further transactions as receiver for the properties. He was appointed to eleven of the receiverships by Judge Sullivan when Judge Sullivan was head of the chancellory division of the Superior court.

Judge Steffen revealed that he had forced Dobrzanski to turn over $600 to the court on Thursday.

"Dobrzanski told me that he had $800 in the Boulevard bank," the judge said. "I called the bank and was told that he did not have the money on deposit there. Then his attorney told me that Dobrzanski had made a mistake; that he had the money at home.

Goes Home to Get Money.

"I allowed Dobrzanski to go home and get the money and he returned with $600, which I forced him to deposit with the court to protect any possible shortages that might develop in his accounts. I took this action primarily because of Dobrzanski's misstatement to me in court."

Judge Steffen said that he planned to remove Howard K. Hurwith, an insurance broker with offices at 175 West Jackson boulevard, as receiver for thirty-five properties as soon as final accountings of Hurwith's receiverships can be prepared.

THREE ROBBERS ADMIT KILLING OAK PARK MAN

Three colored robbers confessed to Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty yesterday that they shot and killed William B. Tichenor, 53 years old, 45 South boulevard, Oak Park, last March 8 when he resisted them as they held him up on the elevated station stairs at Lake and Clinton streets.

The three are James Hartfield, 26 years old, 4751 Calumet avenue, said by the others to have fired the fatal shot; James Gentry, 38 years old, a cousin of Hartfield, who resides at the same address, and Eugene Wallace, 33 years old, 4726 South Dearborn street.

Tichenor, a conductor for the Chicago and North Western railroad, was on his way to work when he was slain. Wallace and Gentry were arrested several days ago by Des Plaines street police and Hartfield was seized later in Bloomington, Ind.

BOOKLET QUOTES HORNER IN PRAISE OF ORGANIZATION

Cites His Ardent Denials of Bossism in 1932.

"Bossism"—Gov. Horner's principal topic in the present campaign—was also an issue in the 1932 primary, only the governor was then on the other side of the fence, according to a booklet issued yesterday from the headquarters of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Mr. Horner's rival for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"The shoe is on the other foot," says the folder, which is designed to show that Mr. Horner has blown both hot and cold, according to the state of his own political fortunes. In order to press the point home, the booklet quotes extracts from the governor's speeches now and four years ago when he had primary opponents not indorsed by the regular organizations, which are now attempting to shelve him for Dr. Bundesen.

Allege Seasonal Variations.

"Illinois voters," says the document," must decide if they wish to have as governor a man who asks them to believe, in one season, that white is black, and the next season asks these same people to believe that black is write.

"Is Henry Horner a 'St. George' or is he 'just a little boy who picked up his marbles because he could not have his way?'

"If Henry Horner was telling the truth in 1932—and he assured the voters that he was telling the truth—what should the voters think of his statements today?

"If he is telling the truth today, what are the people of Illinois to think regarding his honesty four years ago?"

Two sets of cartoon-caricatures present the issue in the booklet. In the top row, the scene is 1932 and Mr. Horner, then judge of the Probate court, is shown being chosen as the organization choice for nomination, receiving congratulations from County Chairman P. A. Nash, Mayor Kelly, and the late Mayor Cermak.

Proud Then, Hostile Now.

Under such potent auspices, Judge Horner is next shown as he addressed Democratic gatherings, saying, among other things: "I am proud to run as a candidate selected by the legally constituted leadership of my party. I would never have come before the voters if those leaders had not indorsed me.

"Had I submitted my name, as did my major opponents [Michael L. Igoe and Bruce A. Campbell], for consideration by the party leaders, and failed in getting their indorsement, I would have abided by the verdict of the men whom I asked to consider me."

In the bottom row, the cartoons show the Democratic organization leaders meeting last month and discussing the names of those submitted for the governorship. Among them is Dr. Bundesen's.

The Governor's New Slant.

The choice of Dr. Bundesen by the slate committee is shown, then the story in pictures turns to the current remarks of Gov. Horner who, says the booklet, "now voices the same charges that were made against the party leaders four years ago—the same charges he then denounced as false and made in order to "divide our party in order to satisfy personal ambition."

United States Attorney Igoe and State's Attorney Courtney had breakfast with Gov. Horner in the executive mansion at Springfield yesterday. They were in the capital to address the governor's crime conference. Igoe told newspaper men that the primary fight had been discussed but did not reveal what was said.

Kelly Makes Three Speeches.

Mayor Kelly made three campaign speeches in behalf of Dr. Bundesen last night. In each of them he charged that a Republican faction is seeking the nomination of Gov. Horner because it believes him to be the weakest possible Democratic nominee and hopes to get him on the ticket in order to help defeat President Roosevelt.

"This faction, aided by some newspapers, is trying to undermine the President and the Democratic party," Mayor Kelly said. "They know Horner is the weakest candidate, and that is the very reason the party organization did not back him."

Calls Horner Chicago's Enemy.

The mayor accused Gov. Horner of being an enemy of Chicago, and recited the governor's advocacy of the measure requiring Chicago to raise a large portion of its relief funds before it can share in the state sales tax relief funds. "And the city pays 80 per cent of the sales tax," the mayor declared.

About 3,000 persons heard Mayor Kelly in the three campaign meetings, which were held at 11037 South Michigan avenue, 9138 Houston avenue, and at Barry and Francisco avenues.

Political Plums Believed Lure in O'Brien's Flop to Horner

BY PERCY WOOD.

Colleagues of Martin J. O'Brien on the Democratic county central committee spent much time yesterday discussing his indorsement of Gov. Horner, in face of the otherwise solid organization backing given to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Mr. Horner's opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor. The indorsement was announced by O'Brien early in the day.

There were some committeemen who talked of reading O'Brien out of the party. He has been a staunch organization man in past campaigns and the reasons for his present defection were thrashed over with considerable fervor.

Recipient of Rich Appointment.

O'Brien is committeeman of the 29th ward, a Democratic stronghold on the west side. Last July the governor appointed him to the lucrative post of public administrator of Cook county, a fee office which, it was said, will net the incumbent an average of $15,000 to $20,000 annually over a four year period and which paid much better than that before the depression. In those days it was the plum the governor generally gave to an exceptionally favored partisan.

In addition to this anticipated income O'Brien has an insurance partnership with another 29th ward Democratic power, Albert J. Horan, who is bailif of the Municipal court and is a candidate for reëlection to this office on the organization ticket.

Bond Business a Factor.

The Horan and O'Brien firm, it has been said repeatedly in political gossip, has received much state business during the Horner administration, including a sizable portion of the business of underwriting the bonds required on state highway building contracts.

A situation prevails in the office of public administrator which calls for a considerable outlay of money before any income is made, politicians explained. Since it is a fee office the incumbent must pay rent, salaries of his staf, and office expenses. Under the law estates handled by the office are not closed in less than one year so that an incoming administrator must be prepared to dig into his own pocket until the Probate court allows him fees.

The "drag period"—the time during which money goes out constantly and none comes in—is generally at least six months, it having been possible in the past to obtain partial fees from the Probate court in that time.

Office Costs $30,000 a Year.

Some estimates were that an administrator is required to spend from $30,000 to $35,000 annually in running the office, and, for the first year, little of this comes back into his pocket.

The term of office generally extends four years, calculated from one year after an incoming governor takes office; that is, O'Brien's term would normally run from December, 1933, to December, 1937.

O'Brien, however, had a late start, for Halbert O. Crews, his predecessor, who was appointed by former Gov. Emmerson, served more than five years. O'Brien was not appointed until last July. Consequently, if he went out of office one year after Gov. Horner's term expires, or in December, 1937, he would have held the post only about two and one-half years.

Scant Chance for Profit.

This period, it was said yesterday, is too short a time for the administrator to make much money. Assuming his expenses run $35,000 a year, he would have to pay out more than $85,000 by December, 1937. His income probably would exceed this expenditure, it was said, but the net would not compare with profits from the insurance and bond business, according to the regular Democratic politicians. And whatever he clears is his, for it is exempt from the federal income tax.

As far as the Twenty-ninth ward is concerned, other Democratic leaders there said that they did not believe O'Brien's announcement for the governor would make much difference when the votes are counted April 14.

View Defection as Solitary.

Horan being on the organization ticket, it was assumed that he will support it from top to bottom, including Dr. Bundesen. Other leaders in the ward are former State Senator James C. Denvir, State Representative John R. McSweeney, and Ald. Tom Terrell.

Denvir is known to be supporting the organization ticket, as is McSweeney. McSweeney is expected to defeat S. Edward Bloom, who is running against him as a Horner candidate for state representative. No one could be found who knew Terrell's position.

O'Brien's indorsement said: "Gov. Horner is entitled to another term in appreciation of his honest efforts in behalf of the people so that he may complete the job he has undertaken in behalf of all the people of Illinois."

O'Brien said that he would be with the governor to the finish, and predicted Mr. Horner's renomination.

HORNER UPHOLDS PAROLE SYSTEM AS 'GOOD AS ANY'

More 'Return to Society' than Elsewhere.

Springfield, Ill., March 27.—[Special.]—In an address before the third annual crime commission today, Gov. Henry Horner declared that the parole system of Illinois compares favorably with that of any state in the union. The governor said that statistics covering three years show that the state has had a large proportion of prisoners returned to society than is usual in any parole system.

"Notwithstanding what certain newspapers say regarding Illinois' parole system, it is comparable to that of any other state," he asserted. "Statistics covering the last three years confirm the statement that Illinois has had a larger proportion of prisoners returned to society rehabilitated than is usual in any parole system.

Asserts Most Make Good.

"Any one listening to the self-constituted and uninformed critics of the parole system would be inclined to think that the great majority of paroled prisoners have failed to make good.

"As a matter of fact, the opposite is the case. Out of all prisoners paroled from Illinois penal institutions during the last three years the average percentage of parolees returned for all causes is only 11.75 per cent per year. That percentage is the answer to those who say the Illinois parole system is a failure. Is it thinkable to destroy a parole system under which 88 per cent of parolees make good?

Cites Stateville Slaying.

"You are all familiar with the recent tragedy in the Stateville branch of the Illinois penitentiary, in which one prisoner lost his life in an altercation with another.

"This resulted in a question in the minds of some of our citizens regarding the management of our prison system. Intimations were made of laxity in discipline; favoritism in dealing with convicts has been charged by some who are entirely unfamiliar with the subject.

"These charges are grotesque and flighty and no thinking citizen who knows the facts would dignify them with his sanction."

The governor detailed the inquiry now in progress in the penal institutions of the state.

OLD WAITER DIES IN HOME.

John Callaghan, 64 years old, 1507 Rosemont avenue, for 20 years a waiter in the old Grand Pacific hotel, died of heart disease in his home yesterday.

1,500 AT PARLEY PLEDGE AID FOR HONEST PRIMARY

5,000 Watchers Enlist with New Group.

An honest election convention, with the delegates pledged to aid in eliminating vote frauds at the April 14 primaries, was held last night in Orchestra hall under the auspices of the United Citizens' council. More than 1,500 attended.

The citizens' council is a new nonpartisan organization, headed by Arthur M. Barnhart. Barnhart said that nearly 5,000 persons have volunteered to act as watchers for the council in the polling places at the primary. He asserted that about 200,000 votes are cast fraudulently at each city election and that constant vigilance by organized citizen groups is the only means of effectively combating the evil.

Women Voters' Leader Speaks.

Other speakers included Mrs. Jasper W. King, president of the Cook County League of Women Voters; Charles P. Schwartz, president of the City Club of Chicago; Edward A. Zimmerman, head of the civic affairs committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Henry Bentley, chairman of the Charter committee of Cincinnati.

During the day county officials continued working to clear the poll lists of names of persons who registered illegally.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who has jurisdiction over the election machinery, estimated that 60,000 post cards have been returned from addresses given by persons in registering. Nearly 2,000,000 cards were sent out. Those returned bore the notation "not there," indicating that the people to whom the latter cards were sent gave false addresses and are therefore illegally registered.

Recanvass Is Ordered.

The names of these 60,000 persons were transmitted to precinct election clerks with instructions to recanvass the names and addresses. The clerks were ordered to appear before the board of election commissioners on Monday and Tuesday and make application to have erased from the poll books the names of all persons illegally registered.

Several election clerks were questioned last night by Eugene J. O'Connor, chief investigator for the blue sky division of the state attorney's office, concerning fraudulent registrations. Mr. O'Connor is in charge of election fraud inquiries for the prosecutor's office.

Leo Novak, 50 years old, 4941 Pensacola avenue, a notary, was arrested on a charge of making fraudulent attestations on the petitions of two men represented to be candidates for Republican committeemen in the 38th ward. The men named as candidates were Peter Gerharz, 4839 Roscoe street, and Oscar Swanberg, 2600 North New England avenupe. Gerharz's petition was knocked out by the election board, and Swanberg could not be found at the New England avenue address.

Threatens Board Members.

Attorney Marcus A. Colberg visited the state's attorney's office yesterday and announced he was seeking the indictment of the three members of the election board on charges of malfeasance for barring his client, Leonard C. M. Johnson, from the ballot as Republican committeeman candidate in the 36th ward. Colberg also filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the board to place Johnson's name on the ballot.

Objections to Johnson's candidacy petition had been filed before the board by Fred H. Simon, 5141 Fullerton avenue, who charged that signatures to the petition were fictitious. Colberg produced affidavits from 450 signers. Investigator O'Connor ordered Simon to appear for questioning.

COLLEGES TURN OUT 'POOR STUFF,' DECLARES WHITE

Emporia, Kas., March 27.—(AP)—William Allen White, noted editor and author, tonight said most colleges were turning out "pretty poor stuff."

Addressing alumni and faculty members of church-related colleges of Kansas, White said too many young people viewed a college today as a training school for success.

"The kind of men and women which the state colleges and most of the other great colleges are turning out of our great state-leader factories today is pretty poor stuff," White asserted.

He told of seeing in the orient many graduates of church colleges who "were giving their lives where they thought it would count." He urged support of Christian colleges.

KUNZ COERCING WPA MEN, SAYS ROSTENKOWSKI

Ald. Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d], running for reëlection as ward committeeman on the Bundesen regular Democratic ticket, said yesterday that he would complain to Works Progress administration authorities that Stanley H. Kunz, his opponent, a Horner supporter, has been attempting to coerce WPA workers into attending Horner meetings.

"Kunz, I am told," Ald. Rostenkowski said, "has been informing these unfortunates that failure to attend Horner meetings may be detrimental to their interests."

"These WPA workers tell me that they are afraid to remain away from the meetings because they might be fired, and equally afraid to go because they might be asked to make campaign contributions."

GLENN ASSAILS INTIMIDATION BY BLACK SNOOPERS

Example of New Dealers' Tyranny, He Says.

Otis F. Glenn, Republican candidate for United States senator from Illinois, yesterday tore into activities of the Black committee at Washington, which recently grabbed five million private telegraph messages. He called the committee's action an example of New Deal intimidation of citizens on a Russianized model.

Mr. Glenn, a former senator, during the day received assurances of support from leaders in all Republican groups as a nonfactional candidate.

Cites Two Occurrences.

"Two recent occurrences of official intimidation of those who hav studied and criticized policies of the national government have attracted the country's attention to such practices," said Mr. Glenn.

"One is the treatment accorded Gen. Hagood, who saw fit to criticize before a house committee some of the extravagant practices in the war department. He was suspended for three months and deprived of his command. He has served 40 years in the army, and only two other officers of his rank exceed him in service.

"The second instance is the work of the Black committee of the senate, which was authorized to investigate lobbying. Apparently its activities are confined to the investigation of all organizations and certain individuals who have opposed some of the important parts of the New Deal program. Their private correspondence has been demanded and in some cases seized.

Record in Senate Told.

"When I was in the senate I stood against official oppressions and tyrannies. The preservation of civil liberty is as vital today as when the government was founded."

William E. Hull of Peoria, ex-congressman, who is seeking the Republican senatorship nomination, will wind up his downstate campaign today and spend the final fortnight of the campaign in Cook county. Hull told his audiences yesterday that if the New Deal is retained there will be no way to prevent Washington tax hunters from assessing church property in the United States.

"I do not say Mr. Roosevelt wants to tax the churches," said Hull, "but his spending policies make it impossible for him to escape this action long."

Orville J. Taylor, also seeking the G. O. P. senatorship nomination, in a Forty-second ward speech last night argued that a Chicago candidate should be nominated.

Claims Downstate Support.

"Chicago will be sold down river," he said, "unless steps are taken to halt political deals. I will have substantial support from downstate citizens who realize Chicago is entitled to one senator this year, and that a Chicago Republican stands the best chance of winning."

In the Republican race for nomination for state auditor, a Cook county lawyers' committee was launched yesterday in behalf of Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, Republican leader in the senate. Searcy originally was a candidate for governor but switched to the auditorship "in the hope of Republican harmony."

WPA TOO ACTIVE AT PRESENT TO SUIT MR. FLYNN

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, Democratic committeeman of the 13th ward, complained yesterday that the Works Progress administration interferes with his personal street repair project, which he customarily launches just before an election. To a reporter whom he believed to be a WPA superintendent Flynn declared that he will lose votes through this.

"The WPA program is preventing me from filling holes in the pavements, which I have always done before elections to pick up votes," Flynn said. "At election time I used to spend $500 for truck hire and labor, and with cinders given to me by industrial plants, I'd do street patching in the ward.

"Now WPA is using all the cinders available—even paying for them—and I can't get any as I used to. So I had a truck pick up a load of broken-up asphalt from a WPA street resurfacing project to fill some holes in my own alley. I had hardly started before some WPA officials came around raising hell and made me quit. What am I to do?"

ILL, RESCUED FROM BLAZE.

EDUCATOR HERE

The world is on the retrograde toward universal despotism, and only the English speaking peoples yet retain the framework of civilization built upon liberty, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, said last evening before the Chicago Columbia and Barnard associations. A dinner for Dr. Butler was given in the University club.

Citing the rise of despotism in Russia, Italy, and Germany and the rejection of English conceptions of liberty by the orient and the Balkan peoples, Dr. Butler warned that anything can happen. He said that civilization is at a great turning point.

The first manifestation of despotism, he said, is the stamping out of free thought, speech, writing, and individual action. Great universities, landmarks of freedom and pillars of civilization all over the world, are being closed by despots—Fascist, Nazi, or communistic, he declared.

"It is to the universities of England and the United States, and to the citizenry willing to fight for liberty, that the world must look for its only hope of halting world chaos," Dr. Butler said.

DIETERICH DENIES RIFT WITH LEWIS OVER COURT POST

From Beardstown, his home, United States Senator William H. Dieterich declared yesterday that no action will be taken for thirty or sixty days on filling the vacancy in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals caused by the death of Judge Louis FitzHenry. Washington dispatches had said that Senator Dieterich and Senator James Hamilton Lewis were at odds over whether the successor should come from downstate or Chicago.

"The discussions between Senator Lewis and myself have not progressed far enough for it to be determined if we are in agreement or disagreement," said Senator Dieterich.

He indicated, however, he felt that either District Judges Charles G. Briggle of Springfield or J. Earle Major of Hillsboro should receive first consideration on the ground that Judge FitzHenry's home was in Bloomington.

SEN. BORAH FILES AS PRESIDENT CANDIDATE IN OREGON PRIMARIES

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] today took another step in his move to obtain popular indorsement for his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination by filing his name as a candidate in the primary elections in Oregon.

The step was announced by Carl G. Bachmann, his campaign manager, who pointed out that this brings to a total of six the states in which the senator has entered primaries. Ten delegates to the Republican convention in Cleveland will be chosen in Oregon. As yet, Mr. Bachmann said, no other candidates have filed, but Oregon lists do not close until Tuesday.

It was disclosed that Senator Borah would confer here tomorrow with Russell Gates, his campaign manager in New Jersey. After this conference the Idahoan was expected to decide definitly whether he would enter the New Jersey primaries.

BILL REGULATING LOBBYISTS WINS HOUSE APPROVAL

Senate Votes $12,500 More for Black Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—The house and senate both struck at lobbyists today, the house passing without a record vote a drastic measure calling for the registration of all persons engaged in efforts to influence legislation and demanding detailed statements of contributions, expenditures and salaries, and the senate, quickly and without debate, approving a resolution appropriating an additional $12,500 for the so-called Black investigating committee.

At the same time a dispute over the conduct of the Black committee was aired on the floor of the senate, after Senator Steiwer declared that the communications commission's report on the seizure of telegrams could not "be construed as a vindication of the procedure."

Senator Black retorted that Mr. Steiwer was using "veiled charges and veiled accusations" to suit the ends of interests which are attempting to defeat the committee investigation.

Measure Goes to Senate.

The bill passed by the house will be sent to the senate Monday, where it probably will be reconciled with the anti-lobby bill passed last year by that body. The house measure was more severe than the one introduced by Senator Black, but a satisfactory compromise is expected to be reached.

The measure provides for the registration of all persons engaged in soliciting and expenditure of funds for the purpose of influencing legislation, including partnerships, committees, associations, corporations, or any other organization or groups of persons.

Political committees defined by the corrupt practices act would be exempted from the provisions of the bill.

Scope Is Outlined.

All persons seeking the enactment or defeat of legislation, appropriations or repeal of existing laws would be required to abide by the measure, as well as those who attempt "to influence, directly, or indirectly, the election or defeat of any candidate for any federal office."

Persons who accept employment as lobbyists or for the purpose of promoting or defeating legislation would be required to register with the clerk of the house and the secretary of the senate before beginning employment. They would be required to list the amount of salary received, the name of their employer, and the amount of expenses allowed. Each registered lobbyist would have to file a report every three months as long as his activity continued.

Another provision requires periodical statements "and the names of any papers, periodicals magazines, or other publications in which he had caused to be published any articles or editorials."

BROOKS GAINING, CROWDS AT HIS MEETINGS SHOW

Revived G. O. P. Interest Is Reported.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rock Island, Ill., March 27.—[Special.]—Wayland Brooks completed his third week of intensive downstate campaigning for the nomination as Republican candidate for governor with four addresses in the western part of the state today. He addressed large massmeetings at Rock Island and Moline tonight and earlier in the day spoke to enthusiastic gatherings at Kewanee and Morrison.

Mr. Brooks traveled more than 1,000 miles through the central part of the state in the last week. He made eighteen addresses and held organization meetings with party leaders of twenty-two counties.

In many of the cities and towns where he visited, the attendance at his political rallies has been greater than in any of the last two or three election years, according to party leaders. The big audiences, they say, are due to two factors—the popularity of Mr. Brooks and a revived interest in the Republican party.

Given Edge at Kewanee.

At Kewanee in Henry county, where Mr. Brooks spoke this afternoon, Republican leaders stated that Mr. Brooks has an edge over his nearest competitor with his position being strengthened steadily.

The strong Republican county of Henry, according to Oscar D. Peterson, chairman of the county central committee, will show a big increase in the Republican majority this year.

"Emphatically, there has been a big increase in Republican sentiment in this territory during the last two years," he said. "This was one of the few counties of the state that came through for the Republican party in 1932 and there is no question that there will be a large gain in the Republican majority in the fall election this year."

New Deal Failure Cited.

Mr. Brooks told his Rock Island audience that the vast army of the unemployed has proven the failure of the New Deal policy of "spending our way" to prosperity.

At the same time, he stated, the national capital is inadequate "to house the army of burocrats and pay rollers now on the backs of our people."

"In three years," he said, "228,000 employés have been added to the federal pay roll. If you are looking for prosperity it is in Washington hotels, apartments, and boarding houses. They are enjoying a prosperity never before known. Its streets are full of official cars. Every suburb and city within riding distance is filled with the army of burocrats and petty officials now controling our lives from Washington."

PREDICTS LANDON WILL BE PLEDGED MOST OF KENTUCKY DELEGATES

Barbourville, Ky., March 27.—(AP)—Representative John M. Robsion, Kentucky's only Republican congressman, tonight predicted seven of the state's nine congressional districts would instruct their delegates for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the G. O. P. presidential nomination.

Robsion forecast one district probably would instruct for Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, and that the other would be "noncommital."

His expression followed a declaration earlier today by Representative Taylor, Republican leader of Tennessee, that Gov. Landon probably would receive most of Tennessee's votes at the national convention.

In Louisville, party leaders, including supporters of both Landon and Knox, were reported to have agreed to send an uninstructed Kentucky delegation to the Cleveland convention.

CONVENTION POLL IN MAINE ASKED BY LANDON MAN

South Portland, Me., March 27.—(AP)—George H. Minott, former state senator, requested today a poll of delegates to the Republican state convention at Bangor next week to determine their presidential preference. Minott is a delegate to the convention.

His request was contained in a telegram to State Chairman Arthur E. Sewall.

Minott said supporters of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas sought the poll.

"I have talked," said Minott, "with a great many Republicans of late on the question of a presidential nominee and I have found overwhelming sentiment for Gov. Landon."

Train on 'Abandoned' Line Takes Autoist by Surprise

Battle Creek, Mich., March 27.—[Special.]—Frank Jones, 53, of Bronson, Mich., was surprised when his automobile struck a freight train at a crossing of the Goshen line south of here. He knew the Michigan Central had abandoned its Goshen branch five months ago, but he didn't know a wrecking company was using a train in the removal of the tracks. He was injured, but not seriously.

ANTI-TRUST LAW DECISION HITS WALLACE PAPER

Farm Publications Must Pay for Monopoly.

Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead, a farm paper of which Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, is now "editor on leave of absence," and four other farm journals were ordered yesterday to pay damages of $37,000 for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals here affirmed a decision of the federal District court in Indianapolis awarding the damages to the Indiana Farmers' Guide Publishing company of Huntington, Ind. Defendants in the suit were the members of the Midwest Farm Paper Unit, Inc., including the Wallace Publishing company, publishers of Wallace's Farmer; the Prairie Farmer Publishing company, Wisconsin Farmer company, McKelvie Publishing company, and Webb Publishing company.

Treble Damages Imposed.

The Appellate court's judgment represents treble damages in a suit for $10,000 brought by the Farmers' Guide, plus $7,000 attorneys' fees.

The case involved advertising rates charged by the farm paper group during the period from 1928 to 1932. Accusations were made that the farm papers in the combination had acquired a substantial monopoly of the advertising in this type of paper, and that the setup destroyed competition and was an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The case was originally tried a few years ago, when both the lower court and the Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against it on the ground of no jurisdiction. They held that the interstate character of the matters involved had not been shown.

Supreme Court Orders Retrial.

The Farmers' Guide appealed to the United States Supreme court, which reversed the decisions of the lower tribunals and ordered the case retried. The second trial resulted in a jury verdict in favor of the plaintiffs.

Judge Evan A. Evans wrote the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals upholding the new decision, with the concurrence of Judges Will M. Sparks and Walter C. Lindley.

According to the charges in the pleadings, the defendants, including the Wallace Publishing company [of which Wallace was the head at the time of the practices complained of], sought to freeze out competitors. It was charged that, beginning in 1928, the defendants offered joint advertising contracts whereby advertisers were given a special low rate if they advertised in all the papers published by the defendants.

Advertising Loss Set Forth.

The Farmers' Guide charged, as indication of monopolistic practices, that in 1928 the journals of the plaintiffs carried 44.3 per cent of farm paper advertising in eight states, and in 1932, 66.9 per cent, and that the combination "tends to, and does, destroy normal competition."

The Farmers' Guide held the effect was to take 600,000 lines of advertising from the Indiana journal.

Secretary Wallace and some of his family several years ago bought out the Iowa Homestead, a competing journal owned by Dante Pierce. When the depression forced the publication into a receivership Mr. Pierce took charge and withdrew the paper from the price fixing agreement of the Midwest Farm Unit, Inc. Mr. Wallace continued as editor of the paper until his appointment as secretary of agriculture, and the paper kept his name on the masthead.

Wallace Refusal of AAA Pay Data Stirs Rep. Taber's Anger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's excuse that a huge staf and six months' time would be required to list large payments to farmers under the AAA was branded as untrue and "barefaced covering up" by Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] in an address to the house today.

Taber revealed that he had asked Controler General McCarl to inform him concerning the amount of clerical work necessary to list all AAA payments of $2,000 and up, as demanded in a resolution introduced recently by Taber.

In answer to this resolution and to another of a similar nature introduced in the senate by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] Wallace had replied that the task imposed almost insuperable difficulties because of the work involved.

Comparatively Easy, He Contends.

"The controler general informs me," said Taber, "that 10 employés working on ten machines could list all AAA payments of $1,000 and more in 17 days. There are only 25,000 such payments and they could be listed with comparative ease.

"If the secretary of agriculture had wanted to give the congress the information to which it is entitled, he would have told us this.

"But it is perfectly apparent that it is not the desire of the AAA to take congress into its confidence. They evidently have something to cover up. Congress should assert its right in this matter."

Recalls Hagood Incident.

"Gen. Hagood last his job for telling the truth," remarked Representative Charles L. Gifford [Rep., Mass.]. "Maybe Wallace is afraid to let the truth get out."

"Some farmers in my state got more money from the AAA last year than their land was worth," commented Representative Dewey Short [Rep., Mo.].

"What about this story floating around that one member of congress received an AAA payment of $220,000 for curtailing production?" Representative Harold Knutson [Rep., Minn.] asked.

"A Racket," Taber Charges.

"It's not the President's fault," defended Representative Tom Blanton [Dem., Tex.]. "But he was mighty unfortunate in his choice of Wallace as his agent to run the agriculture department."

"Under Wallace the department has been run as a racket and a racket all along," agreed Taber.

"You want this information for purely political purposes," shouted Representative Walter M. Pierce [Dem., Ore.].

"We're entitled to the truth here," retorted Taber. "Why is Wallace afraid to give out this information? He's covering up for some good reason."

KLANSMEN IN ROBES MARCH ONCE MORE IN FLORIDA STREETS

Jacksonville, Fla. March 27.—(AP)—Led by a fiery cross, Florida Knights of the Ku Klux Klan silently filed through the Jacksonville business district tonight.

Several hundred men and women, garbed in flowing white robes, took part in the parade.

Most wore full masks with only two slits to permit them to see. A few bared their faces.

The parade was the feature of a meeting here held simultaneously with the trial of three men at Tampa for a fatal flogging. Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, and others have accused the klan of responsibility for the lashing, but leaders of the organization have denied complicity.

At the van of tonight's parade was an American flag. A drum and bugle organization was followed by an automobile with the great cross mounted on front.

Flame colored electric lights took the place of the traditional blazing cross.

It was the first time in years a klan parade or such magnitude has passed through Jacksonville streets, and was reminiscent of the days when the organization took an active part in Florida politics.

TRIBE STARVING, INDIAN CHARGES; ACCUSES ICKES

A Navajo Indian councilman, returning to his tribe near Gallup, N. M., after an interview with New Deal officials in Washington, stopped in Chicago yesterday long enough to blame Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and John B. Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs, for starvation conditions among his 44,000 tribesmen. He is Jacob C. Morgan, 56 years old, full blooded Navajo, a graduate of Hampton institute in Virginia.

Because the Navajo voted down the Wheeler-Howard act, which provided that the Navajo should be segregated from other races and that all Navajo property should be the common property of the tribe they are being punished, Morgan declared.

The tribe's flocks were cut from 1,500,000 to 600,000 under an agreement whereby the Navajo were to sell a number of their flocks to traders and in return were to receive a bounty for each sheep," he asserted.

"The Navajo sold many of their sheep at $2 a head and sat down to await the bounty," Morgan went on. "It has never arrived and my tribesmen have had to buy back their sheep at $10 a head in order to eat."

While here Morgan visited Mrs. Flora Warren Seymour, 4917 Blackstone avenue, an attorney, former member of the board of Indian commissioners, and author.

Roger Sullivan's Daughter Back Home to Aid Horner

Gov. Horner's campaign headquarters announced yesterday that Mrs. Mary Wolf, daughter of the late Roger Sullivan, Democratic leader, has returned to Chicago from a Florida vacation to participate actively in the governor's fight for renomination. Mrs. Wolf will become a member of the Horner women's organization of Cook county.

BORAH SLATES TOUR OF STATE OPENING APRIL 7

Chicago and Downstate Talks Scheduled.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho will start a platform tour of downstate Illinois on April 8, less than a week before the primaries, April 14, according to tentative plans received at his Illinois headquarters yesterday from Washington. The Idahoan is entered in the presidential preference primaries against Frank Knox, Chicago publisher.

The date of Mr. Borah's downstate appearance—a week later than originally planned—was deferred with a view to linking up the trip with an address in Wisconsin. The primaries in that state are on April 7 and there are complete uninstructed and Borah pledged delegate slates in the field.

Milwaukee Talk Slated.

The Idaho senator, according to the tentative plans, will speak in Milwaukee April 6, the day before the Wisconsin primaries.

On April 7, while the Wisconsin primaries are being held, Borah is to come to Chicago. Tentative plans are for a rally at the Auditorium. The senator spoke in Chicago last Saturday night. The downstate itinerary as now projected, subject to change, would take Borah to Aurora, Ottawa and Streator for daylight speeches on April 8, with a night meeting in Peoria.

A daylight stop at Bloomington and a night rally at Decatur are set for April 9. The next day the schedule calls for stops at Champaign and Urbana and a night meeting at Danville. Southern Illinois may be reached with a radio address from St. Louis on April 11.

Knox to Move North.

Mr. Knox, who is now downstate, will cover the northern counties this coming week.

Meanwhile scouts coming up from downstate brought tidings of growing sentiment for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, especially in the northern agricultural counties. The Kansan is not entered in the preferential primaries. There are no complete slates of delegates.

Returning travelers report that many candidates for delegates to the national convention at Cleveland are talking for Landon as a second choice after the complimentary ballotting is over and after the advisory effects of the preferential primary are held to have been satisfied.

One poll yesterday was reported taken in Lee county which showed Knox, 27; Landon, 25, and Borah, 52.

Straw Vote for Borah.

A straw vote in Wayne, Hamilton, Franklin, Jefferson, Marion, and Perry counties in southern Illinois, as made public by the St. Louis division of the "Public Opinion Bureau," yielded: Knox, 193; Borah, 536.

Borah headquarters announced yesterday that Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York will speak in Wendell Phillips High school on April 7 on "The Constitution and the Anti-Lynching Bill." Later he will speak in Elgin, Joliet, and Rockford on "Why I Am for Borah."

STATE ACCEPTS SIX TO TRY 3 POLICEMEN IN FLOG KIDNAPING

Tampa, Fla., March 27.—[Special.]—A petit jury of six men was accepted by the state today for the trial of three suspended Tampa policemen charged with kidnaping in the Shoemaker flogging death cases. The defense exercised its right of challenge, however, and the jury still was incomplete tonight.

The prospective jurors were questioned at length concerning their beliefs on American ideals and communism. Defense counsel for the three former officers, C. A. Brown, John Bridges and C. W. Carlisle, said they hoped to prove the flogging victims had communistic connections.

Today's procedure in the case was marked by a long distance exchange of words between Defense Counsel Pat Whitaker and Norman Thomas of New York, former Socialist party candidate for President.

Whitaker charged that the committee for the defense of civil liberties in Tampa, of which Thomas is national chairman, was a communistic organization.

"The committee's sole aim," Thomas' telegram said, "is to protect the American tradition of civil liberties, a tradition grossly dishonored by a series of floggings in Florida."

OLSON HITS HIGH COURT; DEMANDS SOCIALIST ORDER

First Talk Since Illness to Party Parley.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—[Special.]—Sharply assailing the United States Supreme court, Gov. Floyd B. Olson today reiterated his demands for a new social order, but classified the whole program as a national rather than a state problem. He spoke before the state convention of the Farmer-Labor party. He is its candidate for senator.

Reminiscent of his speech before a similar convention two years ago when he voiced the principles of a "coöperative commonwealth," the governor urged abandonment of the existing economic system and replacement of it with one of government ownership and "collective enterprise."

Urges Peaceful Methods.

He cautioned the party to set up the new plan through "peaceful and orderly process of law," placing before it a proposed amendment to the federal constitution which would give congress authority to regulate business, industry, and agriculture, take over their operation, and set up a system of old age pensions, unemployment benefits, and relief for persons who cannot obtain work.

He devoted the main portion of his address to an attack upon the courts, accusing the United States Supreme court of "legalistic hypocrisy," and suggesting that its powers be curbed by requiring seven of its nine members to agree on a decision adversely affecting the national constitution before it could become effective. He laid to the courts the activity for curbing social and economic legislation "so as to favor property rights as against the rights of the human being."

Would Limit Their Terms.

"It seems to me that the most effective means of checking the despotism of the federal judiciary is to adopt the same check that is used by most of the states with reference to state judges—a limited term of office rather than a life term," he asserted. "I propose, therefore, an amendment to the constitution which shall provide that members of the Supreme court and its inferior courts shall hold office for a term not to exceed 10 years."

He extended an invitation to other groups to form a third party, saying he was "willing to join" in such a move.

FINE FISHING LUCK MET BY ROOSEVELT IN CARIBBEAN SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 27.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt on the fourth day of his annual fishing cruise in the Carribean sea found bait which lured deep sea fish from their ocean lairs.

In the Caicos bank he had a catch of large kingfish, groupers, mackerel, and barracuda. He told of his catch in a radio to Assistant White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre at the temporary White House in the Miami Biltmore hotel. The radio read:

"We have had particularly fine fishing at Caicos. Large kingfish, groupers, mackerel and barracuda. We are now proceeding on Potomac to Mariguana Island and will try the fishing there before sunset. Having fine weather and pleasant seas."

Mariguana Island is northwest of the Caicos bank. It lies directly north by 50 miles of the channel between Cuba and Haiti. In dropping anchor at the island the President moved about 30 miles nearer the United States coast. He still is more than 400 miles from the Miami base which keeps him in touch with affairs at Washington and of the nation.

SUITS PLANNED OVER ABANDONED HOUSING PROJECT

A massmeeting of property owners in the area bounded by 37th and 39th streets, South Park way and Cottage Grove avenue, where a proposed $7,000,000 housing project has been abandoned by the federal Public Works administration, has been called for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Chicago Council of Negro organizations.

At this meeting, to be held in a chapel at 442 East 39th street, plans will be discussed to bring damage suits against the government for not going through with the project. The council represents forty religious, civic, and social groups.

Taps were sounded for the federal housing project last Wednesday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan when he dismissed eight separate condemnation proceedings filed by the PWA more than a year ago.

SOBS AND TELLS HOW SHE LOVED MAN SHE KILLED

Blonde Slayer on Stand in Own Defense.

be brought into this trial," he said firmly.

Dr. Gebhardt first told her he loved her after his return from Europe in March, 1935, Miss Stretz testified. She described him as a brilliant man, "an unusually clever man," an ardent lover, gallant, attentive to women, warm, and vivacious.

Miss Stretz said she told the economist that she was astonished that he, a married man, should speak to her of love, and that he assured her that he and Mrs. Gebhardt "were husband and wife in name only." "Around May 17," the defendant admitted, she surrendered to Dr. Gebhardt, while on a visit to Lake George.

She said she loved him "very, very dearly." Then more sobs.

Love Letters Introduced.

At the point the first of the love letters were introduced and evoked more tears. Leibowitz read the letters to the jury and they drank in every word. The audience, too, eaged forward.

"You know how I dread being earnestly melodramatic," said one of Miss Stretz's early letters, "but, at the risk of appearing so, let me write that our friendship has already disentangled the real men from the maze of camouflage I've worn three years.

"O, Fritzi, how I must force myself now to write the confession that came from feeling our friendship was something sacred. Then how doubly despised the men who sullied it in its various stages.

"You, Fritz, have a family, whom I have learned to admire through your stories about them. The family, as a European institution, is something I appreciate.

No Secondary Place.

"But, more important, to betray and deceive a wife who has been and is so much to a man—and he to her—cannot be right. Those were my thoughts last week. Last night when you discussed 'in diese beigeben—Richtung' [translated as 'In this compromise course'] I felt vaguely that in this way she would learn that he is not the husband she thinks him. That, too, would be wrong.

"I realize now that my other thought—that you were suggesting a secondary place for me—was false in this instance. I realize no wthat you were suggesting a great honor for me.

"The thought accounts for that 'refusal'—a thought caused by my upbringing, partly by my American environment—or does it go even deeper?"

The economist's first letters in English swung into the love theme toward the end, with:

"I wish you could feel my kiss, Veralein."

It was signed "Your Fritz."

Judge Puts In Question.

Judge Collins, who unwittingly found himself addressing the tear stained witness as "Vera," put in a question after the defense introduced the ring Gebhardt gave her.

"You knew you couldn't be married so long as he was not divorced from his wife?"

"Yes," she whispered.

"And you had already advised him that you could not be married under the circumstances?"

Miss Stretz nodded.

Miss Stretz said she worked for Dr. Gebhardt, in his 5th avenue office, only because she wanted to be near him. The $10 he paid her weekly meant nothing.

Dr. Gebhardt warned her to keep secret, at the office, the relationship between them, the witness testified.

Starts Story with Education.

Under the guidance of her attorney the girl started her story by describing her education, her trip abroad, the circumstances of her purchase of the revolver, and her meeting with and subsequent relations with Dr. Gebhardt.

On Gebhardt's return from abroad in March, 1935, she said he became devoted to her, visited her daily, and sent flowers to her. Miss Stretz, as she told of their mutual fondness, covered her face with her hands and sobbed.

"It's hard for me," she gasped as she struggled to regain her composure.

She became fond of him, she explained, "not only because of his attentions but because of his brilliance—he was an unusually clever man."

Q.—Was he an ardent lover? A.—Yes.

Q.—Gallant? A.—Yes.

She said he first told her that he loved her in March, 1935.

"He said he had been thinking of her all the time," she said. "Then he said I was wonderful, had marvelous capabilities he wanted to develop."

Miss Stretz gasped as if unable to get her breath. Women spectators whispered and Frank Stretz, the defendant's musician father, called a low-voiced "good luck" to her as she pulled herself together again in the witness chair.

Married for Two Months.

Q.—Now, Miss Stretz, were you ever married before? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many years ago? A.—Twelve years ago.

Q.—That was while you were still a student? A.—Yes.

Q.—It was an elopement? A.—Yes.

Q.—That marriage didn't last very long? A.—Only two months.

Q.—The marriage was annulled? A.—Yes.

Q.—Since that time have you been married to anybody else? A.—No.

Mr. Leibowitz picked up the snub-nosed, .32 caliber, blue steel revolver with which Dr. Gebhardt was slain, and moved toward the witness stand.

Mr. Leibowitz—Miss Stretz, I'm sorry, but I must ask you if you recognize this revolver. A.—Yes, I do.

Q.—Some time ago, did you purchase a revolver. A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, will you tell us when that was? A.—It was shortly after mother's death in May, 1930.

Q.—Now, please tell his honor and the jury what the occasion was for purchasing it; how you came to buy it? A.—Well, that neighborhood where I lived had gotten run down and became bad, and there were a great many robberies around where we lived. A close neighbor of mine was robbed and I heard that my brother had been threatened and I got it to protect the house.

Studied in Germany.

Q.—Did you study in Germany? A.—Yes, I went to summer school at the University of Munich.

Q.—In December, 1934, did you take a cruise on a ship to the West Indies? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the name of the ship? A.—The Vulcania, of the Italian line.

Q.—Do you know a Dr. Kesser? A.—He was a friend of the family for years.

Q.—Prior to this cruise, did you have conversations with Dr. Kesser when the name of Fritz Gebhardt was mentioned? A.—No.

Q.—Up to that time did you ever meet a man named Fritz Gebhardt? A.—No.

Q.—You got on the ship at New York. What was the first port? A.—Kingston.

Q.—Tell us how you met Gebhardt. A.—Well, I met two people on the boat—I met Gebhardt through them and one evening later he asked me my name again. We became very friendly when he discovered I talked German as well as I did. He didn't talk English very well.

Hunt Amusement Together.

They stopped off at Havana on the return trip, and she went to many places of amusement with Dr. Gebhardt.

"We were looking for Cuban atmosphere," she said. "Then we danced at the National hotel. Our friendship was very deep at this time without any sentiment involved. While we were dancing he wished me a happy New Year and he told me he was looking for a great love. He asked me if I knew what he meant.

She then described an episode in which Dr. Gebhardt "wanted to make love." Mr. Liebowitz asked, "Were you willing to make love?"

"He said he wanted to make love," was the answer. "He told me a great love makes a man creative and gives a woman children. We went dancing another night at one of the hotels."

Q.—Did anything transpire between you and Dr. Gebhardt while in Havana? A.—That's where he kissed me the first time. I didn't think anything of it. He also kissed Mildred.

Miss Stretz then recalled how they returned on the ship to New York.

Q.—Did Gebhardt ask you for your telephone number? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was the first time he told you he loved you? A.—It was when he returned from Europe, some time in March, 1935.

Q.—What response did you make when he said he loved you? A.—I said that I didn't believe in love.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said, "all right," he would teach me. I was amazed. He had always been a wonderful friend and I said I wanted to remain friends.

Q.—It was one of those things that a woman says to a man? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you love this man? A.—Yes.

Q.—Intensely? A.—Yes.

Q.—What came of that, when you told him that you didn't love him? A.—I don't remember the exact words. I enjoyed his friendship, so I told him that he could try to make me love him.

Visit to Lake George.

Q.—When was the first time you had intimate relations with him?

The witness paused for more than a minute, and in a faltering voice answered:

"When he was ready—he wanted me—I think it was the middle of May, around May 17.

Q.—What was the occasion for your first relations? A.—We were at Lake George and he asked me to go to a hotel with him. He registered at the hotel as man and wife. I objected to him registering that way and told him that it was because I was not his wife.

Q.—Did you have intimate relation with him on that occasion? A.—Yes.

Q.—What made you yield to him? A.—I loved him.

Q.—Did you love him in a physical sense. A.—Yes.

Q.—Love him from a mental standpoint? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you madly in love with him. A.—I loved him very, very dearly.

The defendant's voice broke into a convulsive sob at this point.

Reads Another Letter.

Mr. Leibowitz then read a letter, dated May 28, 1935, and written by Miss Stretz to Dr. Gebhardt while he was abroad.

"I despise myself for ever having let myself get into this situation," she wrote. "I always wish I were strong enough to go on alone . . . to betray and deceive a wife cannot be right. . . . The basis of my self-contempt was the good old fashioned theorem that sexual intercourse is so sacred and lovely a union of everything beautiful and fine. What makes me happy is the discovery that I still believe that."

SUBMIT PLAN TO KEEP MILWAUKEE NEWSPAPER INTACT

Milwaukee, Wis., March 27.—(AP)—A petition was filed in County court today asking approval of sale of the late L. W. Nieman's 55 per cent interest in the Milwaukee Journal for $3,850,000 under a plan giving control to Harry J. Grant, the publisher, and providing for employé acquisition of majority of the stock.

Trustees of the estate of Nieman, who founded the Journal, would sell his 1,100 shares to the Journal company, Grant and Miss Faye McBeath, Nieman's niece. Grant has been executive vice president since 1919. Miss McBeath is a Journal employé, and for several years has assisted in the management of her uncle's interests.

The petitioners said Grant was largely responsible for the present value of the newspaper stock and added that he had demonstrated his ability to carry out the policies Nieman established and ordered carried forward after his death.

To further perpetuate the employé organization, a block of stock in excess of $1,000,000 is to be made available at attractive terms for employé participation in ownership.

Nieman died last fall. His will directed that equal shares of the stock sale proceeds go to his widow and Miss McBeath.

Mrs. Nieman died last month. After making bequests totaling more than $200,000, she left the balance of her estate to Harvard university to be used "to promote and elevate the standards of journalism in the United States and educate persons deemed especially qualified for journalism." Including her share of the stock sale receipts, her estate was estimated at more than $2,000,000.

Three of Mrs. Nieman's cousins are contesting her will.

KING EDWARD BREAKS TRADITION; CONFERS HIGH HONOR ON MOTHER

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 27.—King Edward VIII. of Great Britain conferred an unprecedented honor today upon his mother, Queen Mary. He appointed her grand master of the Order of the British Empire. This is the first time in history that a woman has held the office of great master or grand master of one of the orders of chivalry.

Edward was grand master while prince of Wales, but on succeeding to the throne he became sovereign of the order and the post of grand master became vacant.

The tradition of male grand masters goes back to the 14th century, when the Order of the Garter and the Order of the Bath were founded. King Edward broke this tradition as a sign of devotion to his mother.

Governor Assails Trial; Seeks New Reprieve.

Hauptmann's counsel is ready to argue the application tomorrow or Monday, whenever the court consents to hear him.

Hauptmann Has Hope.

Hauptmann, in his death house cell today, was reported to be optimistic. He was visited by his wife who saw him for almost the last time if he is to die Tuesday. Sunday visits are barred as are visits on the day of execution.

Reports that Hauptmann had changed his story about how he obtained the ransom money were denied by Col. Mark O. Kimberling, keeper of the prison.

"I am somewhat amazed and amused at the statements attributed to Prosecutor Hauck particularly his expression that I am trying to make a 'laughing stock' of the courts," the governor said. "Mr Hauck is the young man who told the Hunterdon county jury that he was going to prove that John Hughes Curtis actually had contract with the 'gang' that kidnaped the Lindbergh baby. He proved it, and then he later participated in the trial which 'proved' that Bruno Richard Hauptmann committed this crime single handed. Mr. Hauck was so confused and so incompetent that the latter trial was taken out of his hands and conducted by the attorney general.

Welcomes Investigation.

"As to the legislative investigation—I would sincerely welcome it. I think it would be a very healthy thing to have the legislature authorize an investigation of the activities of the governor, the attorney general, the superintendent of state police, the prosecutor of Hunterdon county, and any of their representatives who may have participated in any way in the Lindbergh case. This investigation also should include an examination of the costs of this case.

"On Jan. 17, when I granted a reprieve to Hauptmann, exercising a right that had previously been exercised by many governors, I stated that there would be no further reprieve unless the attorney general might agree with me such a reprieve would be necessary.

"I stated at that time that I did not consider that I had the legal right to grant a reprieve extending 90 days beyond Dec. 13, when the warant of execution was signed by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

Eager to Grant Stay.

"If the brilliant Mr. Hauck and his legal advisers will advise me that I do have that right, I shall be glad to exercise it, because I am more firmly convinced than ever that Hauptmann was not given a trial in line with what we consider to be American standards of justice, and that the whole case reeks with unfairness, passion, and prejudice—so much so that it even brought down the censure of a special committee of the American Bar association. I believe that other persons were connected with the crime, and that the state police are making no honest effort to find them.

"I am wondering what prompts the sudden and jealous protection of the famous ladder and floor boards. Every one knows that this ladder has been pulled apart a dozen or more times and that fingerprints of nearly every one but Hauptmann were found on it."

"I feel that the governor's motives are purely political," Hauck replied. "If he has any proof of unfairness, passion, or prejudice, or that Hauptmann is innocent, or that others are involved he never has given such information to the attorney general or to myself. We would welcome such information."

Senate Asks for Report on Europeans' War Debt Status

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—A bipartisan attack in the senate against what was termed repudiation of British and French war debts ended today with a Democratic request to ascertain if the administration has made any fresh efforts to collect.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, ranking Republican of the foreign relations committee, and Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, a Democratic member of the same committee, took Britain and France to task for failing to make remittances on their war obligations. The contention was pressed that recent speeches in foreign parliaments meant full repudiation was in prospect.

Asks for Report.

The two speeches were followed quickly by a question from Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] as to whether the foreign relations committee had any information that the administration had notified the debtors recently that millions were due and overdue which the American taxpayers had furnished to assist the allies at the height of the world war.

Borah told the senate something should be done. At the same time, however, he opposed the McAdoo resolution to set up another debt commission to negotiate fresh settlements.

"There is no occasion," he asserted, "for indicating that we propose to make another contract which in due time also will be repudiated."

No Intention to Pay.

Borah said the debate which took place in the house of commons yesterday between Lloyd George and Sir Austin Chamberlain "indicates unmistakably, taken in connection with the things which had preceded, that it is not the intention of Great Britain to pay its debt to us."

"The whole structure of international order," the Idahoan declared, "depends upon adhering to, obeying, and carrying out international agreements, and there is not a contract or a treaty involved in the chaotic conditions which now embroil Europe which entails any greater obligation, legal or moral, than the obligation to pay these debts which were contracted to be paid after a thorough investigation.

"It is claimed that Germany has ignored the obligations of the Versailles treaty, and that Italy has ignored the obligations of the league covenant, and that by reason of these actions, Europe has been placed again in a state of chaos and turmoil.

All in Same Class.

"There is no difference in law and morals, in international obligations, between the act of Germany and the act of Italy and the acts of these nations in repudiating these debts.

"Greater consequences may flow from one than from the other. There may be differences in that respect, but so far as moral or legal obligation goes the nations are just as much bound to respect these obligations as Germany was to respect the Versailles treaty, and infinitely more, because Germany signed the Versailles treaty under duress, at the point of the bayonet, while these debtor contracts were made after full, free, deliberate investigation and agreement to pay."

Lewis referred to Foreign Minister Flandin's statement that France would not allow her people to pay America "on a false claim of debt," and that America really owed France for "saving her" from destruction by Germany.

"We are asking nothing not due us," Lewis said. "We are not asking of these nations to pay us only because they owe us. We call to their attention our flagrant and open needs. The war we fought with them has left us a debt to our own people of billions. The needs of our poor and the distresses of the depressed years make demand for billions of money to preserve millions of human beings."

Off the floor, Democratic Leader Robinson, who represented the United States at a former naval conference abroad, meanwhile issued a statement asserting the results of the latest parley were "disappointing," but that it was not surprising, "with sea powers such as Japan and Italy declining to participate."

KIN OF TORTURE VICTIM SLAYS OFFICER IN DUEL

Dramatic Spanish Revolt Incident Revealed.

BY HENRY BUCKLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, March 27.—Among the many incidents of the Asturias revolt in 1934 and its consequences, which are coming to light now that the censorship has been lifted since the Spanish elections, is the dramatic death of Lieut. Alonso Nart of Spain's Foreign Legion, who was shot through the heart in a duel by the brother of a man whom he had tortured in Asturias.

Lieut. Nart was reported in the newspapers not long ago as having been shot during a hunting trip in Spanish Morocco. But the circumstances were very different.

Leader of Torture Gang.

Nart was one of the prominent figures in the repression which went on for three or four months after the revolt was over. He was in charge in the village of Carbayin, where thirty-two miners were tortured and beaten for many days while secrets of the organization of the revolt were drawn from them.

Finally they were taken out and shot on a slag heap and gasoline poured over their bodies, which were later discovered half burned.

One of Nart's exploits was the arrest and torture of a village doctor suspected of some part in the movement. He was left a wreck.

Some months later the brother of this doctor returned home after a long absence and after hearing what had happened to his brother and also that the lieutenant had insulted their mother, he borrowed a revolver and set off for Melilla, in Morocco, where Nart was then stationed.

He found Nart playing cards in a local café and without more ado walked up to him and slapped his face. A duel was at once arranged and the two met next morning in a grim lonely corner of the Moroccan hills.

For once the aim of the officer of the Foreign Legion was not straight. His adversary shot him through the heart and escaped unhurt himself.

GERMANS FORM NEW COMPANY TO PRODUCE SYNTHETIC GASOLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 27.—Germany will soon be able to produce all the gasoline she needs as a result of a new hydro-generation process with hard coal, German experts asserted today.

Under the guidance of the Nazi government, the firm of Hugo Stinnes and the German dye trust are founding a new company which will erect a plant capable of turning out synthetic gasoline for 33 cents a gallon. This compares with the present cost of 66 cents a gallon because of the extraordinary duty imposed on foreign gasoline.

The new factory, which is expected to start operations on a large scale in ten months, will be an important factor in German rearmament, making Germany independent of foreign markets in case of war.

12,500,000 IDLE; CONGRESS EYES POSSIBLE ACTION

Hint of Move to Salvage Some Phases of NRA.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—A new Federation of Labor estimate that 12,500,000 Americans were jobless today coincided with indications of intensified interest in the unemployment problem by both the White House and congress.

The federation estimated that figure for February, saying it represented a decline of 95,000 from the previous month. The increase in employment was attributed largely to a pickup in agricultural employment due to spring planting.

Two developments within the last 24 hours gave substance to hints that both the administration and sections of congress believed some of the job spreading objectives of the invalidated National Recovery administration might be salvaged.

Move Gains in Senate.

Today a move gained headway for a senate investigation of labor conditions since the death of NRA. Yesterday President Roosevelt created a committee to make a roundup analysis of NRA's deeds.

In his relief message to congress less than a fortnight ago Mr. Roosevelt urged a coördinated effort on industry's part to whittle down the number of unemployed.

Maj. George L. Berry's council of labor and industrial spokesmen has joined the American Federation of Labor in the position that legislation to regulate wages and hours is needed to reduce unemployment.

The A. F. of L. said "industry as yet shows no signs of reëmploying any significant portion of the unemployed."

"In February," the unemployment report added, "the spring upturn had not yet started, and business activity still registered a decline.

Railroads Hire 52,000 More.

"Slight employment gains on the railroads [52,000] and in manufacturing [17,000] were more than offset by losses in building [83,000] and trade [37,000]. In agriculture alone was there any significant reëmployment, where 172,000 were taken on in preparation for the spring season.

"Remembering that the answer to unemployment is not relief but work in industry, it is significant to note that our relief rolls last year exceeded the pay rolls of our five largest industries: textile and clothing, railroads, building, machinery, iron and steel, and their products.

"These industries employed 4,737,000 [average] in 1935, while relief rolls averaged 4,798,000 cases."

Included in the federation's total of unemployed were the 3,853,000 on Works Progress administration jobs, and 117,000 on PWA projects.

RELIEF BUDGETS FOR APRIL TO BE CUT 8 PER CENT

A reduction of 8.4 per cent in April allotments to all county relief committees was decreed yesterday at a meeting of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which found itself lacking $519,034 of the $5,232,054 required for next month. The various county administrators will work out the cut as they see fit, so that in some counties certain families will have their relief budgets reduced more than 50 per cent, where no allowance is made for rent or other nonemergency items.

Four Candidates Missing.

Four politically minded commission members were absent—Chairman John C. Martin, regular Democratic candidate for state treasurer; State Treasurer John Stelle, anti-Horner candidate for lieutenant governor; State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, regular Democratic candidate for reëlection; and K. L. Ames Jr., state finance director.

Melvin L. Straus, Chicago banker, recent Horner appointee to the commission, wanted to make no budget cuts until the second half of April, when $200,000 additional sales tax revenue may become available. The primary election is April 14.

William H. Sexton, a commissioner who is counsel for the city council's traction committee, opposed this.

"Some one might accuse us of having an ulterior motive in delaying the cut," Mr. Sexton declared. "We had best follow a safe course and spread the reduction over the entire month."

Omar H. Wright, member from Belvidere, sided with Sexton, pointing out that if Straus' suggestion were followed, it might be necessary to make a doubly severe cut in the second half of April.

IERC Lists Its Many Tasks.

Looking forward to April 21, when the state legislature will resume its special session to consider a successor system to the IERC, the commission members received a report detailing the hundreds of duties of the IERC. Mr. Sexton said this will be shown to the legislature, forcefully to present the complex results which will follow abolition on May 1 of the IERC.

Speculation was heard that the legislature, with only nine days to devise a new and adequate relief system, may decide to extend the powers of the IERC.

E. E. Ferebee, chief statistician, warned the commissioners that estimates of April relief needs contain no provision for the thousands of WPA workers who are likely to go back on relief rolls after they are discharged under the present reduction program of the Works Progress administration.

3 EXILED POLISH LEADERS UNITE TO CAPTURE RULE

Paderewski, Haller and Witos Join Forces.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 27.—Gen. Joseph Haller, creator of the Polish-American army in France; Vincent Witos, chief of the Polish defense council in 1920, former premier and leader of the Peasant party, who is now living in exile in Czechoslovakia; and Ignace Paderewski, pianist, patriot, political leader, and former premier, have united their forces in an effort to wrest the leadership of the Polish government from the hands of the legionnaires of the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski. The Pilsudski forces have been in power in Warsaw since 1926.

Witos and Haller recently visited Paderewski at his exile home at Morges, Switzerland, where they conferred for a week discussing the present political and economic situation in Poland.

Report Complete Accord.

Leading Polish opposition newspapers published the following report of the conference: "The meeting of these three leading Polish patriots, who are opposing the present régime in Poland, resulted in their arriving at a complete understanding regarding the serious internal crisis through which Poland now is passing. The announcement that they have agreed upon a program to save Poland has aroused new hope among the Polish people.

"These men united in declaring that the present difficult situation in Poland is a result of the present foreign policy and of the execution of a deflation policy to the point where the entire country is impoverished. They call upon all constructive elements in Poland to coöperate to save the country."

Demand Share in Rule.

Behind the conference of these ousted leaders, who have enormous followings among Poles both at home and in the United States, stand powerful political organizations which are determined to have a voice in the future development of Polish political life.

Constructive elements mentioned in the opposition announcement include the National Democratic party, whose headquarters throughout Poland are being continuously raided by police and many of whose leaders already are imprisoned, and Witos' Peasant party.

With the announcement of the Switzerland meeting, Poland's internal crisis has reached a critical point.

It is declared the opposition groups would be content with a reorganization of the government under which they would receive a number of cabinet posts. They demand, however, the ousting of Premier Zyndram-Koscialkowski, Eugene Kwiatowski, finance ministter; Adam Koc, president of the state bank, and most important, the immediate removal of Col. Josef Beck as foreign minister.

Awaits General's Move.

The opposition now awaits the next move from Gen. Edward Rydz-Smigly, inspector general of the Polish army. He is expected to deliver a request soon to President Ignacy Moscicki, who possesses dictatorial powers under the new constitution, to reform the cabinet or the generals will force a change of government.

DOCTOR GIVES UP SONNY BOY AND ENDS LITIGATION

The litigation over Sonny Boy, 3 year old love child, was brought to an end yesterday when Attorney Harry X. Cole, counsel for Dr. Gordon E. Mordoff, presented a signed stipulation before Judge Rudolph Desort of the Superior court in which the physician relinquished custody of the child to Mrs. Margaret Mann Fletcher, the mother.

The actual transfer of Sonny Boy, whose name is Reginald Arthur Mann, will not take place until tomorrow afternoon. Until then the baby will remain in the Mordoff home in Wilmette. Last night Mrs. Fletcher and her husband of fourteen days, Ray Alfred Fletcher, were making plans to care for the boy in their home at 4508 North Racine avenue.

Last Monday evening Judge Desort ruled against the claim of Dr. Mordoff that he is the father of Sonny Boy and that his late wife, Madge, was the boy's mother. The court decided that Mrs. Fletcher is the mother.

None of the principals appeared in court yesterday, as the stipulation was signed in the offices of the attorneys. Under the agreement Dr. Mordoff and his foster daughter, Mary Margaret Mordoff, will be permitted to have the child one day each week.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

FIVE novels concern us this week. Three of them have an American rural setting, one is rooted in rural England, and the fifth jumps over the face of the earth with alacrity and dexterity.

Winifred Holtby, whose "Mandoa, Mandoa" was a delicious satire on life in Emperor Hallie Selassie's domain [written before most of the world knew that there was such a person as the King of Kings outside the pages of biblical literature], lived after the publication of that book long enough to enjoy its triumph and to put the last words to another novel, and then, at the age of 37, when life might have seemed a bouquet of lilies of the valley of fame to wear in her buttonhole, died.

Her friend, Vera Brittain, author of "Testament of Youth," writes movingly of that loss in a few pages of "Ave atque Vale" at the end of "South Riding," the novel which Winifred Holtby finished just before her death. Vera Brittain also explains the mechanics of county council government in Yorkshire, which is the skeleton framework for "South Riding." However, although the members of the council are, mostly, the leading characters in "South Riding" the book has as much to do with local politics as the flood of the Connecticut river has to do with the workings of the Hartford city council.

Life surges through the pages of "South Riding," and although the county council deals with its problems even so august a body cannot control nor determine its forces when they become elemental. There is not, one hastens to add, much of the elemental in "South Riding." There is turbulence below surface calm rather than anything else, for the little town of Kiplington, although it has its "shacks" and its problems of poverty, is urban in no sense and the countryside gives it its tempo and its aura.

The heroine of "South Riding" is now the young woman [39] who is engaged as head mistress of the high school—now Alderman Mrs. Beddows, a superb young-old woman in her seventies who is a power in the county. Of heroes there is only one, Robert Carne, gentleman farmer, loved—and hated—extravagantly.

"South Riding" has none of the luscious satire of "Mandoa, Mandoa." It is, however, in its less exciting and less fascinating way, a better novel, and one which adds to the reader's sorrow at the untimely death of its author.

Two New Novels Have Farm Setting.

Two straightaway novels about American farms—with no city problems at all—although the characters do spend some years in the little towns which dominate the countryside—are "They Seldom Speak" by Leland Hall and "The Rolling Years" by Agnes Sligh Turnbull.

The readers of Mr. Hall's previous book, "Salah and His American," may be surprised to find him deserting his rich oriental background for a sparse American farm, his picturesque figures for a family as indistinguishable from every other family of the neighborhood as a four-leaf clover is from a three-leaf one when you're diligently looking in a clover clump for luck.

They literally seldom speak—they are not an articulate family. They live and die inconspicuously and it is not until the war releases in the second generation the passions of the first that anything is allowed to ruffle the family calm, and a marriage is dissolved because love has ceased to be. It is more for the reality, security, and rootedness of the farm that "They Seldom Speak" is worth reading than for anything else.

"The Rolling Years" is almost exactly in the pattern of all of the most popular novels of two generations of farm life. But because the author has made each moment of the rolling years vivid, the book is not merely a good copy of a masterpiece but a book with a reality and vitality of its own. It is calm and "nice" which seems an indefinite adjective, but which to any reader of books about farm life says a good deal.

There are no mental cases, no tragedies except the clean ones of death and not marrying the right girl [but going on loving her for twenty years with happiness for both] and of giving up love for religion. In the beginning it looks as if every one's lives were going to be wrecked by the dominance of religion, but although toward the end the heroine of the third generation gives up the boy she is about to marry because he dares to question the creed of the church in whose service he is enlisting, the next few years take care of that, too, and all is well as finis is writ. Yes, it's a "nice" book. I'd not call it distinguished.

Eleanor Green's Book Is One of Promise.

I'd not call "The Hill" by Eleanor Green distinguished, either, although I would call it promising. The book is a short one [which is one sort of distinction in itself nowadays!], but it is so slight that it is longer than it need be, at that.

A young woman sees her family—gathered for a picnic—with unusually keen eyes as she lies on a hilltop and looks down upon them. There is some lovely writing in the pages of "The Hill" and occasionally an inspired moment of observation—as when the young girl realizes that a child may carry forever in his heart the vivid hatred inspired by his mother when she has refused him the comfort of a baby rabbit. Eleanor Green has a sensitiveness that can produce literature. That is obvious. But it is also obvious that she has not yet produced it.

Clare Sheridan Has Vivid Sense of Places.

Clare Sheridan's autobiography, "The Naked Truth," was a book in a thousand and delighted its readers as all "exposure" does, especially when the author is exposée as well as exposer. It had a filip to it and it made Clare Sheridan professionally a member of another of the arts after she had attained international eminence in one of them—sculpture.

Because she has taken to writing Clare Sheridan is no less the eager sculptress—she declared not long ago "I'd start for China tomorrow if I had the chance of doing the bust of Chiang Kai-shek." She has already sculped Mussolini, Lenin, Marconi, Mahatma Gandhi, and assorted lesser world figures.

Her jauntings over the face of the earth and her contacts with the soviets have given her the material for "Offspring," which is the story of a rather self-willed young girl who grows into a woman who has her own way in everything.

She takes a husband, produces an heir to the family estates, without love, and then, with love, lives her own life in Paris, in Russia, in Constantinople. Clare Sheridan has a vivid sense of places. She makes them come much more alive than she makes her people. The reader can remember every room in which Mary walked, every field upon which she gazed, can see the sunshine and feel the tang of salt air, but it doesn't seem to matter why Mary was where she was so much as it really should in a good novel.

"Offspring" will please many readers who took delight in "The Naked Truth" because they will look for projections of its facts in the fiction of "Offspring," but admirers of Clare Sheridan can have little worry about where her greatest talent lies.

Winifred Holtby, author of "South Riding," a novel of county life in England; Agnes Sligh Turnbull, author of "The Rolling Years," a pleasant record of the generations on a Pennsylvania farm, and Eleanor Green, author of "The Hill," a slight book with real promise if slight fulfillment.

Max Miller Writes of Bering Sea; Misses His Former Success

Max Miller has not been as successful covering the Alaskan coast as he was at Los Angeles, and his new book, "Fog and Men on Bering Sea" [Dutton, $3], we don't believe will reach a fraction of his readers of "I Cover the Waterfront."

This time he tells his experiences on a government boat on a long voyage from Seattle to various points in Bering sea and the Arctic ocean. His adventures are casual and the author's rather self-satisfied attitude in relating many incidents hardly worth retelling, and in some instances things never mentioned in mixed society, even in these modern days, make "Fog and Men" a rather slow and at times tiresome bit of navigating for the ordinary reader.

Granger, Chicago Architect, Writes Book on Vienna

In no other city in the world does one see so many statues of musicians, poets, dramatists, artists, and writers as in Vienna, according to Alfred Granger, Chicago architect, author of "The Spirit of Vienna" [McBride, $2.50]. "In most capital cities, like Washington, the statues commemorate military or political heroes, but in Vienna it is the arts that are considered most worthy of recognition."

Living Persons Discussed in English Novel

Book's Conversation Compares England and U. S.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.—Two first novels of peculiar interest have been simultaneously published in London. The first of these, which I have already mentioned as in preparation, is "X plus Y" [Dent], by E. F. Bozman, a partner in the publishing firm of Dent; the second is "The Double Quest" [Macmillan], by R. J. Cruikshank.

Mr. Cruikshank is the managing editor of the London evening newspaper the Star, which stands rather to the left of Liberalism in politics, and is thus opposed in policy to its two immediate rivals, the Evening News and the Evening Standard. Neither book is a long one; both books have been written in the intervals of ordinary work by men who have hitherto left the writing of books to others.

In reading the first of them every reader must be content to know only the initial letters by which hero and heroine are known. That sounds more exasperating than it is in fact. He will then find himself among some modern people who are extremely likable, very human, and unusually gifted in the matter of lucid and amusing speech. He will spend some time with the young, and some with the middle aged; and some of the setting of the tale will appeal especially to lovers of mountaineering.

But chiefly the reader will be interested in the presentation of a number of characters of good will, who are pleased with their own ideas, less pleased with their own conduct, much occupied with the problems of others, and much given to the light use of psychological and mathematical terms. The latter fact is not surprising in view of the author's enthusiasm for mathematics; and the effect of the book is a happy one. It is very well and clearly written, and is very attractive.

Mr. Cruikshank's book, "The Double Quest," is the work of an Englishman who has lived in the United States and who seeks to show [by means of the encounters of a young Englishman in America and those of a young American girl in England] the resemblances and differences between the two countries and the political and social problems by which they are confronted.

The book is composed, for the most part, of discussion in which a variety of persons, either typical or oracular, demonstrate the peculiarities of their race and environment. It is full of references to living persons, to current ideas, and to the contrasts between yesterday and today.

The conversations are smart, vigorous, and brusque rather than witty; and, as they are energetically outspoken and good natured, they will delight those who relish the up-to-date when it has a sound and hopeful purpose.

Mr. Cruikshank believes in the ideals of both Americans and Englishmen. He does not spare his own countrymen or their opposite numbers in the United States. And he is so much interested in the real world that many matters are ventilated in "The Double Quest" which call for our attention.

MYSTERIES OF THE WEEK

BY MORTIMER QUICK

A clipped, neat story in a clipped, neat prose is "The Man Who Murdered Himself" [Morrow, $2.00], by Geoffrey Homes who is announced as a discovery and certainly sounds fresh and energetic enough to be very young and undiscouraged. A youth named Robin Bishop is working for a pretty shady inquiry agent who makes a business of finding or producing heirs. He has been a reporter and rather wishes he had gone on being one. But Mary works for Oscar Masters, too, so Robin stands by, thereby capturing Mary as well as an ingenious murderer with whom he is rather sympathetic.

There are a number of murders of the more subtle variety in the book and Robin has an uncanny faculty for putting his finger on their weak points and is altogether a shrewd and rather charming young man who seems destined to go on nosing out murderers and assorted crooks in a long succession of books. May they all be as forthright, as concentrated and as uncompromising as this first one which I recommend to those who require a certain elegance in their rough stuff.

I hope you read "Merely Murder" and here comes its author, Georgette Heyer, with another pretty nearly as good called "Why Shoot a Butler?" [Crime club, $2.00]. She has a way of presenting her crimes and her criminals, not to mention her detecting young men and her harassed heroines, in such a way that murder seems an annoying incident which might temporarily interrupt any promising career and tracking down murderers just one of those things you do to relieve the tedium of a country week-end.

While Frank Amberly is about the police don't get much of a look-in. They are rather comic police on the whole, designed to set the mind of the murderer at rest rather than to apprehend him, but he gets apprehended and everybody in the book is surprised, even if you, dear reader, have been more or less suspicious for some chapters.

The scene of the murders, for naturally there are several, is the English countryside and a number of those pleasant eccentrics which every British author loves wanders through its pages. I love them, too, and I expect you do. I can give you no better advice than to read both Miss Heyer's books immediately and then ask for more.

Agatha Christie in "The A. B. C. Murders" [Dodd-Mead, $2] has gone back to her little Belgian Poirot, whom she left out of her last story, but who, evidently, is too dear to the hearts of her readers to be neglected. This time the crime that he has to solve is an extremely ingenious one.

A series of murders, in alphabetical sequence, occurs and of each Poirot receives warning as to place and date. The reader is given a little behind-the-scenes information, too, but don't place too much reliance on it. Wait until Poirot crashes through and then you'll know all about it. He and Mrs. Christie are one of those pairs unlikely to let you down. They annoy at times, but an ever-fertile fancy devises new complications which must not be hinted at or you will guess too much and spoil your fun.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

U.S. PASTOR FAILS TO HONOR HITLER; SLUGGED BY NAZI

Nation Observes Minute of Silence for Fuehrer.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 27.—Germany observed a minute of silence this afternoon in homage to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, as he was addressing the nation from the Krupp works at Essen, which Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, described as the "greatest arms factory in Europe."

Standing on a half finished railway locomotive Hitler challenged other nations to turn to their people and ask them to decide by vote whether or not they want to accept and trust a German nonaggression pact rather than cling to the clauses of the defunct Locarno treaty.

All Business at Standstill.

Again the Nazis showed themselves masters at handling the German masses. About 120,000 workers jammed the locomotive hall and 700,000 lined the streets of Essen. They came from outlying districts in special trains. Almost every factory and business house in Germany stopped work to enable their employés to listen to the fuehrer's broadcast and to "emphasize the spirit of unity."

How seriously the people took the minute of silence was shown in Berlin. The Rev. Steward Herman, pastor of the American church, who is new in Berlin, emerged from the subway at just that moment. He started to cross the street when a worker hit him in the back and ordered him to stand still. Other workers yelled at him.

The pastor replied that he was an American and did not know about the program. When the minute of silence was over, his assailant skipped into a bus, remembering the Nazi party orders that in view of the forthcoming Olympics, the people must show extra politeness and forbearance to foreigners.

Hitler Talks of "Mission."

Hitler in his speech talked of his faith in his mission:

"Just imagine what you, my country men, will be able to achieve once you, too, have learned to use the power of faith which enabled me, an unknown man, to emerge out of nothing into the leader of a nation."

Addressing other nations, Hitler roared:

"Don't talk to me about the sanctity of treaties."

He said internal German affairs are "none of their business. When Europe gets entangled in military pacts then it is up to me to restore full sovereignty to my country. If others do not want to believe protestations of a nation of 68 million people why do they continue to talk to us?"

Boasts of "Poverty."

Reconciliation of the masses by social improvements is his "eternal aim," Hitler said. For himself he said he wants nothing.

"I am the only statesman in the world who has no bank account, owns no shares and draws no dividends," he said.

Observers pointed out that Hitler's income from the royalties of his book and other writings, as well as his salary, provides him an income far surpassing that of the President of the United States, according to a statement by one of his own ministers.

After receiving the ovations of Essen, Hitler proceeded to Cologne, where he will speak tomorrow and confer with Joachim von Ribbentrop, his special ambassador, who arrived there from London late this afternoon.

Goering Speaks of Bayonets.

On Sunday, while the German people heed his call to the polls to "elect" a new reichstag, Hitler and Von Ribbentrop will work out the text of the peace proposals he plans to submit to England.

Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of aviation, in a speech in Berlin tonight warned his countrymen they must remember that "protests mean nothing unless they are backed by bayonets. Foreign nations still seem to tremble when they remember the bravery shown by German soldiers in the world war. If they think we will withdraw the troops we have just sent into the Rhineland, they can wait until doomsday. We prefer to die with honor rather than go into chains again."

Eden Warns Germany.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 27.—Carrying with him a warning from Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that French and British general staf talks will start in a few days unless Reichsfuehrer Hitler submits a bigger contribution toward adjusting the Rhineland situation, Joachim von Ribbentrop, special German ambassador, flew to Cologne today to report to the fuehrer.

Von Ribbentrop conferred with Eden this morning to find out what the foreign secretary meant by his reference to Franco-British staf consultations in his speech in the house of commons yesterday. The answer was that the French and British would coördinate their military plans so as to be ready for an eventuality. Eden, however, said there is no intention of Britain joining France in a move to chase the German troops out of the Rhineland.

Urges Conciliatory Move.

Eden was said to have urged on Von Ribbentrop the necessity of impressing on Hitler that he must take some step to appease France. Eden said Hitler should first submit the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact to an impartial tribunal for a ruling on whether it violates the Locarno treaty, and second, suspend the building of any fortifications in the Rhineland.

The pro-German section of British public opinion was generally displeased today with Eden's speech, while the Francophiles charged that Von Ribbentrop was making propaganda here. This illustrates the split in British public opinion.

Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, talked with Eden tonight. Eden told Beck that Britain is interested in nonaggression pacts in eastern Europe.

"Council of War" in Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 27.—Alarmed at the omission of any concrete reference to security for central Europe in yesterday's speech by Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, France's continental satellites today held a council of war in Paris which some observers interpret as a prelude to a bolt from the league of nations by the whole group.

Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French foreign minister, spent the entire afternoon conferring with the ministers of Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia, and with Maxim Litvinov, soviet foreign commissar, and Rustu Aras, Turkish foreign minister. Then he and Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister without portfolio, had a long conference with Premier Albert Sarraut this evening.

Call New Locarno Meeting.

Tonight a semi-official communique announced that another meeting of the four Locarno powers—Britain, France, Belgium and Italy—would be held either at Brussels or Paris immediately after Hitler's counter proposals to the four power Rhineland proposals is received.

This was interpreted to indicate that the little entente and Russia had cracked down on Flandin, informing him that while France might derive some comfort from Eden's assurances regarding the Rhine frontier, France's allies needed something more concrete to allay their fears, and that if France showed any signs of wavering in its stand against Germany they would desert in a body.

During Litvinov's visit to Flandin formal exchange of ratifications of the Franco-soviet mutual assistance pact took place, and the pact now has the force of law.

Aras, in his talk with Flandin, went into the Dardanelles problem. Turkey does not intend to denounce the treaty of Lausanne as Hitler denounced the Versailles treaty, it is understood, but he intends to open negotiations at once for a revision allowing Turkey to fortify the Dardanelles. Russia is supporting the Turkish demand, and it is believed that following today's talks, French opposition has vanished.

BOSTON COUPLE FLEE NAZI LINER AFTER 'INSULTS'

Criticize Hitler; German Revenge Feared.

MANILA, P. I., March 27.—(AP)—Police guarded Alvan T. Simonds, Boston manufacturer, and his wife in a Manila hotel tonight after they expressed fears of being attacked because Simonds criticized the Nazi government in an interview.

ALVAN T. SIMONDS.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Mr. and Mrs. Simonds, passengers on the world cruising German liner Reliance, had a police guard of four men as they moved from the ship to hotel quarters. Two officers remained with them.

Simonds reported German passengers "openly insulted" his wife, and some of them "even went so far as to spit on her."

Ate Only Canned Food.

He said "conditions became so bad" aboard the Reliance after he granted the interview in Singapore that "we remained in our cabin about five days, eating only canned food."

The manufacturer said one of his German friends who openly sympathized with him was attacked and beaten.

"I feared they would attack us," Simonds continued, "and wirelessed a friend in Manila to meet us with an armed guard."

Commodore Fritz Kruse of the Hamburg-American line, aboard the Reliance, told Simonds he thought the protesting couple had "exaggerated conditions."

Plans to Protest.

The manufacturer said, however, he and Mrs. Simonds would leave the ship here. He intended to protest to High Commissioner Frank Murphy.

"In the interview," Simonds related, "I said I didn't think anybody should agree with Germany on anything because she regards agreements as scraps of paper. I did not realize this would cause the German passengers to turn against us."

Quit Legion Over Bonus.

Boston, Mass., March 27.—(AP)—Alvan T. Simonds, 60, manufacturer, who charged in Manila today German passengers of a German ship insulted him and his wife, resigned from the American Legion three years ago declaring demand for immediate payment of the bonus was "a disgrace."

He is reserve captain in the United States army ordnance department.

MUSSOLINI BIDS LEAGUE ARBITER TO PEACE PARLEY

Imposes New Conditions for Halting African War.

ROME, March 27.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, whom the league of nations has decided was the aggressor in East Africa, is willing to talk preliminary peace terms with the league's arbiter.

Diplomatic sources disclosed tonight that the Fascist dictator has informally invited Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, to whom the league entrusted the first steps in settling the Italo-Ethiopian war, to come to Rome for conversations.

See Bid's Rejection.

At the same time, these sources pointed out the possibility of Madariaga's acceptance is slight since, to be technically impartial, he would also have to go to Addis Ababa and the latter journey would take too long.

The Fascist invitation follows two official actions by the countries involved in the African conflict. First, Emperor Haile Selassie accepted unconditionally the league appeal for peace negotiations. Mussolini also accepted the appeal but qualified his action with demands of territorial accession.

The task of drawing the two nations together to at least discuss the prospects of peace was handed to the Spanish delegate after acceptance of the appeal from the league committee of 13—which is the council without Italy.

Imposes Three Conditions.

In addition to his qualifying demands to the appeal, Mussolini has also imposed three conditions for cessation of hostilities, it was learned. They are:

1. Financial and economic sanctions against Italy should be lifted.
2. The league should reverse its judgment in determining that Italy was the aggressor in the war.
3. The league should not influence the Ethiopian emperor against accepting Italy's demand for a zone of influence in East Africa.

Fascist officials, meanwhile, said that the necessity for Italy replying to the Locarno powers' Rhineland proposals was obviated by the German government's refusal of them. Although the proposals were advanced on the part of the delegates of Italy, Great Britain, France, and Belgium, Mussolini's government has not accepted them.

Call Conditions "Fantastic."

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Informed British quarters tonight described Premier Mussolini's three reported conditions for peace in Africa as "fantastic."

THE SINS OF THE FATHERS.

A Chicago physician was found recently in his office in a vigorous state of profanity. This was what provoked his wrath:

To a hospital on the staf of which he serves another doctor had brought a woman for the delivery of her child. The second doctor, in the words of his wrathful colleague, had been "too damned nice" to suggest to the woman, when she first consulted him, that she should have a blood test, a routine procedure in every well run hospital and clinic in the country.

The test was made only after the child was born. It disclosed that the mother had syphilis. Subsequent investigation disclosed that her husband also had the disease, the result of a youthful infection which he had neglected, and that the newborn baby and another child in the family were infected.

The elder child, his heart weakened by the disease, died while he was receiving treatment. The mother, imputing the death to the treatment [treatment in competent hands is quite safe], refused to let physicians treat her or her new baby. That child faces a tragic prospect. If the disease is merciful it may take him off with heart disease at an early age, as it did his elder brother. It may wreck his body or destroy his mind. Or it may spare him long enough for him to marry and innocently transmit the scourge to another generation.

"The worst of it is," commented the irate physician, "that this is by no means an isolated case. A large number of women enter maternity wards of Chicago hospitals who have not had blood tests. Some of them have syphilis. Their infection is responsible for the larger portion of still births. If the disease were detected in the early stages of pregnancy, treatment would save the lives of the babies.

"Within recent years the physicians of this state obtained the passage of the law requiring the treatment of the eyes of all newborn children with silver nitrate, to prevent the blindness arising from another venereal disease, gonorrhea. A similar legal requirement for blood tests, to be made as early in pregnancy as possible, would do as much to check syphilis as any other single measure. It would not wipe out the disease, but, strongly enforced, it would reduce it to a minor problem in a single generation."

The suggestion appears to have merit. We present it to the medical profession of Illinois for consideration and action.

TROUBLE IN THE Q. M. C.

A quartermaster officer has been on trial before a court martial in New York on the charge of converting to his own use food from the enlisted men's mess. His conduct during preliminary investigation of the charge resulted in additional charges being placed against him, of making false statements and seeking to force enlisted men to perjure themselves in his defense. Now convicted his sentence calls for dismissal from the army.

The case naturally brings to mind, with those who saw "Mutiny on the Bounty," the episode of Capt. Bligh and the two cheeses. The inevitable comparison is a fair indication of the revolution in military and naval thought during the last century and a half in regard to the obligation of officers to look after the welfare of their men.

Dismissal from the army is none too severe a sentence. There are few things more destructive of morale than the knowledge of men in the ranks that they are being ill fed to fill the pocket of some grafting superior.

The current case is also a symptom of a condition in the army which we suspect is even better recognized in the service than out of it. Casual reading of the news indicates that an inordinately high proportion of officers brought before courts martial recently for dereliction of duty are serving in the quartermaster corps.

The fact that these officers have been brought to trial, and a number of them have been cashiered, can be taken as sufficient evidence that the army is seeking to remedy an unfortunate situation. It is unfortunate because it casts unfair aspersions on the vast majority of officers in the corps who are honest and efficient, and still more unfortunate because the situation, so long as it exists, is an added deterrent to capable officers who might otherwise seek assignment to the corps.

Line service will always be most attractive to officers seeking to advance themselves. Yet the quartermaster service, important since Wellington's day, has become vital in modern warfare. Battles of the future may be won or lost as easily in the supply depots as at the front. Any condition which adds to the difficulty of the quartermaster corps in getting its fair share of alert officer material is a dangerous one, and should be remedied as quickly as possible.

ANNIE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANY MORE.

In the managed economy all matters are the government's concern. And thus early in 1934 Washington took up the problem of gray hair on farmers. The cause had been found to be high taxes and interest. But when the brain trust considered the question at a faculty meeting there was a difference of opinion as to what to do about it. One group wanted to cancel all farm debts and set up the REHA [the Rural Education and Highway administration] to pay the cost of the country schools and highways so there would be no taxes to pay. Another group wanted to bring science to the problem.

There was a compromise. The Frazier-Lemke bill was passed to enable farmers to escape their debts. The victory of the other group consisted of an investigation to determine whether hair would avoid discrimination in the country if the farmers knew nothing about farming and lived on government owned, tax free land. Thus it came to pass that early in 1934 the government announced that it was going to make guinea pigs of the miners of West Frankfort, Ill.

It looked for a time as if the experiment would be prosecuted. Some experts from Washington turned up at West Frankfort, bought 1,200 acres of land and opened an office where miners were selected for the experiment who could give satisfactory evidence of being ignorant of farming. House and landscaping plans were drawn and men were put to work excavating for the lake, which was to be the center of the recreational activities of the experimental community. Stocking of the lake with fish had not been completed when an engineer reported that it was dangerous to have a body of water on the land which had been purchased. Thereupon men were engaged to throw back the dirt which had so recently been removed.

From time to time statements were issued fixing a date for the further prosecution of this scientific work, but each time the day appointed slipped by without anything happening. Finally last June it was discovered that the land for which the Washington experts had paid $25,000 was over an abandoned coal mine. Geologists reported that the mine props had been improperly placed, so that the land would probably sink within the next few years, probably without warning. Men who had been taken out of the mines, it was recognized at once, wouldn't relish the idea of being dropped back into the old diggings unexpectedly. Obviously some alchemist with land to sell had turned silver hair into gold. It was an embarrassing situation, and how to withdraw from it with the least public attention was a problem. First the machinery was shipped away, then the employés began to disappear one by one, and finally several months ago the manager of the project quietly left town.

That may be all there is to it so far as Mr. Tugwell is concerned. He may be quite satisfied not to have the silver hair problem scientifically determined. But it is no answer for Walter L. Clark, secretary of the Wheat Control association in southern Illinois. The subsistence homestead people have gone away, but they haven't taken their land with them. Is the West Frankfort subsistence homestead going to sign up for reduction of the planting of wheat, or isn't it? Of course, nobody is going to be down there to do anything about it one way or the other, but what kind of a record will Mr. Clark be making if he can't even get a commitment one way or the other from the owner of one of the largest farms in southern Illinois? Mail addressed by Mr. Clark to the subsistence homestead office has been returned with a notation that the party moved but left no forwarding address. Maybe Mr. Clark should take the matter up with the Association for the Advancement of Science.

CRIMINAL LAWYERS.

The Supreme court of Pennsylvania has upheld the disbarment of two politician-lawyers and two other members of their firm because their relations with their criminal clients passed the bounds of professional ethics. In its opinion the court said:

"An attorney who agrees in advance to defend persons when arrested for criminal offenses whose future commission is a planned certainty, or from whose conduct such an agreement may be inferred, forfeits all right to practice law.

"An attorney is under no obligation to aid his client in crime. His duty is to prevent its perpetration, if possible.

"When the purpose is to guide and aid a combination of persons engaged in crime, an attorney becomes part of the criminal system."

The principles stated by the court are not new, but the statement is admirably clear. To laymen it should be an effective antidote to a lot of the shabby hocus-pocus concerning the privileges of lawyer and client with which criminal practitioners are wont to gloss over their illicit relations with hoodlums. To the Chicago Bar association it should provide a convenient yardstick for looking into the alliances and conducts of some of the rascals at the local bar.

DOWSERS' OPPORTUNITY.

[New York Sun.]

All who are interested in the progress of an American cause célèbre which has stirred the dissatisfaction of the governor of an important state will recognize in the subjoined admirably clear and succinct report from the London Times new possibilities for those who are dissatisfied with the results obtained through the ordinary agencies of detection, prosecution, judgment, and review applied to crime.

After four days' police search for Harry Buckles, 51, a carpenter of Dedham, Colchester, who had been missing from home, a water diviner yesterday offered his services. Holding in his hands a piece of the missing man's clothing and a piece of copper wire, he indicated a spot in the River Stour, where the police, after dragging operations, recovered Buckles' body.

The extraordinary accomplishment herein recorded suggests at once a course of activity which, so far as the public is informed, has not been applied by Gov. Hoffman in the proceedings with which his fame is identified. There are many able and conscientious diviners in the United States; a corps of them might easily be assembled under executive patronage and turned loose to reveal the evidence Mr. Hoffman so ardently seeks. Apparently nobody else can find it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

STUDYING THE PAINTING of "Leif Ericson Discovering America," which has just been presented to the senate gallery in Washington, I must say I think the title is wrong. Leif is represented standing on his ship pointing excitedly at a huge gray shape sou'-sou'-west or, it might be nor'-nor' east. I have studied a great many paintings of whaling ships at sea, both at Nantucket and New Bedford, and from Leif's attitude, his pointing arm and the exultant expression on his face, he is shouting: "Thar she blows, three pints off the weather bow, and she's a spermer!" And for further proof you have only to look at the hazy object at which Leif is pointing and it certainly is a whale. Of course the champions of Leif declare he is pointing at America, but I think I know the difference between a whale and America. America is much bigger than a whale and has mountains and trees and rocks on it, and doesn't blow water through its nose. And in Leif's time America had Indians jumping all over the place, and if you look hard at the dim object at which Leif is pointing you will not see a single Indian, not even a teepee or a couple of bears or a flock of wild turkeys. No, that thing out there in the ocean that Leif is pointing at is not America. It's a whale, that's what it is, and Leif is not saying "Ah ha, mates, I discover America!" Not at all. He is saying: "Thar she blows; bring me a harpoon." And if you don't agree with me then you'll have to admit you can't tell the difference between America and a whale.

WHO SEEKS FOR TRUTH.

Who is he who seeks for truth
In the crannies of the mind?—
Riding all the seas of space,
Bringing up the gold confined
In the slender harlot's breast;
Searching for an acid test,
Troubling river bank and sea
For the secret unpossessed.

Life slips by him, and her smile
Evades the limits of his soul.
He has set too bright a light
For so faint a goal.

Of all the wise men and the fools
Planning by their studied art
To win the world or fly the moon,
The maddest of them at the heart
Is he who dreams to build for us
A polished set of tools
To weigh out falsehood, balance truth,
In perfect, finished rules.

"BLONDE to Tell of Slaying in New York Trial."—Headline. Tut, tut, tut! How the newspapers do rub it in when a blonde gets in trouble. You never read that "Brunette Will Tell of Slaying" or that "Brunette Goes Haywire in Swell Café." Never; it's always blondes. The word "brunette" somehow doesn't strike reporters and copy editors' fancy. But, gosh! when a blonde gets into a story they put it in scareheads and all over the first page. I may be old fashioned, but I don't believe you blondes are any worse or any better than brunettes. You ought to do something about it. Write to your congressman today.

I HONESTLY CAN'T come out flat footed for Gov. Landon until I find out if he is a fisherman. It seems as though we've just got to have a fisherman in the White House. It's a law or something. I demand an answer, Gov. Landon; are you a fisherman? And do you use fish worms or live bait? Or grasshoppers?

MR. EDEN, the British foreign secretary, is much alarmed over the situation brought about by Herr Hitler's occupation of the Rhine. "The whole future of civilization may be at stake," he says. Gosh, that's pretty alarming! As we are civilized, or claim to be, over here in the U. S. A., that takes us in. I'll be afraid this morning to look out and see if the sun is shining. If it isn't I'll jump right to the conclusion that civilization has done a tailspin and done a nose dive. But maybe I'll wait until I find out that civilization has really cracked up or whether it's just a cloudy day.

"SORROWFUL SUNDAY," the song that was suppressed by the police in Budapest after its lugubrious words had caused twenty young people to commit suicide, will be sung in Chicago for the first time Sunday night. It won't hurt us none. If we can stand for hit-and-run drivers, speed demons, toothpaste announcements, blues singers, beauty queens, the AAA, campaign speeches, the Brain Trusters, and the girls going around with red paint on their fingernails we can stand for "Sorrowful Sunday" without batting an eyelash.

A PRAYER FOR PRAYERS.

We're thankful, Lord, Thou answerest not
The most for which we ask:
When we beseech that we be spared
A hard and painful task;

When for some vain and earthly hope
We seek Thy bounteousness;
When we implore Thy mercy on
Our fear and loneliness.

Should half our prayers come to pass,
What worthless creatures, we,
But Thou, most wisely, heed'st them not;
Thy wisdom let us see.

When grief has torn an anguished cry,
And tears that fall like rain,
Then, answered not, let us recall
That Christ once prayed in vain.

EMPHASIZE PHYSICAL FITNESS.

DESPITE the preservation of life due to better sanitation, to widespread knowledge of the laws of health, to greater emphasis upon rest and play, are we as a nation degenerating physically? A small proportion of the population—possibly 10 to 15 per cent—may be considered as possessing normal bodies when age and environment are considered. The balance are substandard in some respect.

While the average outdoor worker may show a powerful development of the back, shoulder, and leg muscles yet the absence of an erect posture precludes normal chest expansion. Stand on the street and watch the pedestrians go by. There will be a preponderance of large abdomens which indicate weak abdominal walls and deposits of unneeded fat. In these out-of-balance bodies muscles are usually flabby and these persons often complain of shortness of breath.

Observe a group of school children; many are pale and underweight; but few know how to walk or even to breathe properly. Although most youngsters indulge in considerable activity on the playgrounds, in entirely too many will there be noted a slouching gait and a careless posture. This is certain to result in subnormal vitality, as the chest and the spinal column are not developing to the point where adequate room is provided for the heart and the lungs. It is probably true that three-fourths of our large high school group will show some type of remedial defect. As a result young men and women seek nervous excitement and thrills because they lack the necessary body power for the pursuit of athletic games.

There is every reason to encourage planned games for children in which large numbers can participate. If nothing better offers, the old-fashioned calisthenics or the army setting-up exercises, if carried out regularly day after day, will affect body building beneficially. The failure of school games lies in the fact that too few join in. Only a fraction of the total number make the basketball team, the football squad, the track team, etc. The boy or girl who is naturally athletic needs an exercise program the least; the quiet, bookish lad must receive it.

The moral effect of a weakened physique is bad. The individual is likely to become introspective, to shun playmates, and to avoid activity simply because he cannot excel. In games the spirit of good sportsmanship is demanded. If it prevails, every participant will improve in skill and prowess under encouragement.

Schools with a system of medical inspection can greatly increase the value of the service if every youngster is given the benefit of a studied schedule of exercise fitted to his particular needs. Early cases of spinal curvature are not difficult to remedy, and exercises can be prescribed for foot deformities and underdeveloped chests, arms, and legs. Proper breathing is of the greatest importance. Insufficient oxygenation of the blood, through taking in too little air, may be responsible for a general lowering of body stamina.

During the formative years of childhood and youth, along with "book larnin'," we must aim to develop a strong constitution, one that will shed disease or overcome it easily if, perchance, it gains a foothold. Tuberculosis is all too common in young adults and the reason for its appearance may be ascribed to inadequate resistance.

There are scores of stimulating forms of body training, and such activities as those fostered by the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are invaluable. The time has come when we must mobilize the youth of the nation on a program of fitness—physical and moral—far more comprehensive and inclusive than has hitherto been attempted. When we realize the toll that illness takes we can at least assume that the development of the body is entitled to as much time and attention as any single course in the curriculum. This is a job for our educational leaders; one that must be viewed seriously and undertaken with great earnestness.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

Elsie writes: 1. Is a blood pressure of 98 too low for a woman in her twenties? Is there any food which will raise the blood pressure to normal?

2. My mother had epilepsy until two years ago when she started taking phenobarbital every night. She has not had a convulsion since. She has been told that if she continues taking it the drug will cause her to go insane, but she is afraid to quit.

REPLY.

1. In women between the ages of 20 and 30 the normal blood pressure is 116 to 119 [systolic]. Persistently low blood pressure is often found in healthy persons and it is believed that pressures 10 to 15 below the average carry a lower mortality than normal or higher pressures. On the other hand, hypotension [low blood pressure] may be associated with various disease conditions and it should therefore be used as a guide to the general physical tone of the patient. A diet for lowered blood pressure should be high in minerals, vitamin A, and proteins. This would include such foods as butter, milk, leafy vegetables, tomato, liver, beef kidney, apples, prunes, beans, and walnuts.

2. Bromides have been taken over a period of years without injurious effects in the treatment of epilepsy. In many instances efficacious results have been noted. However, treatment should not be attempted without the advice of a competent physician. No cases of insanity have been reported from phenobarbital, although the steady use of the drug may injure the sources of the white blood cells.

HEMOPHILIA.

Mrs. B. writes: You say that females only transmit hemophilia to offspring. I have two boys who are true hemophiliacs. My two brothers bled to death. My 8 year old son had a hemorrhage of the hand about five years ago which left the hand almost useless. The doctors won't even pull a tooth from my boys. Will my sons transmit this disease to their offspring?

REPLY.

If a man with hemophilia marries a woman who is normal in this respect the children will not inherit the disease. The sons of such a man will not only be normal themselves but they cannot transmit the defect to their descendants. The daughters of such a man will be outwardly normal, but they will all be carriers of the tendency. They may pass it on to some of their children.

From Across the Sea

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt.—In this section of the world the Anglo-Italian outbreak which was so confidently expected two months ago seems for the present remote. The British are evidently satisfied at the defense the Ethiopians are making against Italy and cheer it from the sidelines, provided it does not go too far. It has put ideas into the heads of the Egyptians, and the British do not care to have the same ideas spread any farther, nor to have any overwhelming victory of a colored people over whites.

The same notion explains in part the French support of Italy. They have not forgotten that massacre of Lieut. Bernard in French Somaliland in 1934, which they want avenged, and they have an eye on their colored populations in Syria and North Africa. Events have proved their fears justified, with the general strike in Damascus, and today brought a report of trouble brewing in Tunis—a region which incidentally has been heavily worked by communist propaganda.

I am suggesting in today's cable to the home office that I make a short stop in Palestine—possibly also in Syria—long enough to get material for four or five mail stories. They should come in useful for the explosion there between Jews and Arabs, which, according to the best information here, is inevitable. The question is when—tomorrow or next year? But when it does break, it will be a sanguinary mess, and some background on the present situation should not come amiss.

As for Egypt—it seems to me that the rioters will keep quiet till after the May elections at least. As I have wired, the treaty negotiations have started and the Egyptians, despite more than 50 years' occupation, delude themselves with the idea they are going to get something out of the British.

The truth is they will be lucky to escape with their red flowerpot tarbushes and their striped nightgowns. Not that the British will not throw them sops and try to make them like it. But Egypt is too good a thing for them to relinquish, and they have a real "white man's burden" attitude to the people they consider a worthless, incompetent mob. Besides they do not take their eyes off the canal, nor off the Sudan, the economic possibilities of which are not much more than tapped.

British tactics on the treaty will be the classic ones of "divide and conquer." They know the weaknesses of the crowd they are dealing with—intelligent fellows enough, but with half-baked western educations and a transparent childish oriental duplicity. They have their own man in the enemy's camp in the person of Mohammed Mahmoud, who, despite being a somber Moslem fanatic, does not work with his own kind. Another half-ally is the cleverest man in Egypt, Sedky Pasha [premier 1930-'34], who will play both ends against the middle for his own advantage. The British on their side present a stone wall front, in which the naval, air, and military experts have final say.

It is not difficult to guess what that say will be—no weakening of the British hold on Egypt, in order not to endanger imperial communications. The Egyptians will have to accept whether they like it or not. If they don't and become uproarious again, there is sufficient British force in this country to suppress any rebellion. Their opponents are easy, anyway; the easy-going Egyptian has not the toughness of fiber which brought success to the Irish.

Assigning me here turned out to be a happy move. I was one of two specials on the spot when the anti-British storm broke. It had extra importance, of course, from its relation to the general situation of a possible Anglo-Italian clash in the eastern Mediterranean.

I have an idea that THE TRIBUNE likes its forces to keep as mobile as possible, but I have not suggested any change of base because news has broken so sporadically and Cairo is so entirely the heart and solar plexus of Egypt that news can be got only by staying on the job here. My only variation has been a weekly one day trip to Alexandria to check on naval, air, or other developments. That yielded short stories on arrivals of fresh British units, which was pertinent to the whole Anglo-Italian situation.

In addition, for the possible big story, the Cairo-Alexandria base is undoubtedly the most convenient one from which to strike toward any danger point. The Jerusalem-Haifa base might have been almost but not quite so good, but there has been no pertinent local story in that region.

ORDERED: REPAIR OR REMOVE.

Chicago, March 18.—[Friend of the People.]—For some time the building at No. 1301 on our street has been vacant. The barn on the lot, just a few feet from my home, has been practically wrecked by neighborhood boys and stands an eyesore and a possible menace to safety, especially to women having to pass there alone at night. Can something be done about it? We do not know who or where the owners are, so cannot appeal to them. E. M.

Our inspector reports this is a one story frame barn on rear of lot, with doors and windows open; it is dilapidated and unsightly but not structurally dangerous. Agents in charge of premises have been notified to repair or remove. If our notice is not complied with we will proceed as the law directs.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,
Commissioner of Buildings.

PROBATE MAY BE NECESSARY.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man died and left a will giving $300 to his housekeeper, who also died recently. Part of the man's heirs are contesting the will, and it will come up in court in a short while. The housekeeper didn't receive any of the $300 left her in the will. What steps should her heirs take to collect the money? The will simply states that she was to receive $300. D. K.

In order to force matters, it would be necessary to probate her estate, but if the original will is sustained, it seems probable that the executor will be willing to waive probate of the beneficiary's will.

GOOD MEN AND BAD.

Woodstock, Ill., March 19.—The bill of rights in which we take such pride provides, among other noble things, that no one shall be deprived of life or liberty without due process of law.

It is now worth noting that this kindly provision applies to bad men as well as good ones, and it is interesting to follow the course of our federal government during the last three or four administrations and estimate how far we shall have to travel before bad men can again be burned at the stake, other punishments being comparatively tame, inadequate and unsatisfying.

During President Coolidge's administration the federal agents shot a few citizens suspected of bootlegging or manufacturing liquor in illicit stills. These shootings were always said to be in self-defense, and in all or nearly all of them the victim had a gun or was said to have reached toward his hip pocket or made some other belligerent gesture which was urged as justification for the killing. Sometimes the murderers were then allowed to be tried by local or state courts. This practice was soon abandoned, however, since juries under an honest prosecution could not be depended upon to acquit the murderers.

During Mr. Hoover's administration the claim of self-defense became very, very thin, and any one suspected of violating the noble experiment was a safe target for a federal murderer since the murderer was sure to be defended by federal officers in a federal court, and state courts were deprived of the right to try these murderers. Killings became quite popular and frequent. I think in this neighborhood one lady was killed because her husband or son was suspected of selling intoxicating liquor, and I believe a claim was made to the effect that at the time of the shooting she had knitting needles or some other bright object in her hands which so frightened the officers that they had to kill her in self-defense, and of course they were not punished.

As is usually the case with lawlessness tolerated it rolls up like a snowball, and along this line it has now advanced to the point where the murderers are called in and given a list of citizens that the government desires to have killed and are sent out with instructions to shoot them on sight. We have become so supine that this seems to meet with every one's approval, and when eight or ten federal murderers gather around one unarmed man and shoot him to death the killing is universally applauded on the theory that the dead man was a bad man.

The constitution ought to be amended to conform to the present practice, and should now read that no good man should be deprived of life or liberty without due process of law. The bad men from whom protection would be removed are, I presume, those who drink liquor or do other things considered naughty by our rulers.

POSTAL SERVICE.

Chicago, March 24.—It is my sincere conviction that the present government is encouraging a deliberate inefficiency in the handling of the first class mail, and perhaps of other classes, in order to drive correspondents into the greater use of the registry and insured services in order to achieve satisfactory delivery. This method of gaining further revenues for boondoggling, etc., is at present just beginning, but an attentive observer will note the increasing inefficiency in the safe delivery of mail which is not registered or insured. A. M. L.

CONDENSED.

RENT.

Chicago, March 25.—I would like to answer Jack Whitton, who asks people why they are moving. They are moving simply because they can't pay $5 more. They are lucky to be paying at all in some cases. Have our wages been increased? We would gladly pay high rents again if we were being paid a living wage. Can we help if the taxes are high? We have lived in one place over 3 years, paid rent promptly, and now we are raised. These landlords will not gain one penny by raising rents. They may get more rent for a few months; then they can have the trouble of putting some of those big rent payers out on the street. JACK BERNARD.

Chicago, March 25.—I was somewhat amused at Jack Whitton's letter on "Rent." The gentleman is misinformed both as to the average raise in rent and the cost of moving. Speaking for the west side, the average, if any, raise in rents is from $2.50 to $5 per month. As to his estimate on the moving I [illegible] he is greatly in error when he states that "it is costing Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tenant a $30 to $70 moving bill to spite their landlord." The average moving job runs from $12 to $20.

The average tenant does not move to spite any one. He moves because he wants to move. MOVER.

A PLATFORM.

Chicago, March 24.—A lot has been said against Gov. Horner and his sales tax, but I have not noticed that any of the aspirants for his office make a point in their campaigns that they will repeal this petty larceny against the masses.

If a prospective governor wants my vote he will at once put the following planks in his platform:

Repeal the sales tax or cut it down to 1 per cent.

Eliminate so-called patronage and install civil service for all jobs, so that an honest citizen has a chance, even though he or she may not be a cousin, uncle, aunt, sister, etc. This goes for congressmen, senators and the rest of the clan.

Better street car and elevated service by junking all obsolete rolling stock, and an increase in cars.

Abandon the pardon and parole fiascoes. Let the sentencing judge and the state's attorney decide such cases.

Permanent registration.

Fair treatment for Chicago and Cook county.

Reduce automobile licenses.

State lottery for the support of hospitals, schools, pensions and other welfare agencies.

Elimination of the so-called state employment bureau with its unproductive expense. It is not functioning and produces little results. MRS. J. G.

SPELLING.

Chicago, March 25.—Your editorial entitled "Spelling" in yesterday's issue reminds the undersigned that he has long wanted to commend THE TRIBUNE for its campaign on a phonetic or simplified spelling. It is a very necessary and advisable reform. In this connection it is noteworthy that so far changes in this direction have not come from the school, where we would expect it to come from, but from trade. Program, vodvil, and sox are a few instances of this kind. A long list might be made up.

GEORGE C. OLCOTT.

REGRETTED OVERSIGHT.

Chicago, March 25.—In his cartoon this morning Mr. Orr, I'm afraid, has been guilty of an incredible oversight. He has neglected to include the New Deal as one of the "Major Disasters of Our Generation." Surely, Mr. Orr, if the world war is one of the major disasters of our generation the New Deal is, too. Now, Mr. Orr! J. J. S.

OHIO GOES ABOVE FLOOD ITS WHOLE LENGTH 1ST TIME

Mississippi Rising; Little Damage Forecast.

Cairo, Ill., March 27.—[Special.]—For the first time in history the Ohio river today surved above flood stage along its entire 981 miles from here, where it empties into the Mississippi, to its eastern end at Pittsburgh.

Heavy rains in many sections of the Ohio watershed sent the stream's tributaries bank full and presaged a higher stage in the main river than had been expected. Southern Illinois streams particularly were running high. The Wabash threatened to surpass flood stage at Mt. Carmel, Ill.

Although the Mississippi and rivers throughout its great valley also were rising, it was expected the tremendous flow would be carried off without serious damage. However, many residents along its banks were fleeing while most dwellers on low territory along the Ohio from the Wabash to the Mississippi had moved to hills.

Expect Mississippi Rise.

The Mississippi was only one-tenth of a foot below flood stage at La Crosse, Wis., and a foot rise was forecast. Merchants were advised to move perishable merchandise from river front basements. The Mississippi reached to within 18 inches of the flood line at New Madrid, Mo.

The heavy rains and a rise in the Ohio at Cincinnati caused government forecasters here to revise their predicted crests along the river.

In spite of the rising water engineers said they felt no special precautions were necessary along either the Ohio or the Mississippi. Cairo residents feel safe because they are protected by a levee and seawall system against 60 feet, a stage never yet reached.

Minnesota Valley Flooded.

Several thousand acres of land were under water along the Minnesota river in the wake of a heavy snow.

The Ohio was 8 feet above flood stage at Cincinnati and promised to go ½ foot higher necessitating a revision of predictions by Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux. The official said the river would rise 8 to 10 inches above the previously indicated crest of around 59.7 feet there. He said the additional rise would not cause great damage.

The additional rainfall along the Ohio caused apprehension in the vicinity of Louisville, Ky. Scores of residents, already driven to upper floors, prepared to evacuate their homes and seek higher ground. A crest of 36 feet, 8 feet above flood stage, was anticipated there.

Lowland dwellers in the upper Tennessee river valley were fleeing before an advancing flood as the stream overflowed its banks at Knoxville, Chattanooga and other Tennessee cities

Spread Into Alabama.

The rising waters also spread downstream to Guntersville and Bridgeport, Ala, where the level rapidly went above flood stage.

At Chattanooga the stream was rising at the rate of two-tenths of a foot an hour and the weather bureau predicted that tomorrow it will exceed the 30 foot flood stage by five feet. At that level it will cover many streets, make about 150 families homeless and flood basements of river bank industrial plants.

Meanwhile armies of workers hurried rehabilitation of the damage in eastern states where 200 persons perished and property loss was estimated at more than 500 million dollars.

CITY SUBMITS BRIEF FOR RAIL TIME CHANGE

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes submitted to the interstate commerce commission yesterday the city's brief supporting its petition for putting the railroads entering Chicago on eastern standard time. The brief organizes arguments and evidence for the change advanced in the I. C. C. time hearing held here in February.

Eastern time replaced central time for the city on March 1. Since there now is a move for a referendum on the time change ordinance in the Nov. 3 election. Mr. Hodes asked the commission to delay a decision in the time case until after the referendum.

The brief called attention to the evidence showing that Chicago is closely linked to the eastern industrial area of the nation, and that time parity with that area would provide business advantages. Further, the document asserted, eastern time will aid Chicago in its drive to reduce trafic and industrial accidents and will provide health benefits.

The brief urged that the railroads operate here on the same time standard as the city on the ground that it would make for the greater convenience of commerce.

DONATIONS HERE FOR FLOOD AREA REACH $137,383

Chicago contributions toward the American Red Cross flood relief fund yesterday totaled $137,383.92, or slightly more than 60 per cent of the city's $225,000 quota, James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, reported. The largest contribution received during the day was $2,500 from the Illinois Bell Telephone company. Chicago churches are planning to take special offerings for the flood relief fund tomorrow, Mr. Nicholson said. A resolution urging the coöperation of all pastors, church councils and worshippers in the movement has been adopted by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

TOKIO OFFICIAL SAYS JAPAN MUST PREPARE FOR WAR

Assails Russia for Border Clashes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 27.—"Japan must prepare for soviet aggression, judging from recent activities," Eiji Amau, Japanese foreign office spokesman, said today. "Recent activities indicate the Reds are availing themselves of the critical situation which developed after the recent military revolt in Tokio and are increasing the strength of their troops along the Manchukuan border."

Amau said the "recent soviet policy has been to fire on any persons near the border." He said he regards this as rather strange behavior on the part of a "friendly neighbor." He said Premier Hirota had protested the alleged action to K. K. Yurenev, Russian ambassador to Japan.

New Clash Reported.

MOSCOW, March 28 [Saturday].—(AP)—Soviet advices early today reported that Japanese cavalrymen had made a new incursion on soviet far eastern territory yesterday [Friday] and that three of the alleged invaders were killed in a clash with Russian border guards.

This is the fourth border clash reported in three days. There were two battles Wednesday at Khundjun, southwest of Vladivostok. Japan last night protested those clashes, charging they resulted from an invasion of Manchukuo. On Thursday there was another engagement in which cannon and airplanes were used.

The latest reported engagement took place along the Arguni river, near the settlement of Borzinsky, soviet accounts said. Five Japanese cavalrymen were said to have penetrated Russian territory, where they encountered a soviet border patrol.

Three of the Japanese were killed and the two survivors retreated back to Manchukuo, leaving their companions' bodies, it was stated.

Peace Plan Rejected.

M. Stomanyakoff, soviet vice commissar for foreign affairs, immediately protested against the latest alleged aggression on soviet territory to the Japanese ambassador, Tamekichi Ota.

Reports of the encounter came just after the Japanese government had rejected a soviet suggestion for the appointment of a mixed commission to investigate the causes of disputes on the entire soviet-Manchukuan border.

Following quickly on the renewed Russian-Japanese fighting, the People's assembly of Outer Mongolia approved a mutual assistance agreement with the soviet union. Under the terms of this pact, the U. S. S. R. will come to Outer Mongolia's aid in case the Japanese invade Mongolian territory.

CAPTAIN TO BE OUSTED BY ARMY FOR FOOD THEFT

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—Capt. Ralph E. Fleischer, former quartermaster at Fort Slocum, who was accused of the theft of a Thanksgiving dinner from the enlisted men's mess, was convicted by a court martial today and sentenced to dismissal from the United States army.

He was found guilty of a majority of the specifications of three charges. They were embezzlement of food valued at $324, perjury, and subornation of witnesses. The charges cited the alleged theft of a brace of chickens, butter, cheese, and canned goods, and the embezzlement of an entire Thanksgiving dinner from the enlisted men's mess on Thanksgiving eve, 1934.

In his summation Capt. Ernest M. Brannon, prosecutor, declared that the alleged defalcations "may appear trivial," but that they were important in fact because they led to an investigation during which Capt. Fleischer "made false statements to his superior officers and also under oath."

HUNDREDS MOURN SUPT. BOGAN AT FUNERAL SERVICE

R. O. T. C. Cadets Line Route of Cortege.

Hundreds of school teachers, children and public officials crowded St. Mary's of the Lake church, 4200 Sheridan road, yesterday to pay final tribute to William J. Bogan, superintendent of public schools, whose death on Tuesday closed 43 years of service as a Chicago educator.

The services at the church followed a funeral procession from the Bogan home at 741 Gordon terrace. Nearly a half-mile in length and lined the entire way by uniformed R. O. T. C. students from Senn, Lake View, and Lane High schools, the route of the cortége was thronged by thousands of children and their parents. Public schools of the city were closed yesterday.

High School Choir Sings.

In the church services the Rev. Patrick Brennan celebrated solemn requiem high mass, assisted by a choir composed of students from the Carl Schurz High school.

Mayor Kelly, James B. McCahey, president, and the other members of the board of education attended the services. Former Gov. Edward F. Dunne and Charles D. Lowry, former district superintendent of schools, also were present.

The congregation, the Rev. J. J. Dennison, pastor, said in his sermon, was a "living memorial" to Mr. Bogan. Representative of teacher and pupil, he said, it contained the two groups whose lives the educator had sought to enrich.

Tells Help to Teachers.

"Never in my memory of the history of Chicago schools were the teachers so assured in their position as they were under the leadership of Mr. Bogan," Father Dennison said. "During the depression, when the teachers' hearts were almost breaking, it was his understanding and sympathy that made them stand by the schools and go on despite the humiliations and privations they underwent.

"He reigned as head of the Chicago schools, but he did not rule, for he had an abundance of intelligence and unlimited tolerance, and that which was closest to his heart was the happiness of those associated with him in the work as a great teaching body.

Lauds Student Aid.

"Many are the students whom he helped, financially and otherwise. Many are the others to whom he gave the means of reaching their ambitions in the schools under his wise guidance. In these, in the teachers and in the Chicago public schools as they now are, we have a living memorial."

Mr. Bogan, who was 65 years old, died of heart disease following an illness of two months. He had been associated with the Chicago public schools since 1893 and had been superintendent since 1928.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Shelley Bogan, a son, William, and a daughter, Katherine.

Burial services in Mount Carmel cemetery were private.

KILLS WIFE, ENDS LIFE BY LEAP AS BABY WATCHES

Felix Espigoy, 40 years old, a chauffeur, killed his wife, Theresa, 23 years old, and then plunged to his death from the third floor window of a rooming house at 26 East Chicago avenue last night after a quarrel in the presence of their 3 year old daughter, Jo Ann.

Mrs. Espigoy tried to flee from the room, but fell in the adjoining hallway and was stabbed a dozen times with a butcher knife by her husband. He then ran back to the room and leaped from the window.

A letter found in the room by Lieut. James Devereaux revealed that Mrs. Espigoy had planned to leave her husband, a Filipino, and return to her mother's home in Cincinnati.

HONOR CHARLES I. AT RITE DELAYED BY KING'S DEATH

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—In the midst of trafic swirling around Charing Cross a handful of clergy and Jacobites paid a delayed annual tribute today to the memory of Charles I., "the martyr."

The ceremony consisted of laying a wreath on his equestrian statue. The short service normally takes place Jan. 30, on the anniversary of Charles' beheading. This year it was postponed on account of the death of George V until today, the anniversary of Charles' accession 311 years ago.

Led by the robed clergy, fewer than 100 persons assembled at the base of the statue.

THOUSANDS WEEP FOR VENIZELOS AT FUNERAL IN CRETE

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

CANEA, Crete, March 27.—A year almost to the day after former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos fled from his revolutionary headquarters with his wife under a rain of bombs from Greek army airplanes, the late Cretan dictator's body was brought here today aboard a Greek destroyer. On the ship were Venizelos' widow and Prince Paul, whose house he had striven ineffectually to block from the throne.

The destroyer Konduriotic, with the coffin on her foredeck, followed by two other destroyers, passed the mourning draped lighthouse off Canea amid the tolling of bells and sobs from thousands gathered on the breakwater, the quays and adjoining streets.

The casket, on a gun carriage, was drawn through the streets by 100 Creton peasants.

A throng of 30,000 filled the town. Some even came from Macedonia. They pushed against the lines of soldiers in a rush to touch the casket. The archbishop of Crete conducted the funeral service. The body will lie in state in the church for three days before it is laid to rest in a marble tomb in Venizelos' native village, 30 miles from here.

SERVICES HERE TOMORROW.

The late Eleutherios Venizelos, former premier of Greece, will be honored tomorrow in all Greek Orthodox churches of the city. The most impressive memorial tribute to the former Greek statesman will be held at St. Constantine church, 61st street and Michigan avenue, where Archbishop Genadeos, a prelate from the Ecumencial patriarchate of Constantinople will officiate.

MRS. EDITH HILL DIES; DAUGHTER OF NOTED ARTIST

Mrs. Edith Healy Hill, 86 years old, daughter of the late George P. A. Healy, one of the first portrait painters to make his home in Chicago, died yesterday in the home of her sister, Mrs. C. H. Besly of 420 South Park avenue, Hinsdale. She was the widow of Lysander Hill, a patent attorney in Chicago from 1881 until his death in 1914.

Mrs. Hill was born in Washington, D. C., but the Healy family home for many years was on Ontario street. Her father painted the portraits of several kings and presidents. Much of his work is now housed in a private art gallery at the home of Mrs. Besly and several portraits by him hang in the lobby of Newberry library.

Private funeral services will be held Monday in a chapel at Hinsdale.

EX-U. S. COURT AID SENTENCED AS EMBEZZLER

Ferdinand W. Scherer, 63 years old, former cashier in the office of clerk of the United States District court here, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of having embezzled $3,500 of the funds of his office. Federal Judge Fred L. Wham of East St. Louis, called to hear the case because the judges in this district are acquainted with the defendant, denied a motion for probation and sentenced Scherer to serve eighteen months on the federal penal farm at Milan, Mich.

Scherer's total peculations were nearly $18,000, but the statute of limitations had outlawed all except $3,500.

Funeral Services Held for Mrs. Elizabeth McBride

Funeral services were held Thursday from Our Lady of Peace church, 79th street and Jeffery avenue, for Mrs. Elizabeth McBride, 86 years old, early Chicago resident who died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Knowles, at 427 Greenfield street, Oak Park. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery. Besides her daughter she is survived by two sons, James McBride, principal of the Phillips Elementary school, 39th street and Prairie avenue, and Matthew J. McBride, chief engineer at the city hall.

Hold Funeral Rites Today for J. Richard Schroeter

Funeral services for J. Richard Schroeter, 71 years old, 1144 Diversey parkway, a flute player with the Chicago Symphony orchestra for 25 years until illness forced him to retire two years ago, will be held this afternoon in Graceland cemetery chapel. Mr. Schroeter died Thursday in his home. He was born in Amsterdam, Holland, and was a member of the Concert Gebown there for 15 years before he came to Chicago. His widow, Mrs. Klasina Schroeter, survives.

GEORGE R. DALE, FORMER MAYOR OF MUNCIE, DIES

Muncie, Ind., March 27.—[Special.]—George H. Dale, 64, farmer militant mayor of Muncie and bitter foe of the Ku Klux Klan when it was at the height of its power in Indiana, died at his home here today of a cerebral hemorrhage.

GEORGE R. DALE.

Since his retirement in 1935 from the mayorship, which he held six years, Dale had devoted his time to his newspaper, the Post-Democrat, which he established 20 years ago.

Dale's acts as editor of the paper and while mayor attracted national attention. He used the weekly paper in a vigorous campaign against the klan. He was twice sentenced to prison during his stormy political career, was unsuccessful in appeals to the United States Supreme court and then was pardoned in both cases.

Dale came to Muncie in 1915 when Dr. Rollin H. Bunch, then mayor, brought him here and made him a police sergeant. He founded his weekly paper to support Bunch's campaign for reëlection.

Dale was born in Monticello, Ind., in February, 1869. He is survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons.

RADIO SERVICE MEN TO WAR ON GADGET FRAUDS

Radio accessory racketeers, who sell set owners useless gadgets on impossible promises, will be exposed by the Institute of Radio Service Men. Directors of the institute, which opened its fourth annual convention yesterday in the Hotel Sherman agreed on a program to advertise in newspapers and broadcast warnings against accessory frauds.

The national radio trade show, being held with the service men's gathering, features windmills designed for charging battery sets, and a covered wagon trailer equipped as a service station, both designed to please the rural radio user.

More than 4,000 service men and amateur operators are registered for the convention. Yesterday they elected John T. Rose of Endicott, N. Y., and Harold Nitze of Sheboygan, Wis., president and vice president of the institute, and reëlected Joseph Kamys of Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

Today the service men will visit W-G-N's new studios and other broadcasting plants.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Last Monday the sponsors of the CBS Radio theater announced on the air that Bette Davis would appear next Monday evening in Thomas Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For." Miss Davis at the time of the announcement was on the train en route to New York and heard with misgivings the play she was to appear in.

Arriving here Wednesday, she announced that she would positively not do "Bought and Paid For." "It's old and it's corny," she explained, and indicated further that it was not worth her attention or consideration. [She had just won the motion picture academy's award as the best actress of the year.]

"I want to do 'East Is West,'" she announced determinedly. That's a play by Shipman and Hymer in which Fay Bainter starred about a dozen years ago.

Yesterday an announcement came along from the sponsor explaining that "Bought and Paid For" had been dropped and that Miss Davis would appear in Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse." Thus Miss Davis scored a victory and the sponsor's representatives did not altogether lose face.

Woman's Body Recovered from River in Forest Park

The body of a middle aged woman was taken from the Des Plaines river yesterday in Forest Park near the line of Harrison street. The body bore evidence of serious ailments and the forehead was bruised, but the lungs contained little water, according to Dr. Herman Jacobson, coroner's physician, who surmised that the woman had struck her head during a dizzy spell and had rolled into the water. The body was held for identification at 7319 Madison street, Forest Park.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's oldest enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, mild and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache caused by constipation — you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

FOUR FOUND DEAD IN WRECKAGE OF PLANE IN ARIZONA

Tucson, Ariz., March 27.—[Special.]—Four prominent Phoenix business men were found dead today in the wreckage of their plane which had crashed on a ranch near Oracle, Ariz., just north and east of the Calalona mountains. The men were flying from Douglas to Phoenix.

Wreckage of the plane was found by Tommy Rhodes, son of the owner of the ranch where the ship crashed. Word of the discovery was telephoned to Tucson by Justice of the Peace Jamieson of Oracle.

Several army planes, which had just arrived in Tucson from March field, California, left for the crash scene. E. V. Pettis, department of commerce inspector for Arizona, also went by plane to investigate the wreck.

THREE POISONS MADE BY GERMS OF TUBERCULOSIS

Science Seeks Means to Kill Action.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—The discovery that the germ of tuberculosis manufactures in the human body three particularly poisonous chemicals by means of which the disease is produced, and the isolation of a fourth substance necessary for the germ's breathing processes, was reported here today before the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The discovery, it is hoped, will open the way to an entirely new approach to the treatment of the white plague. By finding the special poisons employed by the germ, science can now concentrate its efforts toward devising substances that would counteract these poisons and make them harmless.

Will Try Suffocation.

It is further hoped that by introducing into the body harmless chemicals that would neutralize the substance necessary for the germ's breathing, a way will have been found to suffocate the germ and thus prevent it from manufacturing its deadly substances.

The work, reported by Prof. R. J. Anderson of Yale university, culminates a nine year study by fourteen outstanding chemists on the various chemicals manufactured by the tubercule bacillus.

In all, 170 separate chemicals, about a third of them of a previously unknown variety, have so far been found in the study to be manufactured by the germ of tuberculosis. These, Dr. Anderson stated, probably represent only a half of the total number of chemicals produced in the body by the living germ.

Three Elements Isolated.

Dr. Anderson said three substances—an acid, a sugar and a protein—which are poisonous to animals which have tuberculosis, have been isolated and their chemical nature determined.

The three known substances cannot be said to cause tuberculosis, he added, since only the chemicals and not the germ have been the subject of the experiments.

However, he said they do cause the nodules of "cheesy-like" tissue which are characteristic of the disease.

The acid has been named "phthioic" acid, and is known to science solely as a result of the cehmical action of the tuberculosis germ. When injected into experimental animals already having tuberculosis, this acid caused their deaths within a few hours, Dr. Anderson said.

TWO MERCHANTS ASK $250,000 OVER ARREST IN SOUTH

Two Chicago department store owners have filed damage suits for a total of $250,000 in the federal court at Little Rock, Ark., with the Oak Lawn Jocky club of Hot Springs and Sherif James H. Floyd of Garland county, Arkansas, as defendants.

The plaintifs are George Sanders, whose store is at 5619 West 63d street, and Isadore Berkowitz, who operates a store at 6330 Irving Park boulevard. They alleged in their bill that they were falsely arrested as suspected pickpockets, locked up in the county jail at Hot Springs and held prisoners for three days; also that they were beaten while in confinement and robbed of $50 each.

Aside from Sherif Floyd, individuals named as defendants are John Condon, half owner of the race track, and Marion Anderson, a deputy sherif and one of the special policemen at the track.

Sanders and Berkowitz declared that they were seized without warning in the Kingsway hotel in Hot Springs by Floyd, Anderson, and Thomas Kelly, the latter a special track policeman and former Chicago detective, and were not released until March 6. They added they had not been to the race track and were in Hot Springs only to take baths.

CHICAGO TO GET NEW AIR LINE BY TWA EXPANSION

Service Via Dayton to New York Planned.

Dayton, O., March 27.—[Special.]—Announcement today that this city is to become a regular port of call for Transcontinental and Western Air planes early in the fall was seen here as the beginning of the airline's expansion program which may include the purchasing of two "secondary" airlines which have been in operation since 1933.

Jack Frye, president of TWA and Mayor Charles Brennan joined today in stating that Dayton would become one of the stops on the airline's primary route about Sept. 1. This will give the city its first air passenger and mail service. Other TWA officers said they are planning also to operate planes between Dayton and Chicago beginning about the same time.

Upsets 1935 "Freezing."

Opening of a Chicago-Dayton route to connect with Dayton-New York planes would give TWA a new service between Chicago and New York, it was pointed out here by observers. Although this might not be a technical violation of the Air Mail act of 1935, it would in fact upset the "freezing of the air line picture as of July 1, 1935," which was a part of that legislation.

Business between Chicago and New York has been brisk, and highly competitive as well, with American Airlines and United Air Lines flying against TWA. Recently TWA trafic men have clamored for more flights, but these the line could not supply because of the law. If, however, the Chicago-Dayton-New York route can be opened up, three or four other daily schedules could be flown over it.

Competitive Schedule Possible.

Flying time from Chicago to Dayton with Douglas DC-2s would average no more than an hour and twenty minutes; and the time from Dayton to New York would not exceed three hours 15 minutes, and for competitive purposes might be lowered to three hours. Thus a Chicago-New York service via Dayton could be offered in four hours 20 minutes, only 12 minutes more than the Chicago-Pittsburgh-New York time, on the more direct route.

The two secondary airlines which may be purchased by TWA are Braniff Airways and Central Airlines, it was stated. Braniff operates between Chicago and Brownsville, Tex., and Central between Detroit and Washington via Pittsburgh. Negotiations, it is understood, have been under way between Lehman Bros., bankers and controling interest in TWA, and owners of both these lines for some time.

EARLY MORNING GALE CRASHES STORE WINDOWS

Gusty March winds which reached a maximum velocity of 31 miles an hour in the early morning broke several plate glass windows in Chicago yesterday. A drug store at 4600 Sheridan road, a clothing store at 1049 Wilson avenue, and a drug store at 7451 Yates avenue were among the places damaged.

The lives of several pedestrians were endangered in the afternoon when the wind dislodged a section of a brick ledge on the fifth floor of the Biltmore building, 1504 East 53d street, and hurled the débris to the street.

Official records show that the highest wind velocity in Chicago in March was 53 miles an hour on the 27th, in 1890. The all time high is 65 miles an hour on Feb. 12, 1894. The average wind velocity in March is 13.3 miles an hour, higher than any other month.

IDENTIFY ROBBER DRUGGIST SLEW; PAROLED CONVICT

Police said yesterday that the robber shot to death Tuesday night by Olaf H. Ohlson, druggist at 5046 Lincoln avenue, was Liberato Tommasi, alias Joe Thomas, 34 years old, a paroled convict.

Identification was established by Mrs. Irene McMahon, owner of a rooming house at 1130 Wrightwood avenue, to whom Tommasi was paroled in August, 1933, after serving a sentence in the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., for violation of the Mann act. Mrs. McMahon said that Tommasi had been living at her place since last June. Last November he was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A coroner's jury yesterday found that the shooting of Tommasi was justifiable homicide.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Winter Leaves Mark.

March 27, 1936.

FURTHER evidence of the recent severe winter was discovered by the boys on the Yorkville farm during the last week. They had to dig a hole for an anchor post of a new fence the other day and found at least 27 inches of frost in the ground. When they reached the 27 inch mark they decided to give up their experiment because that was as far as they had to go for their post hole, but it is probable that the ground was frozen even deeper.

The other example of the winter's severity was due to the heavy snows. At the places where Rob Roy creek enters the Yorkville farm, and where it has cut a channel in flowing out of the farm, the fences are torn down—ruined by the unusually swift current of this little creek which ordinarily is well behaved. The boys are going to repair the damaged fencing in a few days.

Plenty to Do.

There are plenty of things to do on the farms these days. Aside from building new fences and repairing old ones, the boys are cleaning oats for seed, wading through the mud to feed the steers, shelling corn, hauling fertilizer, and making plans for the spring planting season.

Garden Work Starts Soon.

So far none of the women on the Yorkville farm have started work on their vegetable or flower gardens, but we noticed the other day that Mrs. Louis Thurow Sr. had one of the boys raking her front yard. It won't be long before the garden work will start.

Raccoons Wait Transfer.

There are two raccoons on the Wheaton farm which are soon to be transferred to the Brookfield zoo, where they will have plenty of chances to meet "their public." These coons have been mannerly and quiet all winter, but, now that spring is here, they seem to be dissatisfied with their present quarters. Two of their buddies in a nearby pen found a few weak wires and opened a hole big enough to escape.

Ducks Visit Yorkville.

There have been plenty of duck visitors on the Yorkville farm the last few days, stopping over on their way to their northern nesting grounds. They have been landing on the Fox river, which runs through the farm, and the boys have seen as many as 150 of them on the place at once.

Fire.

A fire which damaged the home of Frank Budd, a neighbor living near the Yorkville experimental farm, again focused attention on the neighborliness of farmers. Everybody was out in force to help Budd and his family salvage as much furniture and clothes as possible. Then several trucks were pressed into action to help the neighbor move to another house, one of the trucks being furnished by the Tribune farm.

"Tips on Tea Parties," a booklet of afternoon tea suggestions, menus, and recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Let's make something springlike today, cooksters. How about a creamy, smooth, frozen fruit salad?

Here's a perfectly delectable frozen salad that you can make either in the freezing trays of an automatic refrigerator or in a mold, packed in a mixture of ice and salt. Young cooks will find this fun to make, while you can be sure that the grown-ups of the family are going to praise it, too, when mealtime comes around. It's taken from a recipe sent in by Cookster Susan J. of Chicago.

FROZEN AMBROSIA SALAD.

1. Measure 2 cups of any kind of fruit, fresh or canned [a mixture of several kinds is especially good] and cut each piece into tiny bits. Drain all the juice from the fruit.

2. Measure 3 tablespoons of the mixed fruit juices and combine it with 1 teaspoon of granulated gelatin in the top of a double boiler.

3. Place the double boiler top over boiling water, and stir until the gelatin is all dissolved in the fruit juice.

4. Measure 1-3 cup of mayonnaise and slowly add the gelatin-fruit juice mixture to it.

5. Measure 2-3 of a cup of heavy cream. In a separate bowl whip it until it's stiff and fluffy.

6. Fold the whipped cream into the mayonnaise mixture, stirring it lightly until it's thoroughly mixed.

7. Add the chopped fruit to the cream and mayonnaise, along with ⅛ teaspoon [just a pinch] of salt.

8. Sweeten the salad to taste. If you use sweetened canned fruits you may need no sugar, while a mixture of fresh oranges, and bananas, and grapefruit might need as much as 4 tablespoons of sugar. But don't make it too sweet!

Now, if you're going to freeze your salad in an automatic refrigerator, follow the directions under part A. If you're going to pack it in ice and salt, skip right down to part B.

A.

9. Turn the salad mixture into the freezing trays of the refrigerator and set the controls for the coldest possible temperature. Let it freeze, without stirring, until it is firm, but not until it's hard and icy. Three hours should be ample time, but you'll have to decide that according to how fast it's freezing.

B.

9. Turn the salad mixture into an oiled big mold or individual molds. Cover the tops [unless the molds have tightly fitting covers] with two layers of waxed paper and fasten them securely in place with string or rubber bands.

10. Pack the molds in a half and half mixture of coarse salt and crushed ice and let them stand until firm. Four hours probably will be necessary for a large mold, while the little ones may be frozen in 2 to 3 hours.

Unmold the frozen salad on crisp lettuce leaves and serve it with a fruit mayonnaise. To make this, here's the trick:

Fluffy Fruit Mayonnaise.

Combine ½ cup of mayonnaise with 3 tablespoons of fruit juice or sirup drained from canned fruit. Whip ½ cup of heavy cream until thick, then lightly fold into the mayonnaise.

ENGLAND CELEBRATES CENTENARY OF FAT, MADCAP MR. PICKWICK

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—All England prepared today to celebrate the centenary of Dickens' immortal Mr. Pickwick.

Delegates from the 76 branches of the Dickens Fellowship in the United States, Argentina, Denmark, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and other countries tonight opened a six day period of rejoicing over the creation of the fat, bespectacled, great hearted gentleman who launched Dickens on the road to fame.

Just 100 years ago a struggling 24 year old sketch writer named Charles Dickens sat in his bleak little chamber in Furnival's inn and dashed off the first chapters that set first the nation, then much of the world, to laughing at the madcap adventures of Mr. Pickwick and his fellow members of the Pickwick club.

On March 26, 1836, Pickwick was first advertised in a London newspaper, but the great man's "birth" was not until five days later, when the first number appeared on the bookstalls. Only 400 copies of this issue were sold, at a shilling [25 cents] a copy. Today any single page from the original 2,000 sheet manuscript is worth nearly $10,000.

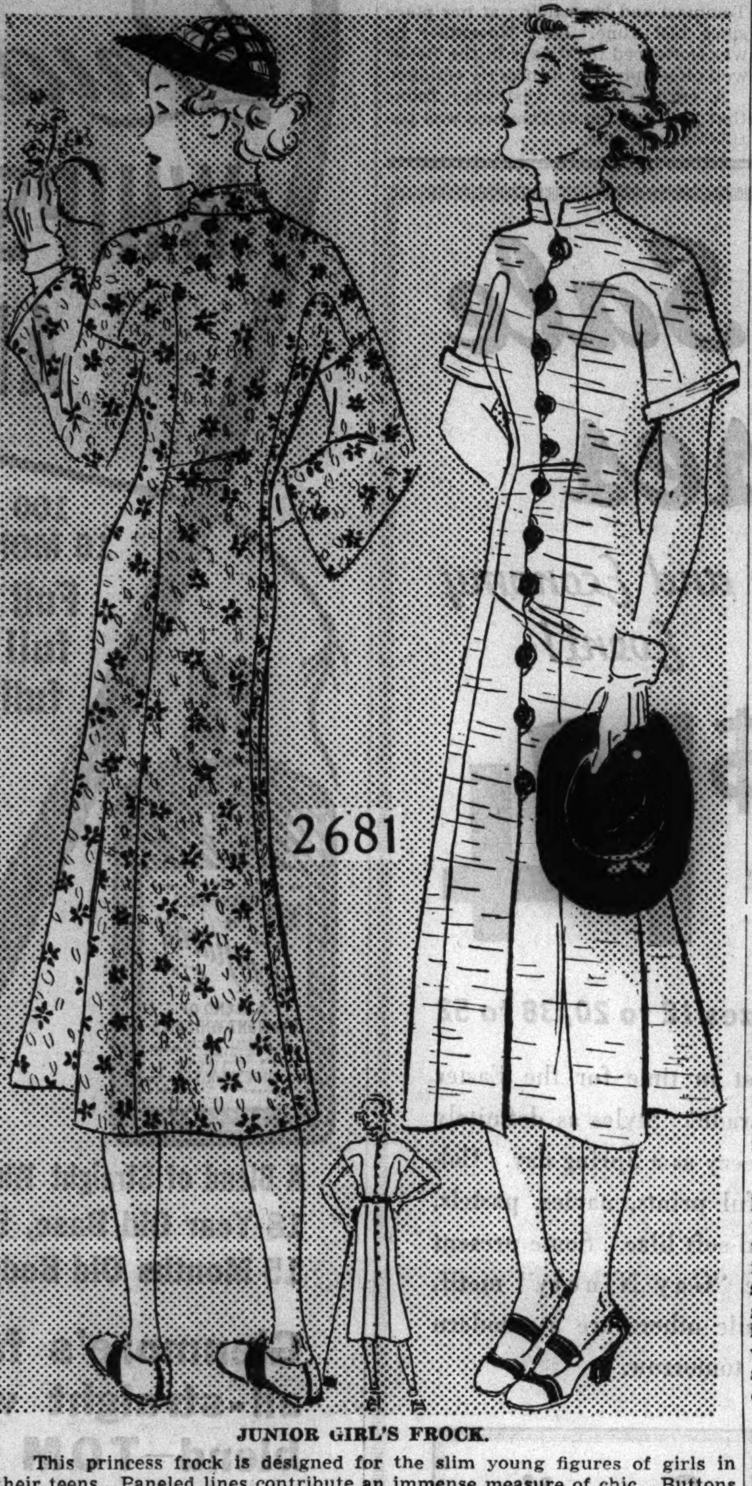
New Mode for Teen Years



JUNIOR GIRL'S FROCK.

This princess frock is designed for the slim young figures of girls in their teens. Paneled lines contribute an immense measure of chic. Buttons add their share of charm and the pert little standing collar is military in its jauntiness. The original of this frock is dashing in red and blue printed silk crêpe.

Any junior will be able to make it herself. The sleeves cut in one with the shoulders. You may make the sleeves long or short, depending on whether or not you want the frock for dress wear. With long sleeves it has a definite sophistication for daytime wear. For school or sports it is smart with the short ones.

This mode will be found indispensable for the active days of summer. It will be practical, too, in washable fabrics such as cottons with linen weave. White piqué makes an attractive trimming, with the buttons also in white.

Style No. 2681 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, and 17 years. Size 15 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Liberty Pictures, Inc., Expects to Use New Studios in Florida

New York, March 27.—(AP)—M. H. Hoffman Sr., president of Liberty Pictures, Inc., said today he might produce some motion pictures in Florida during the next year in studios being built by his son, M. H. Hoffman Jr., but did not contemplate any immediate move of his own enterprises to the east.

The younger Hoffman, who has produced in California under the name of Allied Pictures, has organized the Florida enterprise under the name of Pan American Studios, Inc. His father said that one sound stage started early this year is nearing completion near Miami and will be ready for use by June 1.

"Naturally," the father said, "I'll give my son all the support I can. I favored his move or he wouldn't have gone. Liberty Pictures will not move from California this year, but after that, who knows? Meanwhile, I may produce a couple of pictures in my son's studios this year, just as I would at any other location away from Hollywood.

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if within a couple of years Florida has a fair share of motion picture production. A move for me at this time would be premature, however. I couldn't afford it."

Some Conduct of Child Only Passing Phase

Ignore It and It Will Disappear.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

One of the truest observations I have ever found in a mother's letter and one of the most helpful to pass on is this:

"I make up my mind that something the children have been doing is getting to be a habit and not a good one, and that I'd better get busy and stop it. Then something else comes along that takes my mind up, and when I think of their naughtiness again, I find that it's gone. This has happened a number of times lately, and I've decided that if you don't make too much of a fuss over their little ways, the first thing you know they've outgrown them."

There seem to be many trying phases that some children have to pass through. Most of these it's normal for them to go through—part of growth, development, or the assimilation of new experiences.

What makes us worry over them and exaggerate their importance is two things. One is that we don't understand the reason for them; and the other is that we set up some impossible ideal of what we want our small son and daughter to be, and when they don't fit into the beautiful outlines of the picture we feel sure something is wrong with their character and set about to change them, more or less by force.

One good example of this is the horror with which mothers first hear the rosebud lips of their darling use the first "bad" words—"bad" meaning almost anything from a mild version of "swear words" to slang, gangster words that have slipped into our boys' vocabulary, or vulgar words—all unwittingly used as a rule, and appealing because of their novelty or gustiness.

Some phases of behavior are almost inevitable. To realize that they are passing phases, to ignore them to a reasonable degree, then control them to a sensible degree, is the most workable advice I can give you.

Girl Is Unwise to Hide Fact of Earlier Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is a divorcée, traveling under unmarried girl colors and hopeful of getting away with it.

It's astounding how many people, men and women, proceed on this deceitful basis in the one adventure which calls for the greatest confidence, namely, marriage. How they expect to bluff through a fact that can be unearthed by the simple turning over of marriage license pages is beyond the imagination. One reads in news items every now and then of a trusting mate suddenly finding himself or herself confronted with the fact that he or she was deceived into thinking the marriage was a first for both. In this department we are asked now and then about the chances of keeping a former marriage hidden from the "new heart."

Today's questioner on the subject is in the early twenties, with a divorce diploma already in her possession. She has been taken into the heart of the family of the young man with whom she now is desperately in love. She sees the young man three times a week and he speaks of her almost every time as the ideal of his dreams, a girl who hasn't run around or had any experience.

"If I told him the truth, he'd be terribly shocked, hurt, and God knows what!" the young woman confides. "His feelings would change, I'm sure. I have been on the verge of telling him the truth time and again, but my parents plead with me not to do it, until he proposes! What do you think is right? Tell him now or wait until he proposes. It's tragic, when you meet the one man in the world who believes in you, to have to shatter his ideals, isn't it? I love him so dearly I want to do the right thing!"

We can't see any advantage in waiting until the man proposes to make the revelation. He isn't going to be any more bound because of the proposal. He can come back with the defense that you were maneuvering under false colors, if your plan was to hold him in spite of everything. Marriage under such conditions of pressure would be horrible. How much easier it would have been to come clean the first time the man expressed his regard! You always have to count on that stinging conscience where deceit is being practiced on the one man that matters. You are going through it now, young woman, and the simplest thing would be to tell the man right away, regardless of the outcome. He still may want to stick around. If he doesn't, there is no use prolonging the agony. The truth will come out anyway. Your chances are better if you are the one to tell him first.

Junior League Seeks Better Social Service

Trained Members Urged as Means to End.

BY MARCIA WINN.

The old conception of the Junior league as a "Lady Bountiful" association was discarded yesterday by Miss Virginia Howlett of New York City, executive welfare director of the Association of Junior Leagues of America.

Speaking before the Junior league of Chicago at the Drake hotel Miss Howlett admitted that Junior Leaguing once was a "fad," or, as she worded it, "a way for giving the leisure girl some outlet for her altruistic motives."

"We're not playing at loose ends now," Miss Howlett declared. "We're coördinated, with a professional staf directing the activity. We work through existing agencies. The league now has developed into a longtime program, a directed force.

"Our aim is to guide the education of our members so that we will have a better informed body. We want them to know that, educated in welfare work, they have an opportunity to wield an actual influence upon welfare standards, but not through political pressure," she declared.

League members, she said, are urged not to attempt "remedial" social service, such as carrying milk to babies, but "constructive" work, aligning themselves with other agencies as volunteers.

"It's so important that when you work with an agency as a volunteer, you see further than that service," she urged the Chicago group. "You must see how that fits in with the general program. Otherwise it isn't effective."

State Celebration of Lorado Taft's Birthday Planned

A plan to invite state-wide participation in the celebration of Lorado Taft's seventy-sixth birthday on April 29 is to be made by members of newspaper, school, club, and business groups of the state. The initial announcement was featured in the April issue of the Illinois Journal of Commerce which briefly sketched the life of the sculptor and listed the more important of his works.

A committee has been appointed to contact organizations and to recommend special meetings, study classes and library observance of Mr. Taft's career. The committee is composed of Lane K. Newberry, painter of Illinois historical scenes; Mrs. Eleanor Jewett, Dr. R. E. Hieronymus, dean of the art extension school of the University of Illinois; Mrs. Alfred G. cook, Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, and J. T. Meek, editor of the Illinois Journal of Commerce.

"Mr. Taft has made an outstanding contribution to the world as a sculptor and as a distinguished citizen," declared Mr. Newberry. "Born at Elmwood 76 years ago he has spent a lifetime as a citizen of Illinois adding luster to its name. His works are internationally famous. His 'Fountain of Time' on the Midway in Chicago, his 'Alma Mater' at the University of Illinois, his 'Blackhawk' near Oregon, and his 'Fountain of the Great Lakes' in Grant park are outstanding."

The complexion of radiance—a radiance achieved by cleanliness and lubrication—is an asset to women of all ages. There are two new creams designed to help beauty's cause.

Two fairly new creams to consider oday. We must admit that some of he chatter about their being "non-cid," or "neutralizing," or some such hing, dampened our enthusiasm when hey were unknown to us—but the act remains that they're a nice pair f creams that will do a good job. Which, incidentally, is all we ask. alk about "acidity" and what not ust makes us yawn when we're com-lacent and burn up when we're in ur reforming mood.

One is a cleanser and one a soften-g or nourishing cream. Milk of agnesia is incorporated into both.

The cleanser is an efficient one, ne we would recommend unhesitat-ngly for the woman whose skin eeds clarification and who has a endency toward blackheads or an xcess of oil. It liquefies. The woman ith a dingy skin will find that if she ses it correctly and frequently her kin will be cleaner and brighter.

It's rather important, with a cream f this type, not to be too hasty in he cleansing job. Massage it in and give it a moment or two to effect what penetration is possible. Then remove it from small areas at a time [don't draw soiled tissue all over the face!] and if you want to be particularly careful, or if yours is the sort of skin that seems to love grime not wisely but too well, give yourself the benefit of a second application.

The companion cream, for softening, is a rich one that can be used as a night cream if the skin is very dry. It's white, and at first glance seems almost heavy, but you'll find that its texture is just about what you like. You can leave it on over night if you like. And using it before making up is a good trick; apply it, wipe it off, and enough will adhere to make a most satisfactory and protective powder base.

These creams aren't expensive.

Good Morning!

So long as Hugh Herbert, Joan Blondell, and Jack Oakie are in evidence the customers have a rousing good time. Otherwise, they accord amiable but not enthusiastic attention to "Colleen," which, as a whole, is just some more song and dance routine.

Though Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell are, technically, I suppose, the stars of the film, outside of the singing and dancing—and Ruby doesn't do much singing and Dick doesn't do any dancing—they really haven't any very important connection with the story. It concerns a middle aged millionaire playboy of "arrested development," whose listening ear always harks to the sad stories of wide eyed, fast thinking gold diggers, and whose propensity for adopting them, setting them up in dress shops and buying skating rinks for them, keeps the family name in the tabloads and the family in a high state of jitters.

Cedric Ames' nearest relatives are his wife [Louise Fazenda] and his nephew, Donald [Mr. Powell]. Mrs. Ames, "The most beautiful debutante of the McKinley era"—to quote Mrs. Ames—has developed chronic indigestion because of Cedric's peculiarities, and Nephew Donald is kept busy trying to foil his eccentric relative.

Cedric's hiring of a chiseling Joe Cork [Mr. Oakie] as his "executive manager" and his plans to make a dear little daughter out of a blonde chocolate dipper [Miss Blondell] are the cause of much of the flurry and worry of the production.

Miss Keeler—pretty and appealing as ever—is Colleen Reilly, manager, designer, and bookkeeper of the dress shop which big hearted Uncle Cedric buys for his latest bunny-wunny. It is here that Colleen meets young Ames—who is, of course, destined to cut out young Cork, her present fiancé.

The picture has a couple of good songs and a somewhat out of the ordinary fashion show, which, with music, dancing, and pantomime, tells a romantic story of what clothes may do for a beautiful lady. It has bits of bright dialog, much able acting, and several amusing situations. But the piece as a whole lacks coördination and there are some pretty draggy intervals.

I think, from the looks of things, they're trying to make a team of Ruby Keeler and Paul Draper—an excellent dancer, who looks a bit like Fred Astaire. They have several important dancing numbers and quite a few lines together. And you realize anew how good Rogers and Astaire are.

See you tomorrow.

SOMETIMES a master of one trade finds himself forced to be a jack of several more as a side line. Take the case of Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, Chicago harpsichordists who are appearing in concert at the Goodman theater April 1. As possessors of the largest playable collection of harpsichords in the country they are forced to be harpsichord tuners as well as curators, teachers, and historians. Their instruments were made for them in the ateliers of Pleyel of Paris in 1925. Since that time they have kept them in tune themselves. It seems that no piano tuner, however sensitive his ear, can adjust himself to the tonal color combinations of the harpsichord, which greatly outnumber those of the piano. The harpsichord is so delicate and so susceptible to weather conditions that it must be tuned every three or four days, fall, spring, and winter.

Ten Thousand Attend Field Mass Marking Massacre of Texans

Houston, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—An ancient bell tolling from the 200 year old mission La Bahia, near Goliad, summoned more than 10,000 persons to a pontifical field mass today in commemoration of the massacre of Col. James Walker Fannin and 300 followers a century ago.

A month after Mexican soldiers wiped out the Texas forces independence was won on the battlefield of San Jacinto, near here.

A century old wooden plow broke the ground of that battlefield today for a $900,000 memorial to the 783 Texans who fought there April 21, 1836. A 564 foot shaft will be erected, towering above a museum, art gallery, and amphitheater.

Forty thousand people witnessed a two mile parade at Goliad.

Chicagoans Are Engaged to Eastern Girls

C. H. Adams, F. C. Bartlett to Take Brides.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements of interest are being announced during the week-end in the east. Today in Bronxville, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop C. Haynes are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Harriet, to Cyrus Hall Adams III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall Adams of 1500 Lake Shore drive. At Dorset, Vt., tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Holley West will make known the betrothal of their daughter, Elisabeth, to Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett of Beverly, Mass., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Young Mr. Adams will not be in Bronxville to receive the congratulations of his fiancée's friends, but his mother and father, who left recently for New York and Charleston, S. C., are in New York today, where they are meeting Mr. and Mrs. Haynes and their family, who are just returning from a South American cruise.

Mr. Adams will receive congratulations this evening, however, at a stag party Princeton graduates of the last seven years are giving. Mr. Adams was graduated from Princeton in 1931. He prepared for Princeton at the Hill school. His friends will have the opportunity of meeting his charming and attractive fiancée when she comes to Chicago in May to visit Mr. and Mrs. Adams. Miss Haynes attended Wellesley college.

Bartlett Family Prominent Here.

Because of the Bartlett family's connections here, Miss West's engagement to Mr. Bartlett is of great interest to Chicagoans, even though Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett no longer include this city among their addresses, and in spite of the fact that Mr. Bartlett Jr. does not spend as much time here as he formerly did.

Miss West is a graduate of Burr and Burton seminary, and a prominent member of the Dorset players. Mr. Bartlett attended Harvard university, where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding, the Harvard Instrumental, and the Iroquois Clubs.

The club first appeared in Chicago in 1881.

SYNOPSIS.

Inspector Sandy Ross and Buck Wasey of the department of justice travel from Reno to Vinton City in search of information on Sociable Joe Willis, suspected of assisting in armored car robberies. A collision of two cars on a mountain road brings Jane Bronson into Sandy's life. But she vanishes when she learns his identity. Jane had come to Vinton City to plead with her brother, Lee, known there as Ray Hammer, to give up his gang connections. Lee makes a hurried getaway with Jane, driving a cream colored car, and Lee deliberately runs down Sociable Joe. Sociable Joe denies knowing Jane Bronson or Ray Hammer. Meanwhile in San Francisco the Lurch-McKeevor mob await the arrival of Lee Bronson, needed for his ability in female impersonating. The cream colored car is located at a tourist camp near Gunnison, Colo., where Sandy and Buck speed by plane. They find Jane alone. She confesses her brother carried a machine gun and left in anger at her pleas to go straight. An outfit of Jane's clothes is missing. In Gunnison Sandy uncovers clews which lead him to believe that Lee Bronson, dressed as a woman, took a train for San Francisco. Sandy leaves Jane under surveillance and he and Buck fly to San Francisco. Before they reach there another armored car holdup has been attempted. Lee Bronson, in woman's disguise, escapes with the gang after wounding two policemen. With the coöperation of Banderson, in charge of the San Francisco field office, Sandy finds the gang's hideout. The gang has fled, leaving no evidence. Sandy takes sheets from the beds to have them chemically treated for finger prints.

INSTALMENT XXX.

A SCIENTIFIC SEARCH.

"Now we'll see who outsmarts who!" Sandy said quietly as they sought their automobiles for the return to the office. "Then maybe," he yawned, "we can get some sleep."

Their cars, however, were not the only ones which contained persons highly interested in that day's attempted holdup. Two others, both stolen, and spaced some five miles apart, were swirling dust as they moved swiftly along a country road near Fresno. At last, at the outskirts of town, the lead car halted.

"All right, Pal," said Jimmy Lurch from his position at the wheel, "here's where you shake it."

Lee Bronson, restored to men's clothing, had been nodding in the front seat. Now he straightened abruptly.

"Where are we?"

"Fresno," said Ancy from the tonneau. "Here's where you duck. Guess I'll be next, won't I, Jimmy?" he asked with great emphasis. "Where do you suppose I'd better drop off?"

"O, we'll decide that when we get going," answered Jimmy Lurch. "It'll have to be somewhere that you can head south from. Got to split up in all directions, you know."

"O sure," said Andy. "Only chance we've got now, with things hot like they are."

Lee Bronson hesitated.

"Where'll I get in touch with you guys?"

Jimmy laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't try it, pal. We'll get in touch with you. Now where do you think you'll hole up?"

Lee Bronson grinned.

"Where I'm safest," he answered. "I know plenty guys in Kansas City."

"Ain't that right?" asked Ancy. "Hit for where you've got friends."

"Yeh, lay low here for a couple o' days," Jimmy urged. "Then snatch yourself a hot short, change the tags on 'er and drive into Kansas City easy. Got your rods on you, ain't you?" he asked quickly.

"Sure," said Bronson. "Under my armpits."

"Attaboy," said Jimmy. "Okay, punk, you're good, see." He jabbed forth a hand. "Now scram."

There was a fervent farewell.

"And don't get moving into town until after Jock McKeevor passes in that short of his," admonished Ancy.

"O, sure not."

The door closed behind Lee Bronson. Jimmy watched him only until his faint shadow had disappeared into the weeds of a vacant lot. Then with a half grin he meshed gears and started onward. Ancy climbed over into the front seat.

"A guy can bull that damned little fool into anything, now can't he?" Ancy asked as he lit a cigaret.

Jimmy gave a quick shake to his shoulders.

"If Jock McKeevor asks how it happens, we got to tell him the punk made a runout."

"O, you done the right thing," agreed Ancy. "Sure Jock'll be sore, but what the hell? Now suppose we'd done what he wanted us to do, bump that guy off and dump him out alongside the road. Wouldn't it have just been a signpost as to which way we were ducking? And have blood in the car and everything."

"I thought that all out," answered Jimmy with some pride. "That's where Jock and I are different. Jock gets ideas, see, and goes over-anxious on 'em. Don't think things out. Besides, I felt kind of responsible for the punk. Not that he don't deserve being bumped off—get me straight."

"Sure, he ought. He must have blowed off his mouth somewhere for the cops to have a tip on him. But he did keep his trap shut about us guys."

"Yeh, or it'd been in the papers. But that don't excuse him. Just the same, how could I rub him out, when I was the guy who fronted for him to come to San Fran? Anyway, the first cops that he steps into'll do that."

"Sure," agreed Ancy, settling in his seat. "And if they don't, Jock'll know where to find him. So what's the difference? Either way, he gets knocked over—just a matter of time."

* * * * *

The San Francisco field offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were dark, except for one large room. This ordinarily was the gymnasium. With the return of the special agents from the Lurch McKeevor hideout, however, it had begun a transformation into a chemical laboratory.

A maker of photographic supplies had been summoned from his home to provide extra-large chemical pans. A surgical supply house had furnished rubber sheeting, and a tremendous sunlight lamp—sunshine was necessary for the experiment to be conducted and Sandy was afraid of San Francisco's reputation for fogginess.

The inspector and Buck Wasey were dressed in chemists' smocks as were Special Agent Banderson and several other members of his staf. Now, with the pans and chemicals assembled, Sandy gave an order:

"We'll try a 4 per cent solution and see what that brings out."

The special agents pulled on rubber gloves. Distilled water was poured into the pans, while proportionate quantites of silver nitrate were added from graduates in which they had been measured. With the mixture ready, Sandy Ross brought from its cellophane container one of the sheets taken in the search of the bandit house.

"Get me help for this," he told Sandy. Men assembled. Then foot by foot the sheet was soaked, passing through the solution for a moment, then being moved onward as special agents held aloft the damp cloth, allowing it to drip, like the passing of a huge sheet of photographic film through a fixing bath. "Guess that's enough for a test," said the inspector finally.

They carried the sheet across the room to where the weird, bluish-green light of the huge sunlight lamp had begun to function, and there, stationing themselves, stretched the dampened portions beneath the rays. Buck pursed his lips.

"Now we'll see who knows the most—science or a bunch of hoodlums."

The weird rays shone down upon what was for a time only a stretch of mottled white, the infiltrations of the lamp revealing the fabric's every imperfection. The special agents cared not about this—they were waiting for something more important, a comparatively unknown method, used only in the bureau of investigation and the New York police department for the establishment of fingerprints where, ordinarily, they were supposed not to exist.

Few persons indeed are there who realize that every time they finger smooth cloth they leave identifying marks behind—if one knows the means of making these marks visible. That was why Sandy was examining this linen, hoping to find fingerprints made in the laying of the beds, in the pulling of covers about one's neck, even of throwing aside the bed clothes upon awakening.

For a time nothing rewarded them beyond the mottled smoothness of the cloth. At last, however, Buck, with an ejaculation, bent forward.

C. H. Adams, F. C. Bartlett to Take Brides.

He is a graduate of the architectural school of Armour institute.

In addition to his architectural work, Mr. Bartlett also is a painter, following in the footsteps of his distinguished father, who is represented in the permanent works of the Chicago Art institute, the Carnegie institute in Pittsburgh, and the Corcoran gallery in Washington, D. C.

The wedding will take place in May, and undoubtedly a number of Chicagoans will go east for the ceremony, among them Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett, Mr. Bartlett's aunt.

The party that the Princeton graduates have planned for this evening probably will have some aspects of an advance bachelor dinner for Mr. Adams, whose wedding will take place in the summer, since most of those who will be present are close friends of the bridegroom to be. Mr. Adams is a member of the committee in charge of the affair. Others on the committee include James Miksak Jr., Talcott Griswold, John H. Harmon Jr., Ogden Kniffin, Bradford Whiting, and John Peter Theurer.

Some of the wives and "lady friends" have planned consolation parties. Mrs. Harold B. Smith, whose husband was graduated from Princeton in 1931, is having a few of tonight's "widows" for dinner and bridge, among them her sister-in-law, Mrs. Morrison Waud [Anne Smith], Mrs. Talcott Griswold, Mrs. John R. Hurley [Gwendolyn Hurley], Mrs. John W. Brittingham [Grace Fitzmorris] and Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman Jr. [Helen Marie Castle].

Taber-Neukranz Nuptials Today.

At a simple ceremony this afternoon in the drawing room of the apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Taber of East Chestnut street, Miss Mary Alden Taber will become the bride of Emil Neukranz of London, Ont.

The Rev. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's elder sister, Mrs. Lawrence Y. Crump, last autumn, will read the service. The bride will wear traveling clothes and will be unattended. Horace Carver of New York will be Mr. Neukranz's best man.

Among the small group of relatives and friends who will witness the ceremony and remain afterward for high tea will be Mr. Neukranz's brother, Kurt Neukranz of Detroit; John Starr Taber of New York, the bride's brother, with Mrs. Taber, and Wallace Taber of Alpena, Mich., a cousin.

After a motor trip through the south Mr. Neukranz and his bride will live in London, Ont.

Two Sports Events Attract Attention.

For sports lovers there are two events of unusual interest this evening, the opening match in the national indoor polo championships at the 124th Field Artillery armory, and the benefit badminton matches sponsored by the Evanston junior auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society in the gymnasium of New Trier High school.

The first polo game tonight will be between the Shamrocks, made up of officers from the 124th, and the Fort Hamilton team from New York. Another New York team, Squadron C, will be matched against a Cleveland Riding club team in the second game. The first match will be in competition for the George C. Sherman Memorial cup, and the second match will be in the junior class.

A number of parties are planned along the north shore this evening in connection with the badminton matches. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ketcham are giving a supper for the out of town players in the game room of their Kenilworth home, and among others entertaining are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander E. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Laurie, Mrs. William B. Hale, and Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Bowman, all of Winnetka.

Jack Purcell, the world's singles badminton champion who is here from Canada to play tonight, with Mrs. Purcell will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. Ward Starrett at their Kenilworth home for the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Starrett are giving a dinner for them before the matches. Still others entertaining will be Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Wiltberger of Kenilworth, the Kenneth L. Wilsons, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Grier, the George A. Paddocks, all of Evanston, and the Francis Huffmans of Glencoe.

Joseph Noble, another Canadian; Walter Kramer of Detroit, the ranking American amateur, and Jack Cameron are others who will take part in the matches.

Mrs. Rudy Lamont Ruggles will give a tea Tuesday afternoon for the young women who assisted her in arranging a card party and fashion show given by the Service league recently.

Mrs. Thomas J. Condon was appointed chairman of the annual Madonna center benefit dinner-dance at a recent luncheon meeting of the dance committee at the Woman's Athletic club.

The dance will take place on Saturday evening, May 9, in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Assisting Mrs. Condon will be Mrs. J. Donald Scott, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Miss Marie Plamondon, and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin.

Chicagoans Take Spring Cruises.

Mitchell D. Follansbee and his youngest daughter, Miss Julie Follansbee, sailed yesterday for a spring holiday in Bermuda. Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords and her daughter, Miss Anne Rickcords, are on the same boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dewitt Shumway of Lake Forest sailed yesterday on the Britannic for a cruise to Nassau and Bermuda. Their daughter, Miss Grace Shumway, who is a student at St. Timothy's, and their son, Edward Jr., are accompanying them.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Brown left yesterday by motor for Birmingham, Ala., where they will spend a fortnight visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Keehn Berry.

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot have returned from Palm Beach where they spent three weeks visiting the Oscar W. Johnsons. The Talbots' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Cochran, are now established in their own apartment on the near north side. Miss Elinor Talbot is expected at home from Concord academy early next week.

Miss Ethel Husband is postponing a visit to relatives in Ohio now that her brother, Thomas Husband Jr., has decided to spend his vacation from Harvard here in Chicago. He and Peter Cable arrive dat home yesterday.

Union League Club to Hear Irving Fisher.

Irving Fisher, economist, will talk on money for members of the Union League club and their families this afternoon. His subject will be "What Is a Dollar?" The entertainment committee is sponsoring the lecture.

Professional members of the Arts club are scanning their work of the year with an eye to the annual exhibition, which open Sunday, April 5. In connection with the opening tea will be served from 4:30 until 7:30 o'clock.

Paul H. Douglas, just back from a six months' sojourn in Italy, will speak on "Impressions of Italy at War" at the next luncheon of the council of foreign relations next Friday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. Mr. Douglas is professor of economics at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Robert Raymond Owen will give a reception for members of the National League of American Pen Women Thursday afternoon at the Belmont hotel. There will be a program and tea.

Irene Rich Exemplifies How Middle Age May Be Lovely

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The grace with which certain mothers of daughters of college graduate years wear their maturity is enormously pleasing. Without attempting to defraud their years with outrageous imitations of their grown children, they still manage to present themselves as vital, bivrant women, with the qualities of youth that know no age or generation. In such a list is the name of Irene Rich, formerly of the screen, now an important radio performer, is found among the topnotchers.

She has a college graduate daughter, a younger girl still in school, and while, in many ways, she is younger looking than most mothers of girls of similar age, there is no attempt to act the skittish young parent who "married, my dear, at 16." With the consequence that Miss Rich is the lovely young mother of two talented young women who love her as close confidante, mother, and pal.

Miss Rich introduced me, some years ago in Hollywood, to my first sight of false eyelashes. She wore them first on the screen, I believe, but only on the screen. Today she does not wear them. Just recently she joined the movement to shed the back of the neck of hair. Her long time knob on the nape of the neck went into the discard for a fascinating new coiffure on the upsweep line. It's banged and curled in a new and fetching way.

I learned from Miss Rich a new way of taking your nap if you would treasure the good silhouette lines for which you struggle so hard for. You may not like it the first time, nor, indeed, even the second. But with Miss Rich's enviable silhouette lines before your vision you might learn to take this nap and like it. She winds herself in a padded quilt and flops right down on the hard floor, face down and swears she thus enjoys as sweet dreams as any tufted mattress has to offer.

No pillow haloes this bob, either. She never used one. She has a lovely photograph of herself and her two girls, all in profile view, and here is where one sees the fine throatline effect resulting from Miss Rich's excellent body posture. She sits beautifully erect, stands and walks ditto. There's a beautiful incurve where a bulging diaphragm usually mars a contemporary's figure.

What's Miss Rich's idea of a good looking woman? A woman with a good natured look in her face. Give her that and all else will be forgiven. Her advice to women? Learn to play! She's only now learning to do it herself, but O, the years that are lost taking life so hard, going around all tied up in knots of tension, and what for? What for the violent housekeeping, the too avid passion for cleanliness, the too complete absorption in the business or professional job? Time out for play makes a better homemaker, a better business worker, a better artist, and a better looking woman.

Mrs. Cudahy Leads Florida Garden Club

Mrs. McKinlock Is Elected Honorary Head.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 27.—The Chicago influence still prevails in the Garden club of Palm Beach. Mrs. George A. McKinlock today relinquished the presidency which she has held for the eight years the club has been in existence. She was succeeded by Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest.

In retiring from the active presidency of the group which she was largely instrumental in founding back in 1928, Mrs. McKinlock was elevated to the rank of honorary president, a position hitherto held by Mrs. Robert Clendinning of Philadelphia, who now comes to Palm Beach for only a brief interval each season. Mrs. Cudahy had already gone north but is being notified of her election by telegraph.

The election took place at the Everglades club today following the annual luncheon meeting. Mrs. McKinlock was presented with a silver bowl inscribed as "An expression of affectionate appreciation of eight years of constructive leadership."

Mrs. Henry R. Rea of Sewickley, who was changed from the rank of active to honorary first vice president, read a history of the eight years of the club under Mrs. McKinlock.

In addition to her duties as president Mrs. McKinlock has served as general chairman of seven of the annual flower shows, the outstanding triumph of the club each February. This year she devoted her entire time during the three days of the show to its management, literally living at the Poinciana conservatories. Mrs. McKinlock is expected to represent the club on the European tour of the presidents of the Garden Club of America this summer.

According to CULBERTSON

UNWISE DOUBLES.

A player considering making a penalty double should give the most careful consideration to various factors. First, he must realize that he is about to give the declarer some invaluable information as to the location of key cards, hence he should weigh the value of the potential penalty against the additional chance he is presenting to the opponents. This does not mean that he should "lean over backwards" in doubling for penalties, but simply that he should take care that his doubles are not mere boomerangs, to return and slice off his own head.

It is particularly foolish to double a suit that you know will not be the final contract unless you feel reasonably sure that either you or your partner can take care of the opponents' best suit.

In today's hand East should have known that there was no chance of North's six club bid standing as the final contract. Therefore, he merely wasted his breath in doubling it, and made the declarer's slam contract in spades infinitely easier.

South, dealer.

♥ 10
♦ A 9 6

WEST
♠ 8 2
♥ A J 9 8 7 5 4 3 2
♦ 4 2

EAST
♠ 3
♦ K Q J 3

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 10 9 6 5
♥ None
♦ 10 8 7 5
♣ 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4 Sp.	5 Ht.	6 Cl.	Double
6 Sp.	Pass	Pass	Double [final bid]

The fact that East had five clubs to the Q J made his double of that suit unwise. It was inconceivable that South, who had started with a preëmptive spade bid, would allow the contract to stand. The double of six spades was much better, but its effectiveness was nullified by the previous double.

West opened the ace of hearts and the declarer ruffed. Six rounds of trumps, on the last four of which dummy discarded one diamond and three clubs, left East in an uncomfortable position. He had to keep four clubs to guard the dummy's four and was reduced, therefore, to the blank K Q of diamonds. Declarer conceded a diamond trick and took the rest, for his doubled slam contract.

Without the information that the clubs were banked in the East hand, declarer might well have tried to establish the suit by one ruff.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My right hand opponent, not vulnerable, opened the bidding with four spades. I was vulnerable and held ♠ 2, ♥ A K Q 7, ♦ K Q J 6, ♣ A Q J 10. What was my correct bid?

Answer: Four no trump, which really is a take-out double by implication. Should you double, your partner could not know that you wanted him to show his best suit at such a high level.

Color Scheme Is Important in New Footwear

New Models Allow Wide Choice This Spring.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Color contrasts as well as combines on shoes are just as much spring news and fashions as the newest headlines. Navy blue footgear combined with British tan lether is something to get excited over, especially when the blue is of rich suede and the tan is smooth lether. Handbags to match have a tan lether strap and clasp, the slippers also strapped with the golden tan.

And for once in a lifetime of shopping we're completely satisfied with the grand large collections and assortments of gray . . . street models with medium high heels, tricky feminine affairs for afternoon, stunning pumps of pale gray suede with high heels and instep decorations of shimmering gray lether.

Dark gun-metal lethers, equally deep gray suedes that are easily matched to the many dark gray felt hats and gloves and handbags, and gray gabardines that take inches off the outsize streamline of the foot, and slick combines of cloth or fabric with suede or lether are among spring offerings.

Colored suedes are infinitely interesting—deep green numbers to add the right footnote for beige tweeds and woolens; wine red to give the dash for gray or pale green and pastels [try this red with violet and see how tonic it is]; deep blue to wear with beige, with soft yellow, with Tattersall check wools prove what you wear on your feet this spring is tremendously important!

There is a new hosiery shade that is taking. It is called hickory and comes in a three thread crêpe twist hose that wears unbelievably well. It's a gorgeously obliging shade and goes with black, navy, all the silk prints, and with street clothes and afternoon dress parade outfits. The price is just under the dollar mark. It's quite a flatterer over the ankle line and does the harmonizing trick with all the above mentioned colors so well that it rates high on the list of the most popular hosiery colors.

Japanese Poppy.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Japanese Poppy" is one of the floral designs seen on various clothes lines when quilts are put out for their spring airing. One is apt to see more quilts of this pattern in small towns throughout the country than in the city. Ohio is identified as the birthplace of the quilt illustrated today, a coverlet composed of a combination of pieced and plain materials. The blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement, and only 15 applique and 15 plain blocks are used.

Its background is as colorful as an English tweed, and there is about it everything to win a Bond street tailor's respect and admiration, both for its rugged weaving qualities, an inheritance passed down from its hand loom days, to its soft mountain-mist colorings enlivened this season by deep colored stripings and over-squares. This is Carolina Homespun that pitted its strength in "Forty-five" against a stern mountain life. Today its pursuits are confined to a business and sporting career, and it has proved itself a master at both.

FARRAR VICTOR BY A KNOCKOUT IN COLLEGE MEET

Ex-Golden Glover Shows Class.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Charlottesville, Va., March 27.—Thirty-two amateur boxers tonight remained in the race for National Collegiate A. A. championships after a double session this afternoon and evening in Memorial gymnasium, University of Virginia. The two day tournament, which opened today, has broken all records with 28 universities and colleges from coast to coast represented.

In addition to the college titles, these boys are fighting for the right to participate in the United States Olympic boxing trials which will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Preliminaries of these trials will be held at the International amphitheater in Chicago May 7 and 8 and the finals will be staged at Chicago Stadium on May 20.

Olympics Spur Fighters.

For this reason there was more zip than usual to the bouts tonight. These 32 lads, all of whom now are eligible to compete at Chicago, have their eyes on a trip to Berlin and the Olympic boxing matches. To win that they must compete against amateur boxing's greatest field, which will include Golden Gloves champions, qualifiers from the National A. A. U. tournament next month at Cleveland, and the representatives of the Army and Navy.

Syracuse university led in number of qualifiers for the semi-finals with five. Close behind were Wisconsin and Penn State, with four each. North Carolina and Duke qualified three each while Louisiana State and West Virginia followed with two each.

Well! Danny Farrar!

Duke university of Durham, N. C., will have its three boys in Chicago for the Olympic trials. Coach Add Warren said so this afternoon. And look who's here representing Duke! Danny Farrar, Golden Gloves champion in Chicagoland's great Tournament of Champions in 1934, who that same spring won the international Golden Gloves title in the bouts with Poland. Danny still looks like the lad who battered his way from Youngstown, O., through the Cleveland meet and to Chicago and international honors.

This afternoon Farrar knocked out Cas Niewiadomi of Ohio Normal in one round. Tomorrow afternoon Danny will face Art McGivern, Syracuse veteran.

Wisconsin broke even in the day's fighting, winning three matches and losing three, but it still has four qualifiers because Charles Zynda, 165 pounds, drew a bye. He will meet Steece Brubaker of King college, Bristol, Tenn., in tomorrow's semi-final.

Bob Fadner of the Badger team reached the 125 pound semi-finals by clipping Bill Shores of North Carolina on the eye in the first round, opening a deep gash. The referee then awarded the match to Fadner on a technical knockout. Gordon Harmon of Wisconsin won a close decision from Fred O'Banion of Louisiana State, Southeastern conference 145 pound title holder. Harmon's victory was one of the features of the day. George Stupar was the Badgers' other victor when he pounded out a decision over Scotty McLaughlin of Miami.

Badger Heavy Floored.

Vito Schiro of Wisconsin lost a close decision to Benny Leonard of the Miami team in the 155 pound competition. Max Novich, a clever boxer who stayed clear of Nick Deanovich's rushes, beat the Wisconsin light heavyweight in three rounds. Verne Woodward, heavyweight, was the other Badger loser. He stepped into a right in the first round of his clash with Ashby Dickerson of West Virginia and it was all over except the counting. In the evening pairing Dickerson lost a hard battle to Izzy Richter of Penn State, who as a high school boy in 1933 won a national A. A. U. title.

FINISH OF TURF'S HARDEST RACE

Reynoldstown gallops across the finish line for his second consecutive victory in the Grand National steeplechase over the Aintree course, generally recognized as the most hazardous race on the turf. This photo was sent by wire to London, by radiophoto to New York, and from New York by wirephoto to The Chicago Tribune.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

5 Americans Hold $150,000 Sweep Tickets on Reynoldstown

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—The dourest person today in the offices of the fun-loving New Yorker, a weekly magazine, was Miss Martha Wellington, who won $150,000 when Reynoldstown captured the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Tall, brunette, unhappy about all the hubbub, Miss Wellington was one of five persons in the metropolitan area to win fortunes. She was the only one to hold a ticket on Reynoldstown.

The others were Gumpel Sandberg, retired clothing merchant, who won $75,000 by holding a ticket on Ego, second place horse, and three who held tickets on Bachelor Prince, winning $50,000 each—Leonard Pussinie, of Hohokus, N. J., Leon Rosenblatt, garment worker, of the Bronx, and Sam Mash, tailor, of Brooklyn, who shared a ticket with his wife.

Five Hold Winner.

In all, $2,899,600 in prizes came to the United States. Five Americans held tickets on Reynoldstown, four on Ego, and five on Bachelor Prince. Those whose horses did not start or were out of the money will collect $3,570 each.

In the homes of the winners there was jubilation, hysterics, prayer, and tears among friends and relatives. All chattered gayly and seemed tickled to death about their rare fortune except Miss Wellington.

There was great formality about admitting reporters who went to see what Miss Wellington had to say for herself. She is secretary to E. M. Price, national advertising manager. She had this to say:

"I bought the ticket from Mr. William E. Riegel, head of our research department. I have no idea what I'll do with the money. No, no plans at all. Winning the money doesn't make me unhappy. Reporters make me unhappy. My age is a personal matter, and I don't see what business it is of yours, anyway. Whether any members of my family will share with me is very personal and I think this interview might be brought to an end right now!"

Sell Half Share.

Greatest rejoicing prevailed in the home of the Mashs, where the husband and wife called in their friends for merrymaking. The wife, who is 60, bought the ticket with the consent of her husband, who is 63. They have lost $25,000 in unfortunate investments since the depression, and about all they had left was the rather down-at-the-heels building in Bensonhurst, where the man has his tailoring shop.

The tailor immediately bought two quarts of labeled whisky and brought out an unlabeled gallon demijohn from the bedroom. Everybody had a drink.

The woman disclosed that they had been awake most of last night considering the offer of Edward Benson, London betting commissioner, to buy half of the ticket for $3,200. At 5 a. m. they telephoned Morris Fleischmann, their nephew. He came over and there was an hour's conference.

"We decided to take a bird in the hand," they explained. And so Mr. Benson came over, executed the papers and three hours later the couple counted their winnings at $28,200.

"Maybe we take a trip to Palestine," she said in Yiddish, "but first we move upstairs."

Retired Merchant Wins.

The scene in the second floor flat of the Sandberg family was no less exciting. Sandberg, Austrian born, sold out his boys' clothing store on the east side three years ago and retired. Seven of his eight children have gone their separate ways. Only Beatrice, 18, and his wife remain at home.

But all the sons and daughters crowded into the flat today. The radio was going long before race time, and by the time the parade to the post began Sandberg had found the going too exciting and retired to his bedroom.

WOOERS, SALESMEN OUT.

Lynn, Mass., March 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Reva Shontell and Rose Langelier, two night telephone operators who shared a $150,000 ticket on Reynoldstown in the Grand National today, expect a flock of marriage proposals and salesmen's visits as a result of their victory,

"We expect plenty of both," they said today, "but neither will have a chance. And we're going back to work Monday."

STEFFEN TO HELP COACH CARNEGIE TEAM THIS YEAR

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 27.—(AP)—Judge Walter Steffen, Chicago, will return to Carnegie Tech as advisory coach of football next fall.

Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics, announced today Steffen has agreed to terms offered him at a conference here several weeks ago.

Steffen will supervise football training, with Howard Harpster, head coach, in direct control.

MANGRUM TIES PICARD IN NORTH AND SOUTH GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., March 27.—(AP)—The pretournament favorite, Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Ray Mangrum, unattached pro from Pittsburgh, each finished with a total of 288 today to tie for first place in the $4,000 North and South open golf tournament.

The two leaders will play off tomorrow for first money of $1,000 and the gold medal that goes to the winner. If Mangrum wins it will be his first major victory in the professional ranks, but no new experience for Picard, who last week won the Charleston open, and who is a former north and south champion.

Smith Scores 289.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., finished a stroke behind Picard and Mangrum with 289. He topped the field after 54 holes, but required 74 holes for the last 18. Picard and Mangrum, who were tied at the three-quarter mark, made the final round in 72.

The loser of the Picard-Mangrum play-off will get second prize money of $600. Smith took third prize money of $500. Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., added a 71 to his 221 to take fourth prize of $400 with a total of 292.

Cooper Ties with Ghezzi.

Harry Cooper of Chicago also fired a par 71 for the final 18 holes, which with his previous 222, put him in a tie for fifth and sixth place money—$250 each—with Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., who posted a 220-73—293.

Frank Walsh of Chicago turned in a 220-74—294 to take the $175 seventh prize. Wiffy Cox, of Washington; Gene Sarazen, of Brookfield Center, Conn.; Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., Felix Serafin of Scranton, Pa., finished in a four-way tie for eighth, ninth, tenth, and eleventh places with 296s. They divided the prizes for $113.75 each.

Ted Luther of Gerard, O.; Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y.; Jimmy Thomson, of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Walter Hagen of Detroit, finished a stroke behind with 297s to split the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth prizes, and each received $55.

Laffoon Shoots 298.

Leonard Dodson, of Pembrine, Wis., and Ky Laffoon, of Chicago, fired 298s to divide sixteenth and seventeenth place money, receiving $27.50 each.

DE PAUL WHIPS GOPHERS, 33-27; REACHES FINALS

Takes Second Straight in Olympic Trials.

De Paul won the right to represent the midwest in the Olympic basketball finals at New York next week by defeating Minnesota, 33 to 27, in the second game of the inter-district finals at the 132d Regiment armory last night.

The victory made it two in a row for De Paul and gave it the championship of districts 5 and 6. The Blue Demons previously had won the district 5 championship by defeating Central Normal of Danville, Ind.

De Paul was forced to spurt on two occasions to protect a lead built up early in the game. The Gophers rallied late in the first period to come within three points of tying the score at the half, which ended 16 to 13 in De Paul's favor.

Roscoe Leads Scoring.

Another spirited drive engineered by George Roscoe in the closing minutes again threatened to overtake the Chicago quintet. In this belated attack Roscoe dropped in three field goals, all from near midcourt.

Roscoe earned individual scoring honors with six field goals for 12 points. Ed Campion of De Paul, followed with four baskets and a free throw for nine points.

Minnesota took the lead in the first minute of play on Rolek's free throw, but the advantage was short lived as Campion dribbled in to score from under the basket, putting De Paul in front. It never surrendered the lead.

De Paul Protects Lead.

Midway in the first half, De Paul ran up a 14 to 2 advantage but the visitors began to find the range and soon narrowed the gap. Minnesota's drive at this point was accomplished largely on a pair of baskets each by Roscoe and Jones, all from far out.

De Paul added to its lead at the start of the second half on successive baskets by Yost and Wendt. Roscoe, however, responded with two of his one-handed push shots from the side to bring the count to 23 to 18, the closest Minnesota came to tying the count in the second half. A pair of baskets by Yost gave De Paul an advantage that even a last minute rally by the Gophers was unable to overcome.

DEAN FINED $100 FOR BACKING OUT OF CHARITY GAME

Lakeland, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Jerome H. [Dizzy] Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, was fined $100 tonight by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis for failure to participate in a charity baseball game at Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 27, 1935.

Judge Landis ruled Dean's refusal to go through with the game was "distinctly detrimental to baseball."

A complaint against Dean was brought by Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Baseball club of the Southern association.

It was Dean, however, who appealed to Judge Landis, the commissioner said. Judge Landis said he was asked "to do something to Joe Engel" because of what Dean said were inaccurate public statements about the failure of Dean to play.

The talkative pitcher was quoted by Judge Landis as saying Engel's alleged statements were injuring Dean's connection with certain merchandising enterprises.

Tulsa Team Wins Women's N. A. A. U. Basketball Title

Sox Win, 18-4, in Tuneup for 13 Game Pirate Series

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

El Paso, Tex., March 27.—As a final warmup for their return tomorrow to big league competition, the White Sox dusted off another cactus circuit opponent here today. This time it was an American-Mexican combination known as the Local All-Stars. They folded up and took their medicine by the margin of 18 to 4. Thus the Sox rounded out a total of 80 runs in four games, but not too much should be made of this figure. The enemy was feeble in each instance.

The Chicagoans hit almost at will and profited by the customary errors this afternoon but this didn't discourage the local performers from doing a bit of showing off at the expense of a couple of Manager Dykes' youthful pitchers. Italo Chelini, a southpaw, was whacked fairly hard in a five inning stretch, and his successor, the strutting Red Evans, was only a slight improvement in a four inning job.

Whitehead to Greet Pirates.

When the Sox get down to serious and more enjoyable business tomorrow at San Antonio in the opener of the 13 game series with Pittsburgh's Pirates, Dykes will employ two of his mound experts, John Whitehead and Vernon Kennedy. The idea is to give the National leaguers a trimming and also bring the two youngsters closer to their pitching peak. One of this pair, probably Whitehead, is almost a cinch to start in the season's opener at Chicago with the champion Tigers.

The members of the pitching staf still are waiting for the boss to issue an order covering nine inning appearances, but the looked for order may not be forthcoming. Dykes now admits he is thinking seriously of not permitting any nine inning jaunts prior to the start of the American league season. He followed this program last spring, much to the surprise of everybody, and it worked with amazing success. The Sox had great pitching the first couple months of the race and that was a fairly convincing testimonial in behalf of Dykes' methods.

Piet Still Nurses Injury.

The Sox may have to get along tomorrow and maybe for a few days thereafter without the services of Second Baseman Tony Piet. The muscular blond Pole has been on vacation all week, hoping the rest would relieve soreness in a finger on his left hand. The pain and swelling still are present. He met up with the injury when a thrown ball rammed against the tip of the finger during one of the concluding drills at the Pasadena, Cal., camp.

Morrissey Drives in 5 Runs.

Another temporary cripple is George Stumpf, rookie outfielder who made a heroic slide into second base with the Sox leading by 16 runs in yesterday's debacle at Bisbee, Ariz. He wrenched his ankle. Today he was barely able to walk and Dykes ordered him to have the injured foot X-rayed tomorrow.

Probably as an expression of their

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

JOHNNY REVOLTA, national professional golf champion, had to step on it in order to make connections for Chicago when he signed for his new job at the Evanston Golf club. . . . Revolta was competing in the Charleston open when the Evanston offer came up and played the final thirty-six holes in four hours and forty minutes, with no time out for lunch, so that he might make the plane to Chicago. . . . Marvin Owen and Charlie Gehringer, Detroit infielders, made a bet of $10 last year that one would marry before the other. . . . Now Gehringer wants to call it off on the ground that "neither of us is going to win." . . . Gabby Street, former manager of the Cardinals, says Doc White, the old White Sox star, was the smartest pitcher who ever stepped on a mound. . . . Street also credits White with teaching him more about catching than any other man in baseball. . . . Mike Rodden, National Hocky league referee, has been forced off the ice twice this season by injuries. . . . Ted Ray, British golf pro who won the American open of 1920, is 59 years old today. . . . Babe Pinelli, National league umpire, has a son who is considered the best high school quarter back in California. . . . Young Pinelli, 18 years old, has his heart set on enrolling at Notre Dame next fall, but his neighbors are talking Stanford. . . .

The Brooklyn Dodgers have made winter books on their pitchers. . . . Emil Leonard was chosen as the moundsman who will show the greatest improvement this year. . . . Leonard won only two and lost nine last season, which makes him a cinch for the bookies unless he breaks a leg. . . . Jackie Murray, 12 year old son of the Marquette football coach, is recovering from an emergency appendectomy. . . . Frankie Frisch disagrees with Pie Traynor that the Cardinals sold Bill Terry a gold brick in Burgess Whitehead. . . . The winter Olympic program at Garmisch Partenkirchen drew more spectators in one day than saw the entire program at Lake Placid four years ago. . . . Fred Merkle, who forgot to touch second in the famous Cub-Giant game of 1908, is a gardener in Florida. . . . Don Skinner, University of Southern California broad jumping star, leads an orchestra in which he plays first trumpet. . . .

Pittsburgh wanted the Chicago Golden Gloves squad to box there for flood relief, but the invitation had to be declined because several members of the team who are high school or college students could absent themselves from class no longer. . . . JURGES CLEARS BASES IN SECOND WITH TRIPLE

Warneke, Carleton Stop Champs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lakeland, Fla., March 27.—The Cubs, with Lon Warneke in the familiar rôle of Tiger tamer, nobly abetted by Moanin' Jim Carleton, this afternoon licked the Detroit Tigers in the "seventh game of the world series" by a score of 5 to 4. Four major league umpires, none of whom answered to the name of George Moriarty, worked the game in neat professional fashion with no suggestion of bullying. Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis attended and saw that there was no coarse language.

Warneke, who pitched the first five innings, was the winning pitcher, his third victory over the Tigers in as many starts since the world series opened in Detroit last Oct. 2. The losing pitcher in the two Warneke victories last fall and again today was Schoolboy Rowe. The great right hander from Eldorado, Ark., though he again bowed to the great right hander from Mount Ida, Ark., pitched a fine game, going the full distance. He, by the way, is the first major league pitcher to go nine innings this spring.

Jurges Starts Scoring.

There were three main batting heroes and the part of the first of these was a surprise to one and all. Bill Jurges, one of the goats of the world series, knocked a triple with the bases full in the second inning for the first runs of the game. Frank Demaree socked a homer in the fourth and Gabby Hartnett made a homer in the sixth for the last and winning run.

The Cubs made seven hits off Rowe. Two of these were by Demaree, both of which blossomed into runs; two were by Charley Grimm, who never batted against the Schoolboy before, and one of these was converted into a run. Hartnett's homer, Jurges' triple, and a single by Warneke rounded out the total.

Walker Busts One.

There is no one on the Cub squad that Grimm would rather have seen in the hero rôle Jurges took in the second inning than Bill himself, for Bill was downcast all winter about his batting failures in the last world series. The Cubs set the stage for Brooklyn Bill in the following manner: After Hartnett had fouled to Cochrane, Demaree singled to left and stopped at second on Grimm's single to center. Hack walked, filling the bases. Rowe missed the plate with two pitches while trying to chump Jurges, then came in with one which Jurges knocked between Simmons and Fox for a triple, scoring Demaree, Grimm, and Hack.

Walker put the Tigers in the scoring department by leading off the second inning with a homer over the left field wall. Warneke quieted things down by getting Fox called out on strikes. York walked, then Owen hit into the first of his double plays, Jurges to Herman to Grimm.

And Demaree, Too.

It was three up and three down for both sides in the third, but both teams scored a run in the fourth. Demaree led off the Cub half with a homer over the left field wall. Grimm, Hack, and Jurges supplied outs. In the Tiger half Galan made a marvelous leaping catch to sink Gehringer. Simmons walked and stopped at second on Walker's single to left. Fox fouled to Hack. York singled to left, Simmons scoring and Walker stopping at second. Owen bounced a single off Herman's glove, but Herman recovered in time to trap Walker between third and home.

The score became 4 to 3 in favor of the Cubs when Rogell got around with a run in the fifth. In the start of the sixth Hartnett rounded out the Cub total with his homer. Rogell got around with the last run of the game in the seventh as a result of an error by Jurges in a try for a third double play, and a single by Gehringer.

GRAND SLAM SET FOR RACE OF HIS LIFE IN DERBY

Colt Rearing to Go; Even Kicks Stall Apart.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baltimore, Md., March 27.—An alarming item has appeared upon the expense account of the fast 3 year old Grand Slam, whose Kentucky Derby training camp is pitched here on the old J. K. L. Ross farm near the Laurel race track.

So exuberant and full of pep is Grand Slam that on two occasions he kicked the boards out of three walls of his stall, making it necessary for the stable carpenter to nail on 42 new planks one morning and 46 planks on another.

In Maryland, horsemen regard this as a sure sign that a horse is about ready to run the race of his life. If these Marylanders are right, then Grand Slam is going to be in the parade to the post at Churchill Downs on Derby day. Should the track be muddy or even slightly damp, Brevity, Joseph E. Widener's short priced Derby favorite, is going to know that he has been to the races before the mile and a quarter battle is ended.

Not Entirely a Mudder.

Grand Slam, owned by the Bomar stable of Detroit, scored his most notable victory last year in Chicago when he won the rich Arlington Futurity one rainy afternoon. Practically all the other races he has won were decided over tracks that were "off," and so when he went into winter quarters here he was regarded strictly as a mudder.

But his attendants on the old Ross farm say that he has shown a high turn of speed in fast going up to three-quarters of a mile this spring. This would indicate that he could be up to a mile and a quarter effort easily by Derby day, which still is slightly more than a month away.

Only one other Derby colt which has wintered in Maryland appears to be as far advanced in his training. That one is Granville, quartered at Belair stud near the Bowie track. From Belair last spring came Omaha, which not only won the Derby but also established himself as the outstanding 3 year old of the year.

Trained by Fitzsimmons.

Granville is a grand looker and the stable help at Belair is confident that he will show just as much improvement as a 3 year old as Omaha did a year ago. It will be remembered that as a 2 year old Omaha did not amount to much because he could not get those long legs of his to moving rhythmically until it was too late to win one of the short dashes in which 2 year olds engage. When the route was stretched out to more than a mile for 3 year olds Omaha was unbeatable.

Granville is being prepared for the Derby by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, who saddled Omaha last year. This usually pessimistic horseman has a sparkle in his eye when the name of Granville pops up for discussion this year.

Neither Grand Slam nor Granville will make a start during the Bowie meeting which opens the eastern season next Wednesday afternoon. Their trainers hope to have them in action at Havre de Grace during the last two weeks in April. These will be their final conditioning races for the Derby.

WIRRY, FOOTBALL MANAGER AT NOTRE DAME, DIES

Notre Dame, Ind., March 27.—[Special.]—George Wirry, 22, Notre Dame senior manager of football, died at St. Joseph hospital, South Bend, at 3 o'clock today after an illness of two weeks with appendicitis.

He underwent an operation more than a week ago and another was performed Monday. He was given blood transfusions Tuesday, yesterday and this morning.

Members of his family were at the bedside, including a brother, Anthony, 1933 football manager. Wirry will be buried in Racine, Wis., his home. He was a senior in the college of commerce.

HAWTHORNE TO USE NEW DEVICE TO CHECK FINISH

The "camera eye," photographic device used in connection with the electric eye, which photographs the finishes of all horse races, will be in use at the Hawthorne track this season, Albert J. Sabath, president of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, announced yesterday. It will be the first time the camera eye, proven successful at Santa Anita and Hialeah in recording close finishes, has been used on a central states track. Sabath returned yesterday by plane from New York, where he inspected the latest in camera eyes.

CATHOLIC PREP SWIMMING MEET OPENS TONIGHT

Reynoldstown Wins Again in Grand National

AINTREE, England, March 27.—(AP)—A chorus from 250,000 throats welled over Aintree's sun drenched countryside today as Maj. Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown, nine year old Irish jumper, repeated his 1935 triumph in the 98th running of the Grand National steeplechase and equaled a record that had stood for 66 years.

Completing the hazardous four and one-half mile course in the same careful, perfect manner that featured his victory last year, Reynoldstown became the third horse in the history of the classic to win twice in succession.

Only Abd-El-K'Ader in 1850-'51 and The Colonel in 1869-'70 shared that honor with Reynoldstown, which went to the post the 10 to 1 third choice to whip 34 other great jumpers, six of them American owned. Poethlyn won in 1918-'19, but the 1918 race was not run at Aintree.

Ten Horses Finish.

Only ten of the starters finished. Mrs. Violet Mundy's Avenger, 3 to 1 favorite, suffered fatal injuries after completing half the journey. Anthony Mildmay's Davy Jones, an outsider, ridden by the owner, led the field to the last jump only to swerve off the course when his reins broke.

George H. [Pete] Bostwick, 26 year old sportsman, made the best showing of the Americans when he rode his Castle Irwell into seventh place—far behind Reynoldstown, but proud that he had completed the course for the first time in three efforts.

Second place went to Sir Davis Llewellyn's Ego, a 66 to 1 shot. James V. Rank's Bachelor Prince, quoted at 50 to 1, was third.

Reynoldstown, carrying 170 pounds over the route in 9:37, as compared with 9:20 1-5 last year, won without once feeling the whip. His rider, Fulke Walwyn, known as England's greatest "gentleman rider," lost his stick soon after the race began.

Stretched out back of the three leaders in order were, Crown Prince, Inversible, Provocative, Castle Irwell, John Hay Whitney's American-owned Double-Crossed, Comedian and Moorland View.

Avenger Fatally Injured.

Reynoldstown's two greatest rivals in the wagering—Golden Miller and Avenger—piled up at the same hurdle, a comparatively simple thorn hedge a few hundred yards from the starting line. The Miller fell and dumped his new rider, Evan Williams, at the first jump. Williams managed to remount and struck out in pursuit of the field. But later The Miller refused at the identical jump where he unseated Gerry Wilson last year.

Avenger's finish was more tragic. The promising young steeplechaser, which had been backed into favoritism at the last minute, fell at the first jump the second time round the course, breaking his neck, and was destroyed.

NATIONAL INDOOR POLO TOURNEY TO START TONIGHT

New York Team to Meet Cleveland at Armory.

The national indoor polo tournament will start tonight, with Fort Hamilton opposing the Shamrocks and Squadron C battling the Cleveland Riding club at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street.

The Fort Hamilton-Shamrocks game is in the George C. Sherman cup class for teams rating five goals or less, while the duel between Squadron C and Cleveland is in the junior division for trios of six to twelve goals strength.

Sectional Champions Meet.

All four of the competing teams are newly crowned sectional champions, and all of the twelve players with the exception of Lieut. James S. McAnulty of the Shamrocks are making their first appearance in national championship play. Lieut. McAnulty rode on the 124th Field Artillery side that captured the Sherman trophy at New York last year. His team mates, Capt. Leslie R. Ireland and Lieut. Chris M. Schuh are 124th Field Artillery officers, but they did not qualify for the western or national finals in last year's tourney.

Fort Hamilton dethroned Squadron A, the defending eastern title holder, and Squadron C did likewise to Governors Island, which won the crown in 1935.

The invaders, who arrived last night, have formidable records. They annexed the eastern titled by narrow margins, but had to defeat strong teams to do so. Fort Hamilton's victory over Squadron A was 8 to 7½, while Squadron C took the measure of Governors Island in overtime, 8 to 7.

Continue Series Wednesday.

Cleveland's combination replaces the Detroit Polo club as the team to represent the west against the east in the national meet this year. The championships will be decided on the basis of best two out of three games, the second of the series being set for next Wednesday night, at which time the senior national series will also be instituted between the New York Athletic club and Cleveland's high goal team.

Tonight's lineups:

BURMAN KNOCKS OUT BUDDY KNOX IN FIFTH ROUND

Clarence [Red] Burman, Jack Dempsey's Baltimore protégé, temporarily ended the heavyweight championship aspirations of Buddy Knox last night at Chicago Stadium by knocking him out in the fifth round of their scheduled eight round windup bout.

Dempsey wasn't present, but after a tough first round Burman didn't need any assistance. He solved Knox's weakness in the next round. It was a right to the body, for which Buddy had no defense.

Burman scored with this weapon in every round. In the fourth the Dayton, O., youngster became panicky after he had taken a few hard blows to the body. A series of punches caused him to grab his stomach with both hands in the fifth round, leaving his jaw open for the finishing blow.

Red leaped in with a left hook to the chin. Knox fell on his face. At the count of seven he rolled over on his back. He took the full count with arms outstretched and eyes shut tight. The time was 1 minute and 11 seconds.

Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., stopped Harry Nelson, a timid fellow from Detroit, Mich., in the fifth round of the semi-final. Nelson was floored once in the third round and twice in the fourth.

Bob Tow, Alexandria, Va., knocked out Lou Janek in the third round when the Buffalo heavyweight went down from an invisible punch. Commissioner Packey McFarland told the commission secretary, Tom Tuite, to see that Janek doesn't appear here again.

Slavin Is Beaten.

In the opener Bud Schildknecht of Kansas City, Mo., beat Jimmy Slavin of Wilkes Barre, Pa., in four rounds. Schildknecht weighed 192, Slavin 179.

Sandy McDonald of Cleveland, weighing 194¼, was awarded the decision over Packy Gardner of Indianapolis, 218, after six fast rounds.

Bobby Kraft, 171, Dayton, O., whipped Eddie Boyle, 178, Cleveland, in six rounds.

Johnny Erjavec, 181, Duluth, Minn., was awarded the decision from Joe Lipps, 179, of Ty-Ty, Ga., in six rounds.

Medica Sets Records in College Swim

New Haven, Conn., March 27.—(AP)—Led by Jack Medica of the University of Washington, swimmers from the Pacific coast and middle west splashed off with the honors in a record-smashing opening day's session of the 13th annual National Collegiate A. A. swimming meet. Six champions were crowned today and tonight.

Medica, a double winner, smashed N. C. A. A. records in both events he won, the 1,500 meters and 220 yards free style swims.

The University of Michigan 300-yard medley relay team also set a record pace to retain its title while Danny Zehr of Northwestern twice lowered the intercollegiate record for the 150-yard backstroke.

Michigan Sets Record.

The Michigan relay trio was forced to its second record of the meet by a speedy Northwestern team which also came in under the record in the final. Michigan was timed in 2:58.2 in the final, only a half second slower than the American record for the event, and Northwestern in 2:59.8.

In their trial heat in the afternoon the Wolverines had lowered the N. C. A. A. and intercollegiate standard to 3:00.2 from the previous intercollegiate mark of 3:00.8 and the N. C. A. A. record of 3:01.8, both made by Michigan teams last year.

Zehr also smashed the listed record of 1:38 for the 150-yard backstroke, made in 1930 by George Kojac of Rutgers, both in his heat and in the final. He was clocked first in 1:37.7 and in the final in 1:36.8.

Medica Breaks Record.

Medica swam the 1,500 meters in a 50-meter pool in 20:23.7, beating the N. C. A. A. long-course record of 22:41, made by Dick Howell of Northwestern in 1924. He came back tonight to capture the 220 in 2:09.6, nearly two seconds faster than his own N. C. A. A. mark.

Other champions crowned tonight were Ray Walters of Iowa, who won the 50-yard free style in 23.4 seconds, equalling the pool record, and Der Johnston of Michigan, who rolled up 131.40 points in the fancy dive from the one-meter board to displace his teammate, Frank Fehsenfeld, as champion.

Tobin Throws Strongbow in Marigold Garden Mat Bout

Farmer Tobin, heavyweight wrestler, threw Jules Strongbow in 13 minutes and 40 seconds with a body slam in the feature bout of the wrestling show at Marigold Gardens last night. In the semi-windup Ray Richard and Lou Plummer drew in 30 minutes. Emil Rascher threw Don Koch in 20 minutes, and Buckets Goldenberg threw Jack Zarich in 17:01.

Sox Win, 18-4, in Tuneup for Pirate Games

pleasure over the finish of their exhibitions with feeble foes, the Sox stepped out this afternoon and scored four runs in the first inning. A triple by Kreevich with one on and a double by Morrissey with three on were the potent items.

Morrissey also doubled in the fifth to shove another pair of mates across the plate. Five more registered in the sixth, but this was mainly a matter of comical endeavor by the well meaning locals. Another cluster of runs came in the seventh, this time the total being three. It all happened after two were out. McCulloch walked, Mauldin and Haas singled, and Washington dumped a double in right after which Appling grounded to the second sacker.

Despite the need of hurry to catch a 6 o'clock train the Sox couldn't resist temptation in the ninth. They scored four on an error, a triple by Mauldin, a double by Haas, a triple by Washington, a single by Appling, and a double by Hayes.

BLACKHAWKS AND LEAFS TO TOUR WESTERN CANADA

Part of Squad Goes Home After Playoff Defeat.

Chicago's Blackhawks, their 1935-'36 National Hocky league season terminated by the New York Americans' victory over them in the third place bracket of the Stanley cup series, are not going to hang up their uniforms for quite a while yet.

Manager Clem Loughlin, who will return to pilot the Chicagoans next season, made this known yesterday, when he announced that he will direct a number of the Hawks in an exhibition tour of western Canada against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hawks Await Leafs.

Loughlin said that the Hawks cannot begin the journey until the Leafs are eliminated from the playoff series. They won the second place bracket from Boston Thursday night, and tonight will meet the Americans at Toronto in the first game of the two out of three semi-final series. The winner will then meet the victor in the first place bracket between Detroit and the Montreal Maroons. This latter series will enter its third game at Detroit tomorrow night, with the Wings having won the first two games.

Included in the Loughlin exhibition personnel will be Goalie Mike Karakas, Defense Men Earl Seibert, Marty Burke, Alex Levinsky, and Art Wiebe; Forwards Paul Thompson, Doc Romnes, Mush March, Johnny Gottselig, and Louie Trudell.

Itinerary Is Outlined.

They are scheduled to meet the Leafs in two games at Winnipeg, three at Calgary, one game being added after the first two were sold out, and four at Vancouver, including a benefit game for a children's hospital.

The rest of the Hawks began to wend their homeward way yesterday. Glenn Brydson went to Toronto; Bill Kendall to Winnipeg, Wildor Larochelle to Sorel, Que., and Eddie Ouellette to Ottawa. Donnie McFayden remains here to practice law, and eventually March will return to handle his gas station on the northwest side.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—Virtually all classes of bonds were subjected to selling pressure in varying degrees today on the New York Stock exchange. The reversal in form, particularly among United States government obligations, which had enjoyed a sharp runup on Thursday, was not easily explained in trading circles and could not be attributed to any specific development in the day's news.

Trading continued in moderate value, sales amounting to $11,527,000.

Profit Taking Reported.

The reaction in federal government loans, which carried prices down 1-32 to 7-32 point, was probably due to some extent, according to some dealers, to profit taking following the sharp advance earlier in the week, especially on Thursday. The turnover in that group passed the $2,000,000 mark for the most active day of the week.

Certain of the more speculative issues, which usually are prominent during the upswings, and secondary rail liens generally proved most vulnerable to the selling. Declines ranged from fractions to 3 points in the latter group.

Some of Larger Losses.

One to three point losses were shown in such issues as Allis Chalmers 4s, American Rolling Mill 4¼s, American Type Founders 6s, Gould Coupler 6s, and International Cement 4s.

American and Foreign Power 5s yielded 2 points, while more moderate declines ruled elsewhere among the utility bonds.

The market for foreign dollar loans was mixed. Japanese issues yielded more than a point. Italian and German bonds held within narrow limits.

A. M. Byers.

Investors' Guide: Will you please send me information on stock of Byers company?—H. V. C.

Answer: A. M. Byers company manufactures about half the wrought iron pipe produced in the United States. It was established in 1864. Its product is claimed to have superior corrosive resisting qualities and is used in transporting liquids of high chemical content. About half of output normally is consumed by the building and plumbing industries, with the remainder among general industry, especially in the oil fields.

The chief competition which the company has to face is that of copper, brass, cast iron, and stainless clad steel pipe, which also have corrosive resisting qualities. The company entered the steel pipe industry last year in an attempt to tap a cheaper market.

A. M. Byers has not reported a profit since 1931. In the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1935, net loss was $188,000, against loss of $220,000 for the Dec. 31, 1934, quarter.

Sales in the year ended Sept. 30, 1935, of $2,919,000, compared with $3,163,000, $1,935,000, and $2,496,000 for the three preceding years. During the last fiscal year the company lost $870,000, against losses of $774,000, $1,044,000, and $922,000 for the three preceding years.

On Sept. 30, 1935, current assets, including $296,000 cash assets, were $2,028,000, and current liabilities were $157,000. Profit and loss deficit was $786,000. There are outstanding 56,744 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 264,635 shares of no par common. The preferred is not only cumulative as to dividends, but the arrears bear 5 per cent interest until paid. Nothing has been paid on the preferred since Nov. 1, 1933.

Gillette Safety Razor Dividend.

Investors' Guide: Has Gillette Razor declared a dividend on the common for this quarter? I bought some of this stock on March 13. Shall I be eligible for that payment? What is "ex dividend"?—H. A. T.

Answer: The next dividend on Gillette Safety Razor common is payable on March 31 to stock of record March 12. Because you were not a holder of stock of record March 12 you are not entitled to the payment.

Ex dividend means without dividend. After the record date the stock sells ex dividend, which means that the buyer is not entitled to the payment even though the distribution is made after his purchase. The payment goes to the holder of record.

OTIS STEEL CO. TO OFFER LOAN OF 25 MILLIONS

Big Dairy Issue Will Go on Market April 3.

An issue of $25,000,000 of 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds was authorized yesterday by stockholders of the Otis Steel company at their annual meeting in Cleveland, O. Of the total $13,000,000 will be issued to refund $10,827,000 of 6 per cent first mortgage bonds, $1,300,000 of three year secured notes maturing Jan. 29, 1938, and the present balance of $557,149 for prior taxes which have been funded and are payable in instalments, the last in 1939.

A total of $166,645,000 in securities was scheduled yesterday for early offering in statements filed or ready to be filed with the Securities and Exchange commission. Largest issue on the list was the offering set for April 3 of the National Dairy Products company. In an amended statement the price for the $62,545,500 of 3¾ per cent debentures was fixed at 100½ and accrued interest. Underwriters will pay 97½ to 98⅞, depending on the amount taken by stockholders.

Utility Plans Refunding.

Officials of the Niagara Hudson Power corporation are engaged in studies of corporate and capital changes which will be another step in the program of eliminating the various subsidiary operating companies in New York state.

In particular, plans are being made to refund a number of the underlying bond issues to effect savings in annual charges that may total $2,000,000 a year for the system.

Of the $213,105,400 funded debt at the close of last year $195,634,000 is callable, and $109,634,000 of the callable debt carries annual interest rates of 5 per cent or more. The balance of $86,000,000 comprises the two largest single issues of the system, or $66,000,000 of New York Power and Light corporation 4½s, callable at 105, and $20,000,000 of Buffalo General Electric company 4½s, callable at 107½.

Plans to Reduce Preferred.

In addition to simplification and consolidation of underlying debt to be effected through the refunding program, it is also planned to reduce the amount of preferred stock outstanding, of which $186,229,797 was held by the public on Dec. 31.

A banking group headed by Bancamerica-Blair corporation was the high bidder today on a new issue of $2,500,000 of city of Seattle municipal light and power bonds, on a tender of 98.10 for 3¾s. The bonds mature serially April 15, 1938 to 1954.

CHICAGO STOCKS LOWER AS EARLY GAINS ARE LOST

Chicago stocks closed lower yesterday, late losses canceling most early gains. Trading volume dwindled to 58,000 shares. Sixty issues declined, though most of the losses were held to fractions, while only 16 advanced and 31 were unchanged.

Five stocks made new high prices for the year, though three eased from their tops. One, Sangamo Electric, ended the day with a fractional loss. Abbott Laboratories gained 2½, Sivyer Steel rose 1½, Lion Oil gained a point and Hall Printing advanced ⅜ for the day.

Cord was the most active issue, with a 6,150 trade. Butler Brothers, Bendix, Cities Service and Continental Steel were other favorites. The leaders held their losses to fractions. Among those declining a point or more were Elgin Watch, National Gypsum, Quaker Oats, Houdaille B, Kalamazoo Stove, Great Lakes Dredge, Signode Steel, Nachman Spring, Decker & Cohn, and Central and South West Utilities prior lien.

LARD MARKET WEAKENS WITH DROP IN HOGS, GRAIN

The lard market developed a reactionary tendency yesterday after having advanced nearly 1 cent per pound in the last three weeks. Selling was induced by weakness in hogs and grain and an estimate by the department of agriculture that hog slaughtering between now and the end of September would be 30 to 35 per cent above a year ago. Futures declined readily and the close was at net losses of 10 to 12½ cents on the active deliveries. There was buying on the decline, attributed in part to packing interests. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed 2½ cents higher.

Cash lard closed at $11.22; loose, $10.80; leaf, $10.75, and clear bellies, $15.12 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

SCARCITY IN SPOT COTTON LIFTS OLD CROP CONTRACTS

Old crop cotton contracts continued to show a strong undertone yesterday as the result of a scarcity in desirable grades of spot cotton in the south, owing to the large government holdings. There was buying of futures, credited to the trade and to foreigners, and the close was at net gains of 8 to 14 points. New crop futures advanced early, only to weaken later in sympathy with stocks and on southern selling. The close in leading markets was unchanged to 3 points lower. [A point is equal to 1-100 cent.]

Spot cotton closed 5 to 20 points higher, with New Orleans at 11.75 cents, Houston and New York 11.65 cents, and Galveston 11.55 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

BELL PLANNING HELD 'FAILURE' IN FCC'S REPORT

Attack Made Soon After Quiz Opens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—With hearings hardly started in the $750,000 investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the federal communications commission today attacked the Bell system for "patent ineptitude" in charting a course during the depression.

In a voluminous report the FCC charged that the Bell system, which controls more than 90 per cent of the telephone plants and equipment in the country, had flopped in its forecasting and had overexpanded.

"The failure of economic planning," the commission declared, "in an industry so extensive in scope, so centralized in administration, with a stable price structure and no competition, is one of the curious incongruities in the recent history of the Bell system that needs to be investigated.

Questions Are Raised.

"How has this coördination of demand and supply of equipment worked? To whose advantage has it operated? What has been the effect of its failure upon the telephone subscriber? These questions involve matters of far reaching importance."

The questions eventually will be answered, it was presumed, in the hearings on A. T. & T., which will be resumed next Tuesday before Commissioner Paul A. Walker.

The Bell system has taken pride in its economic planning, the FCC said, but this has worked out with "indifferent effectiveness in the last seven years."

The commission dwelt at length on the decrease of employés in the Bell system, A. T. & T., Western Electric, and other companies. In the five years from Dec. 31, 1929, to Dec. 31, 1934, employment dropped from 454,491 to 273,586, the FCC stated.

Give Reasons for Decline.

The reasons for the decline were given as reduction in business, diminution of construction work and mechanization of the Bell system through the use of automatic or dial central office equipment.

"It appears that the physical structure of the Bell Telephone system is becoming more and more automatic," the FCC reported, "and the number of people immediately engaged in telephone service has diminished greatly, thereby increasing the proportion of the overhead executive, legal, commercial, and accounting staf."

PAVING AWARDS OF $1,297,468 ARE APPROVED BY PWA

Approval of paving contract awards totaling $1,297,468 was announced yesterday by State Director Carl H. Bauer of the Public Works administration for roads in and around Chicago. The awards were recommended two weeks ago by Cook county officials, who received the bids.

The successful bidders and the total amounts of their contracts are: Midwest Construction corporation, $218,985; Pickus Engineering and Construction company, $74,494; Central West Construction company, $122,482; Municipal Paving company, $147,809; James P. O'Keefe, $85,530; Iroquois Construction company, $87,995, and the Rock Road Construction company, $560,170.

The PWA made a grant of $2,925,000, or 45 per cent of the estimated cost of the Cook county paving project, which will require about 18 months for completion. Employment will be given to approximately 1,843 men.

AM. TELEPHONE LOSES BATTLE ON ACCOUNTING PLAN

New York, March 27.—(AP)—A special federal statutory court today vacated an injunction against the federal communications commission and directed the American Telephone and Telegraph company and 28 associated companies to comply with the commission order directing them to install a new accounting system.

The order of the court was stayed for 30 days to permit the utilities to apply to a Supreme court justice for further stay pending outcome of an appeal to the high court.

Under the new system, which the court ordered applied as of Jan. 1, 1936, telephone companies would be required to list actual cost of properties held by them as of the date upon which they were dedicated to public service, usually under predecessor companies.

Downtown Property Leased by Tree and High Estates

The Lambert Tree and the John H. High estates have leased the property at 111-117 West Lake street, 40 by 180, to the Clark-Randolph Station, Inc., for a term of years. A four-story building will be wrecked as soon as leases expire and the site used for parking. Jones & Kerfoot were brokers.

Mid-Continent Petroleum Reports Big Rise in Profit

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation today reported 1935 net income of $2,417,175, equal to $1.31 a share on the capital stock, compared with $828,093, or 45 cents a share, in 1934.

Stocks Droop; Traders Lose Enthusiasm

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 27.—Stock prices declined 1 to 3 points today in a dull and colorless market. With the ticker standing still for several minutes at a time, every department of the list sought lower levels, with closing prices being generally around their low marks for the day.

Observers could find nothing in the day's news output to explain the selling except, perhaps, the inability of the market to show much enthusiasm on the upside in the previous sessions this week. Volume continued to be light, at 1,615,000 shares, failing even to measure up to the week's average of under 2,000,000 shares, and much of the trading was reported to be evening-up operations for professional accounts.

Report Selling by French.

Several brokers intimated that offerings of domestic securities from French centers were larger than usual, but gave no logical reason for the liquidation. On the the contrary, some quarters were of the opinion that the easier tendencies of the franc, implying a nearby movement of gold from France to this country, appeared to scout the selling theory.

The speculative fraternity continues to be well satisfied with the favorable flow of corporation earning reports, but the cautiousness of traders was evident as they watched developments on the foreign front and at Washington.

Lack of interest was advanced as the most logical reason for today's decline, with the pressure on the list not being particularly heavy at any time. General Motors came to a sudden halt after its steady advance of recent session, and in the final table showed a loss of over a point. Chrysler gave up almost twice as much.

Industrial Leaders Lower.

Practically all of the old line industrials finished lower. Allied Chemical was down over 5 points, U. S. Steel gave up a point, American Telephone was off 1¾, Johns Manville lost 1⅞, and Westinghouse receded almost 2 points.

Airplane issues slipped badly, with Wright Aero and Douglas suffering the most damage. Mining shares were weak and the utilities showed little resistance. Kennecott was down with other coppers in spite of a good earning report.

Du Pont was down 3⅜ and losers of 1 to around 2 points included J. I. Case, Santa Fe and American Smelting. Transcontinental and Western Air, Omnibus and Pathe made moderate gains.

ILLINOIS' 231,312 FARMS VALUED AT $2,205,899,570

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—The 1935 Illinois farm census, made public by the commerce department today, shows the state has 231,312 farms with a total acreage of 31,661,205. The valuation, including improvements, was $2,205,899,570.

Illinois farms have 745,827 head of horses, valued at $63,474,204; 114,618 mules valued at $11,140,000, 2,629,865 cattle worth $68,177,396, 850,896 sheep valued at $4,339,570, and 3,218,134 swine worth $24,136,005.

CHICAGO EMPLOYMENT AND PAY ROLLS LOWER; U. S. TOTAL ALSO DIPS

In the period from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15 employment declined 0.4 per cent in Chicago and pay rolls dipped 1 per cent, according to reports from 2,766 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing enterprises, the Illinois department of labor announced yesterday.

In the Chicago metropolitan area there was a decrease of 0.3 per cent in employment and 1.2 per cent in wage payments, while in the Chicago suburban cities the number of workers increased 0.3 per cent, but pay rolls declined 3.2 per cent.

Unemployment in the United States increased by 48,000 persons, or 0.5 per cent, during February to a total of 9,848,000 persons, but was 324,000, or 3.2 per cent, below a year ago, the national industrial conference board estimated yesterday.

Selling Sends May Wheat to Low for Year

Liquidation by holders of May wheat contracts in the Chicago and Minneapolis markets was under way yesterday. The Minneapolis price declined about 2 cents from Thursday's finish to 99⅛ cents per bushel, a new low for the season. At the bottom this price was only 3½ cents over the same delivery in Chicago, compared with over 18 cents premium some weeks ago.

May wheat in the local market touched 96 cents, a new low since early in December, and the close was at the bottom, with a loss of nearly 1 cent. Selling of May wheat against purchases of the July option tended to sustain the new crop months and they lost only small fractions. The May-July spread at the close was only 9 cents, against 9½ cents at the close of the preceding day.

Milling Demand Slackens.

The continued slow milling demand for cash wheat, which is in sharp contrast with the aggressive buying recently, and the big premiums which prevail as compared with the July and September deliveries, representing the wheat which will be harvested this summer, is understood to be causing holders of May contracts some uneasiness.

There was nothing in the general run of reports from the southwest to indicate any material damage to the new crop outside of the "dust bowl." The report of E. H. Miller to James E. Bennett & Co., after a tour through one of the largest producing sections in the country in central Kansas, was construed as indicating that the best crop of wheat in several years would be secured with rain in the immediate future.

Wheat Loses Early Strength.

Fractionally higher prices for wheat futures were established at the opening in symphony with firmness in Liverpool, but when Minneapolis started to weaken the local market followed quickly. Buying at 96 cents on resting orders and by shorts checked the decline, but the market showed no disposition to rally.

Closing prices on the May delivery of leading grains, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .96	$ .96⅝	$ .97⅝
Corn	.59¼	.59	.59⅝
Oats	.25⅝	.25⅞	.25⅛
Rye	.51⅝	.52	.55⅝

Development of the best shipping demand for cash corn in some weeks and light country offerings for deferred shipment resulted in corn futures closing fractionally higher. Cash interests were credited with buying the May delivery. Liquidation developed in oats in sympathy with the decline in wheat, and the close was fractionally lower with the May option leading.

Rye prices continued on the downgrade due to scattered selling, with the July delivery closing at the lowest level on the current movement. The July option has failed to close higher for two consecutive weeks.

MANAGEMENT WINS AMERICAN WOOLEN CONTROL

Sprngfield, Mass., March 27.—[Special.]—A battle for control of the $18,000,000 American Woolen company, waged all Thursday night and today at the annual stockholders' meeting, was won by management stockholders.

Minority interests charged the concern is being used as a vehicle to profit in wool market speculations. E. Howard Bennett, publisher of the American Cotton and Woolen Reporter, a minority candidate for director, said following his defeat that President Lionel H. Noah and the board should be required to give an accounting of their stewardship.

Directors reëlected were William B. Warner and Charles Hayden of New York, and Robert H. Montgomery of Boston. Majority interests polled a vote of 321,045, compared with the minority vote of 147,000.

PRODUCTION OF AUTOS FOR WEEK ESTIMATED ABOVE 100,000 MARK

Automobile production in the United States and Canada crossed the 100,000 mark last week for the first time in several weeks, according to an estimate made of Ward's Reports, Inc., yesterday. A total of 101,965 cars and trucks rolled from assembly lines, compared with 96,906 a week earlier, the agency said.

Cram's Reports placed the current week's total at 98,415 automobiles, against 95,223 last week and 103,286 in the corresponding period last year.

Ward's said output of the General Motors group amounted to 40,975 assemblies, against 39,250 last week. Ford production was 25,250, compared with 25,400. The Chrysler group turned out 22,760, against 19,775.

Retail deliveries of cars by the Studebaker corporation totaled 3,383 units in the first 20 days of March, as compared with 2,298 in the corresponding period of 1935, Paul G. Hoffman, president, reported yesterday. Sales for the period represented a gain of 65 per cent over a year ago. Sales so far this year are running 49 per cent above last year.

Retail sales of Hudson and Terraplane cars for the first three weeks of March were 5,655, 25 per cent above last year, William R. Tracy, vice president, said the company expects March volume to be the best since 1930.

FANSTEEL NETS $78,797 IN YEAR; SALES INCREASE

Net profit of $78,797 last year was reported yesterday by Fansteel Metallurgical corporation and wholly owned subsidiaries. This compared with a loss of $8,019 in 1934. Including two-thirds ownership of Vascoloy-Ramet corporation, consolidated net of Fansteel and all subsidiaries was $129,122. Vascoloy-Ramet had net earnings of $75,488 last year, compared with a loss of $9,732 in 1934.

J. M. Troxel, president, said there has been a "notable increase in adoption and use of tantalum products and new types of electrical contacts produced by the company." Foreign shipments of tantalum increased 25 per cent last year, "despite difficulties of doing business in Europe," and domestic sales rose 70 per cent from 1934.

SUMMON STEEL HEADS TO TESTIFY ON PRICE BASING

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—Chairman Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] announced today that W. A. Irvin, president of United States Steel, and Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, had been "explicitly" requested to appear before the senate interstate commerce committee to testify on basing point legislation.

The request, Wheeler said, was prompted by "equivocations and evasions" in evidence of other steel spokesmen. Previous invitations to Irvin and Grace, he added, only brought back word "it would be inconvenient for them to appear."

Before the committee is a bill by Wheeler to prohibit the system of fixing prices by which transportation charges to a given base point are added to production costs.

U. of C. Retains Architects to Design $600,000 Edifice

Zantzinger & Borie, Philadelphia architects, yesterday were commissioned by the University of Chicago to design the $600,000 headquarters of the Public Administration Clearing house and other organizations interested in the improvement of public administration. The building will be financed from a $1,000,000 grant to the university by the Spelman fund of New York made last January. It is expected ground will be broken late in the summer at the southeast corner of Kenwood avenue and 60th street.

Two Auto Manufacturers Report Losses for 1935

Graham-Paige Motors corporation and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1935, reported a net loss of $1,701,325, after charges, compared with a net loss of $474,959 in 1934. Reo Motor Car company reported 1935 net loss of $219,860, compared with net loss of $958,341 in 1934.

Retail Sales Rise Sharply Despite Flood

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—Retail volume in major lines for the week rose 18 to 20 per cent above the 1935 level, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. As high waters in the flood areas receded, the report said, all of the cities showed an increase in retail sales over the previous week, the gain in some instances running up to 20 to 30 per cent.

"Dominated by women's apparel, dress accessories and toiletries, spring buying reached new high levels for the year despite unfavorable shopping weather on some days," the report said. "Acquisition of Easter merchandise already has advanced to proportions indicating the largest volume for the season since 1929, with interest spreading to more departments than in previous years.

Lines in Active Demand.

"Demand for shoes, millinery, hosiery, toys, and athletic goods widened steadily, while men's clothing was ahead of 1935 volume by nearly 20 per cent. Sales of furniture, house furnishings and electrical appliances were at the best rate in five years. The upturn in automobile sales during the week was wide.

"Complementing the heavy flow of reorders for spring goods, activity in wholesale markets was intensified by replacement buying of merchants whose stocks had been made worthless by flood waters. First floor and basement lines particularly were sought, but immediate shipments could not be obtained in all cases, as wholesalers had run low on the most popular items.

Wholesale Volume Rises.

"These unexpected orders helped to enlarge wholesale volume by 8 to 15 per cent from last year's, with prices generally steady, although advances appeared on some spot goods. With shortages becoming more pronounced from week to week, post-Easter clearances are expected to be few, with markdowns small.

"The restoration of transportation facilities in the New England states was too slow to help sales materially. They were only 7 to 10 per cent above last year. The recovery in other flood areas was quicker, and sales ran 8 to 15 per cent above 1935."

TEXAS CORP. NET EARNINGS RISE TO $1.83 A SHARE

This is equivalent to $1.83 a share on 9,340,069 shares of $25 par capital stock, excluding 511,174 shares held in the treasury. The year before the company earned $5,545,206, or 59 cents a share on 9,349,773 shares.

BORG-WARNER'S PROFIT HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

First Quarter Shows 5 to 10 Pct. Gain.

First quarter earnings of the Borg-Warner corporation will exceed last year by 5 to 10 per cent, C. S. Davis, president, told stockholders at their annual meeting here yesterday. In the 1935 period net profit amounted to $1,333,846, equal to $1.15 a common share.

C. S. DAVIS.

Davis said an active business in the second quarter of 1936 is expected by the automobile industry, which should find reflection in the business of the corporation. Last year Borg-Warner derived 53.7 per cent of its business from the automotive field, compared with 85 per cent in the peak year of 1929. Expansion in other lines and smaller automobile output accounted for the percentage change.

Some Divisions At Capacity.

Stockholders were told that refrigerator, washing and ironing machine divisions of the company were running "full blast" and that an addition will be built soon to the plant of the Detroit Vapor Stove company, a subsidiary, to expand the manufacture of air conditioning equipment.

The meeting was marked by willingness of the management to answer stockholders' questions. More than three hours were spent in reviewing the company's record for 1935 and answering questions. Each item in the annual statement was read by Davis, who then paused for questions. Several times he invited individual stockholders to make inquiries.

Stockholders elected two new directors—Philip D. Armour and Ray P. Johnson—to succeed E. S. Ekstrom and F. L. Morse, deceased. R. C. Ingersoll was named a vice president to fill the post formerly held by Ekstrom.

Tells Mounting Tax Burden.

Davis emphasized the steadily mounting burden of taxes which the company is carrying, a point which he stressed in the annual report several weeks ago. He told stockholders that Borg-Warner earned more last year than in 1929 before deduction for taxes. This item last year amounted to $2.01 a share on the common stock, compared with $1.01 a share in 1929. The current figure, he said, includes income, excess profits, federal capital stock and federal excise taxes, and many other direct and indirect levies.

G. A. Shallberg, general counsel, said a contingent compensation plan had been adopted for officers and employés of the central office, providing for a bonus of 2 per cent on one-half the earnings available for common stock after payment of $1.50 a share in dividends on the common. This would have amounted to $67,000 on the basis of last year's profit.

Report Germany Will Take Control Over Shipping Lines

BERLIN, March 27.—(AP)—It was reported in authoritative quarters tonight that the German government will become the dominant power in German shipping after June 16. On that date the two major German shipping companies, the Hamburg-America Line and the North German Lloyd, will hold their general meeting. It was said the German government would acquire all new shares to be issued after a reduction in capital at the rate of five to one.

Fall of Franc May Send Gold to U. S. Again

A gradual undermining in the position of the French franc during the last few weeks was climaxed yesterday when the American dollar rose to such an extent that gold shipments from Paris to New York became profitable, with the franc equaling its 1936 low at 6.59 cents.

The level at which it is estimated gold shipments from France to this country are profitable is about 6.5918 cents for the franc. Gold was last transported from Paris to New York in the second week in January, but since that time there have been shipments in the reverse direction when inflationary fears weakened the dollar.

A net loss of 2 points in the franc yesterday raised the value of the dollar against francs to 100.66 cents from 100.35 cents on Thursday, and compares with 99.26 cents a month ago.

Support for Franc Withdrawn.

Foreign exchange traders professed no surprise at yesterday's slump in the franc. To them it meant merely that support from various government agencies had been removed and that the franc was running a gantlet of selling orders based on France's present position, politically and financially.

Ever since Germany took up a military position in the Rhineland, the French currency has displayed a weak undertone. The decline, it was said, could have been experienced at any time in the interim had the franc not been supported by control operations. When the drop was initiated yesterday, traders ascribed it promptly to the curtailment of support from the control boards. This change in heart was construed to mean that renewed hoarding in France has tended to place a damper on control operations in the franc. There is also discussion of a possible devaluation after the general elections on April 26.

Franc Futures Weak.

The setback in the spot franc yesterday was immediately communicated to the futures market, where the discount on ninety day francs was widened to 29 points, compared with Thursday's discount of 22¾ points.

Heavy sales in francs yesterday naturally resulted in other currencies slumping against the dollar. This was particularly noticeable among the allied gold currencies. Dutch guilders fell 21 points to close at 67.91 cents and Swiss francs dropped 10 points to 32.61 cents, but neither allowed profitable gold exports from the respective countries.

German marks, too, suffered in the day's trading, losing 10 points to 40.22 cents, and Italian lire reached a new 1936 low at 7.95 cents, off 2 points. The lira has also been strongly supported by official control operations.

The British pound sterling lost 1¼ cents in the New York market to close at $4.95⅝ after also closing lower in London as funds from Paris were transferred from pound sterling to dollars.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported receipt of $1,415,600 gold from Canada and the release from earmark of $356,000 gold.

COTTON AND CORN LOAN PERIOD NOT TO BE EXTENDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 27.—The Commodity Credit corporation announced today that no extension beyond March 31 will be made in the time in which producers may obtain loans on corn and cotton under the current loan programs.

The latest available figures on the 45 cents a bushel corn loans showed a total of $12,676,795 on 28,162,822 bushels. Of this the corporation held $2,700,956 of loans on 5,999,818 bushels and the remainder was held by banks and other institutions. The corporation held $961,823 of 10 cents a pound loans on cotton out of a total of 88,453 bales on which $4,467,209 had been loaned.

EASTERN ROADS WISH TO MAKE OWN FARE CUTS

Will Request Delay in I. C. C. Slash.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—Major eastern railroads today announced a move to substitute their own "experimental" passenger fares for sharply reduced rates recently prescribed by the interstate commerce commission.

F. E. WILLIAMSON.

Presidents of eastern lines, after a meeting here, reported they would seek a delay in the June 2 effective date of the commission's order, which cut the basic coach rate from 2.6 to 2 cents a mile and eliminated the Pullman surcharges. The Pullman rate was fixed at 3 cents.

The commission's order was country-wide in scope, but its chief effect would fall on the eastern carriers because experimental low fares already are in operation in the west and south.

Wish to Experiment First.

A statement issued by President F. E. Williamson of the New York Central said the eastern rail heads had "made a careful study of passenger statistics following the commission's decision and that it was the conclusion of the large majority of the lines represented at today's meeting that application should be made to the commission requesting a deferment of the effective date of the order.

"Certain experimental bases of fare are to be established during the interim period," Williamson said.

Although declining to be quoted individually, others at the conference indicated that the commission would be asked to give the roads a "trial period" of perhaps six months or a year in which to test the results of experimental fares other than those set by the ICC.

Such fares would be established at some point between the basic 2 cent rate prescribed by the commission and the present 3.6 cent rate.

Agreement Indicated.

The action today indicated that heads of other eastern lines had reached an agreement with Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, who has championed the rates fixed by the commission. Negotiations have been under way for some time between Willard and heads of other eastern lines looking toward some compromise action.

With the exception of the B. & O., eastern roads offered a united front in opposition to any reduction in the 3.6 cent basic rate, charging that a cut to 2 cents would cost them millions of dollars annually. They argued that a large proportion of their passenger trafic resulted from commuter travel, which would not be increased by a reduction in rates.

The commission, however, cited increased passenger revenues to southern and western roads following reductions in fares and predicted a similar upturn would follow a rate cut in the east.

Chief Railways Have More Employes than Year Ago

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission reported today that class one railways had 981,853 employés in January, a decrease of 492 under December, but an increase of 22,332 over the same month a year ago.

FREIGHT TOTAL FALLS SHARPLY IN LAST WEEK

Caused by Floods and Dip in Coal Demand.

Flood conditions in the east last week and the normal recession in coal traffic caused a decline of 50,054 cars in national freight loadings, as compared with the preceding week, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday.

The total of 566,808 cars for the week also was a decline of 40,370 cars from a year ago, the first year to year loss since last autumn, and was 43,228 cars below the corresponding week two years ago.

Decline More than Seasonal.

The decline last week was more than seasonal because of the floods, and is expected to be reflected in earnings' reports for this month. During the last three weeks traffic has receded by more than 100,000 cars.

Traffic by classifications last week was as follows:

MARCH BUTTER HITS NEW SEASONAL LOW; EGGS DROP

Heavy liquidation by holders of March butter contracts developed yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange and disclosed a lack of aggressive support. Prices dropped 1⅜ cents to 29¼ cents per pound, a new low for the season. Purchases of about 64,000 pounds of spot butter by the government for relief purposes failed to have any effect on either futures or the spot market. The latter was ¾ to 1 cent per pound lower. Sales of butter futures were much heavier than recently at 237 cars.

Egg futures declined ⅛ cent and closed with October at 21¼ cents per dozen. April storaged packs sold at 19⅝ cents, a new low for the season. The drop was in sympathy with a decline of ½ cent per dozen on graded lots in the spot market. Egg receipts at the four leading markets were about 64,000 cases, or about 18,000 cases above a year ago. Sales of futures were 42 cars. Prices follow:

U. S. ASKS DELAY IN LEGALITY RULE ON UTILITY ACT

Wants Action in Electric Bond Case First.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—The government today urged the Supreme court to refrain from passing on the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act until its case against the Electric Bond and Share system can be appealed.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed asserted that a pending request for a ruling filed by Burco, Inc., of Baltimore, against the American States Public Service company had "been presented after collaboration, and the litigation was not truly adversary."

The court is expected to announce Monday whether it will grant the Burco petition. If it does, a decision may be forthcoming by early June. If it does not, a ruling on the legislation will be deferred until the term beginning next October.

Would Aid Reorganization.

As the owner of bonds of the American States company, Burco said it wanted the legislation held constitutional so the holding concern would have to register with the securities commission. It contended this would expedite reorganization or liquidation of the company.

In a broad ruling, the federal District court at Baltimore had held unconstitutional the legislation for regulation of utilities and for elimination of unnecessary holding companies. It also rejected the government's contention of "collaboration."

Rules on Registration.

The Circuit Court of Appeals at Charlotte, N. C., ruled American States did not have to register, because it operated only in intrastate commerce. It did not pass on the validity of the legislation as a whole.

"The parties to this proceeding," Reed said, "framed the issues to be litigated, stipulated off-hand such issues of fact as they deemed relevant, agreed upon vitally important interpretations to be placed upon the act, accepted highly debatable conclusions of law—all without advising the government of their contemplated action and without according it the opportunity to make an independent investigation of the facts."

Contending that the government acted promptly and with all "diligence" in prosecuting the Electric Bond and Share suit in the Southern New York federal District court, Reed said the department of justice would "shortly be prepared to proceed to trial and does not anticipate a protracted trial."

SYNDICATE HAS 24 MILLION FOR HOME BUILDING

BY AL CHASE.

The Investors' syndicate of Minneapolis announced yesterday that it has 24 million dollars available for home building and home refinancing in 30 states, of which 4 million dollars has been allocated to the principal cities of Illinois and Indiana. The statement, issued by E. E. Crabb, executive vice president, declares that the present housing shortage in the United States is the most acute in thirty years.

According to Thomas W. Brown, manager of the Chicago branch of the syndicate, at 231 South La Salle street, the forty-nine year old organization has been operating in Chicago only during the last fifteen months and in that time it has negotiated approximately $2,000,000 in mortgage loans.

Brown said that both construction and refinancing loans will be made in amounts ranging from $2,500 to $250,000, at 5 to 5½ per cent for terms of ten to fifteen years."

LEGAL RESERVE LIFE INSURANCE IN FORCE RISES TO 106 BILLIONS

The 273 legal reserve life insurance companies of the United States had $106,334,241,542 of insurance in force at the close of last year, according to the National Underwriter. Of this amount the ten leading companies accounted for 70,559 million dollars, approximately two-thirds of the total.

The amount of insurance in force was almost 2 per cent more than the 1935 total of $104,276,410,173 for 276 companies. Sixteen companies have more than a billion dollars of insurance in force, against 15 the year before.

Metropolitan Life led the field, as it did the year before, with more than 20¼ billions of dollars of insurance in force. Prudential had close to 16 billions, New York Life 6.6 billions, and Equitable Life of New York 6¼ billions of dollars.

The growing tendency of American employers to provide economical insurance for workers was reflected in the sharp growth of group insurance. It showed a gain of 10 per cent, increasing more than a billion dollars for the year. Ordinary life insurance increased about 500 million to total approximately 77¾ billions. Industrial insurance rose 400 millions to $17,885,000,000.

UNION REJECTS MINE OWNERS' WAGE TERMS

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—The possibility of further labor trouble in the anthracite districts of Pennsylvania became evident today with word that the terms for a new contract between employers and employés, proposed by the owners and operators, had been rejected by the United Mine Workers of America. The proposed contract included a wage cut variously estimated at 22 to 27 per cent.

In refusing the operators' proposals the union said that "we do not recognize the need for the suggested changes in a new wage contract, but to the contrary, we are of the opinion that the proposals which were offered this conference by the United Mine Workers of America should be given greater consideration by the operators, and relief extended the mine workers through improved conditions of employment and higher standards of wages."

STOCK EXCHANGE SEEKS CONTROL OVER BOND TRADE

New York, March 27.—[Special.]—A proposal of the New York Stock exchange governing committee that might force member firms to execute orders in listed bonds exclusively on the floor of the exchange met opposition today in many commission houses, while other firms welcomed the proposal.

The exchange asked members to approve an amendment to the constitution to give the bond committee authority to "regulate dealings, whether upon the exchange or otherwise, in bonds, notes and other obligations and in certificates of deposit therefore, and in connection therewith may require that transactions in said securities be executed upon the exchange."

The intention of the committee is to use this authority only over transactions of certain minimum size, leaving the large orders subject to execution wherever the best market is available.

ROOSEVELT RULE OF OCEAN MAIL GETS SETBACK

House Is Forced to Delay Extension of Power.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—An attempt to extend the President's power to cancel ocean mail contracts for two months received a setback in the house today after the senate had given quick and unanimous approval.

Chairman Bland [Dem., Va.] of the house merchant marine committee requested unanimous consent action in the house on the resolution which had come from the senate a few hours earlier. With the power of cancellation expiring next Tuesday, Bland said he was willing to amend the resolution to provide for a year's extension, as proposed by Representative Lehlbach [Rep., N. J.].

But Michener Objects.

But Representative Michener [Rep., Mich.] objected to "considering such important legislation in such fashion at this late hour." House leaders hoped to adopt the resolution Monday, when the house will reconvene.

Prospects for action on the President's proposal to substitute direct subsidies for the merchant marine, in place of the mail contract subsidies remained uncertain. Chairman Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] of the senate commerce committee, in charge of ship subsidy legislation on the floor, adopted the same attitude he took last session.

"It is up to the President," he said. "If he wants this legislation, let him say so and I will go to work."

His confusion over the President's attitude, he said, was occasioned by what he termed claims of Senator Guffey [Dem., Pa.] that his bill, considerably different from the Copeland measure, also had presidential approval.

Claims White House Approval.

Copeland earlier told the senate his measure had White House approval and was in line with the President's request for a direct operating and construction subsidy to replace the ocean mail contracts.

The legislation has these hurdles, among others, in its path:

1—Senator Clark [Dem., Mo.] has announced that he and "about a score of others" will fight "to death" the Copeland bill. Clark is opposed to any subsidy legislation, but said he would not struggle so hard against the Guffey bill since that permitted the possibly of government ownership.

2—Senator Black [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the ocean mail investigation committee of two years ago, must be convinced that barriers are up in the new bill against avenues he claimed were in the ocean mail contracts for "defrauding" the government.

SWINE AVERAGE 10 CENTS LOWER IN DULL TRADING

Hogs sold off 10 to 15 cents yesterday after a steady to 10 cents lower opening, with the general trade draggy at the lower rates. Least weakness was in the selected underweights, which were scarce, and in the good heavy "lard hogs" that have been moving closer to the top in recent weeks because of the advances scored in lard. In-between weights, 225 to 260 pounds, declined most. The average at $10.45 indicated 10 cents' decline, with the top of $10.80 off 5 cents.

Most lamb sales averaged about steady yesterday, but the trade was uneven, some prices indicating slight losses, while the top to packers was up 5 cents at $10.40, and city butchers paid 10 cents higher, up to $10.50 for their best selections.

Practically no changes were made in the general level of the cattle market yesterday although buyers again preferred the cheaper grades of steers and the lower priced hefers despite the fact that these are costing relatively higher than anything else on the packers' killing sheets.

No highly finished steers were on the market. The best sold at $10, with the bulk at $7.65 to $9.50, and practically nothing with any "kill" going below $7.50. Calves sold strong to 25 cents or more higher.

OHIO ASKS HIGH COURT TO UPHOLD WAGE LIMIT LAW

Washington, D. C., March 27.—[Special.]—Ohio joined New York and Illinois today in urging the Supreme court to uphold the constitutionality of the New York minimum wage law as applied to women and children. In a brief filed as a "friend of the court" by Attorney General John W. Bricker, Ohio said that legislation of this character is "vital to the preservation of the economic security of the states and should be sustained."

The minimum wage law has been brought to the court's attention through a brief from New York state opposing the four to three decision of the state Court of Appeals, which held the law unconstitutional.

The Ohio official said that before his state passed a similar wage control law, women and minors were employed in many industries at wages dictated by sweatshop conditions and standards. This law is now being tested in the federal court for the eastern division of the southern Ohio district, the main issue being identical with the New York case.

A Low Cost Auto Financing Plan

Why make a good deal on a car, new or used, only to be penalized by high financing charges?

We have broken down the barriers of tradition and have ushered in a new era of sensible rates for cars bought on time payments. These new rates apply on used car sales, new car sales, or a loan on your present car.

No mystery charges, no extra fees. You simply make a reasonable down payment when you buy, and we finance the balance. Here are typical examples of the low cost under our plan:

Balance to be financed.	Total yearly charge.	Total amount of note.	12 monthly deposits.
$100	$12.08	$112.08	$ 9.34
200	19.00	219.00	18.25
300	23.04	323.04	26.92
400	29.00	429.00	35.75
500	35.08	535.08	44.59
